She's Carolina's One-Woman Team

Donna Limburg, owner of pretty legs and a handsome sun-tan, becomes what amounts to a one-woman track team here at the University of North Carolina.

Each afternoon she manages to appear at Fetzer Field, home of Tar Heel track, and energetically paces herself through a rigorous routine of exercise and sprints.

"I really have no idea of attaining fame," she admits with a smile. "I simply find running fun and healthful. If it's good for the men, it must be good for the ladies, too."

Donna calls Hagerstown, Maryland, home and is in the School of Nursing here. As a high schooler, she occasionally would ask to run with the track team. Said she: "They called me an 'unofficial' participant."

Donna's dimensions are 5-6 and 120 pounds. She has good form, anyway you look at it. Attest the number of spectators who stick around to watch her perform.

It might also be said that Donna is stimulating more exercise by the opposite sex on Fetzer Field than has been seen in years. Males who have shunned physical skills in past months suddenly have acquired a liking for running — when Donna is around.

"I'm quick to recommend running to all girls," says Donna. "It induces some wonderful physical relaxation." Dale Ranson, Carolina's veteran track coach, hasn't been able to offer Donna any tips, due to absence because of illness. Too bad. Dale might have a female Jimmy Beatty on his hands. And much prettier.

CHHS Backfield Highly Versatile

By JOE SPRANSY

As the CHHS football team begins to take shape during the first few days of practice, it becomes quite evident that the Wildcat backfield has talent that could make it one of the most potent and versatile in District Three play.

Leading the back foursome will be a strong corps of quarterbacks composed of two returning lettermen and four very promising players. Although the team has not yet had a full scrimmage, these quarterbacks have shown improvement in practice, indicating that the team could move equally as well in the air and on the ground.

Returning starter at the helm position is Junior Danny Leigh, who proved to be a very versatile athlete during his sophomore year. Leigh, who co-captained the sophomore basketball team and was a leading pitcher on the Wildcat baseball team, has a passing arm known throughout the conference for its accuracy. But even stronger points about this fine back are his ability to run. His speed gives him the capacity to double as a halfback. His ability gives him the capacity to double as a fullback. His ability to fake and hand-off is exceptional.

"We thought quarterbacks would be one of our strong points this year but with the evident loss of returning letterman Scott Thompson we will not have quite the depth we had expected," said Coach Robert Culton. Thompson, a junior whose knee trouble hampered his play last season, threatens to restrict him this season.

Butch Bailey, a transfer student, may also be considered a candidate for this top ranking position. As a quarterback for the junior varsity in Rockingham last fall, he gained valuable playing experience. Howard Oakes, who saw limited action last year, will also be a prospect, Coach Culton said. Oakes, who played at end last season has been switched to quarterback where he shows much promise.

Two other competitors for quarterback are junior Jamie Gutierrez, and sophomore Pat Thompson. Both are considered to be top prospects but they both lack the game experience that could prove their real abilities. Chapel Hill should have scorching speed, this season with the services of its many halfbacks. Donnie Clark, who earned an honorable mention in the all-conference tabulations last season, should be considered a top ranking back in the conference this season. As a sophomore last season he was widely acclaimed for his numerous and spectacular kick-offs and punt returns which time and again pulled the Wildcats out of the stew. With a year's experience behind him it is not to be doubted that he will be one of the leaders of the CHHS offense.

Jack Ballenger, also a returning halfback letterman, may capture the starting position opposite probable starter Clark.

"Jack started a few games for us last season until slowed by an injury. This year he should be one of our leading rushers," Coach Culton said. Ballenger ran the 100-yard dash for the CHHS cindermen last spring.

Also top prospects for halfbacks are seniors Stan Perry and Harold Pendergrass, who Coach Culton credits with being real quick, and sophomore Eddie Durham and Graham Burch who are learning quickly but lack vital game experience.

Other candidates for halfback positions are juniors Don Pendergrass and Vic Pepper and sophomores Ted Stone, Wallace Ellis, Bill Martin, Fred Williams, Bruce Clark, Alan Bream, Bynnie Riggsbee, Rudy Tempesta, Ed Carson, and Robby Berry.

At fullback will most likely be a returning starter from last year's squad, David Gibson, who reported to training in excellent condition and eager to play. The Wildcats lack depth at this position but, if needed, Danny Leigh can fill in for David Gibson, a defensive standout last season as a sophomore.

Building Permit Issued For Motel

A building permit was issued Thursday for a $1 million motel in downtown Chapel Hill.

Interstate Investors of Charlotte, developer of the motel, plan a six-story building containing 130 guest rooms, a first-floor restaurant, meeting rooms and a swimming pool outside.

The motel will be built between the Obie Davis and Norwood Bros. Esso Stations opposite Chapel Hill Senior High School on West Franklin Street, on property originally obtained by a group of local investors who sold to Interstate.

The building permit listed the general contract cost at $770,000. Plumbing, heating and land purchase are estimated to put the cost of the entire project at over $1 million.

The permit was issued after design approval by the N. C. insurance commissioner's office and a review by the local Planning Board. Also, the Board of Aldermen raised the town's building height limit from 45 to 90 feet under the stimulus of the motel project. The motel will be 68 feet high. The building will contain 56,000 square feet and will be constructed largely of glass supported by cement columns. The Franklin Street side and other masonry faces will be brick.

A double-deck parking lot, one deck underground, will provide space for 130 cars. Entrances to the lot will be from West Franklin, West Rosemary and Church streets.

Little Construction Co. of Charlotte will build the motel. It was designed by the architectural firm of D. Gene Whittington, also of Charlotte.

The motel will have a 104-foot frontage on West Franklin Street and on West Rosemary Street a larger frontage will be occupied by parking areas. It will lie lengthwise through the block.

CURED Marches On West Franklin

A sidewalk march was staged Friday night by 68 members of Citizens United for Racial Equality and Dignity on West Franklin Street.

The group, led by Pat Cusick, started at St. Joseph's Church on West Rosemary Street and marched down West Franklin to the Carolina Grill. A few songs were sung, no incidents occurred. The march lasted about 20 minutes.

A street march was planned for 12:30 yesterday, by the same group, down West Franklin Street to the Post Office and Back.

Chapel Hill Police Chief W. D. Blake said yesterday morning he expected about 120 members of CURED to participate in the march.
