Police Fund Drive Ends With $1,750

The Chapel Hill Chamber of Commerce Policemen's Fund drive ended yesterday with total contributions of about $1,750.

The Chamber's executive director, Joe Augustine, said contributions would still be accepted, but that a formal appeal for further contributions would no longer be made.

The drive was started in early August, aimed at between $1,500 and $2,000, to enable Chapel Hill's police force to make a down payment on a $10,000 building on their recreation land.

The police force bought about 28 acres of NC 86 three years ago as a recreation area. The tract has since been used by policemen and their families and Boy Scouts. The policemen have cleared part of the land, improved the access road, and installed electricity and well water.

Mr. Augustine said that within a week or so he would present Police Chief W. D. Blake with a check for the contributions collected in the drive.

Checks may be made out to Policemen's Fund, Chamber of Commerce, and sent to the Chamber of Commerce, Box 127, Chapel Hill. All contributions are tax deductible.

REGULAR SCHEDULE
The Community Church will resume its regular schedule of services on Sunday, September 8th, at 9:30 a.m. and 11:00 a.m. Children in the church school will attend the 9:30 service with their parents.

BILLY ARTHUR

Pete Ivey's recollection of Rubino, the renowned shaggy dog of the Thirties, brought back a lot of memories.

Rip Slusser and Herbert Ledbetter gave him the name, because the dog frequented Alfred Williams Co., which then was where Bob Varley now holds forth. Buck (that was Herbert's nickname) managed the store and Slusser worked there when he wasn't practicing and playing football. Rip being my roommate at Old East, I frequented the place. And Rubino, just being himself, did likewise.

I guess he got the name because there were few Chapel Hill lights on on Sunday nights and he was out on the streets. But Buck, Rip and I always went to the store to listen to the Eddie Cantor radio program.

The band was directed by Dave Rubino, an excellent violinist, who always had a solo part. And when the program was over, Rubino would follow me and Rip to Old East.

There were few radios back then. I remember Gooch's restaurant had one with a speaker outside the Franklin Street door. And every night about 6:45 the students — me among 'em — blocked the sidewalk to listen to Amos and Andy.

I think the Dekes, the Betas and the rest of the houses on Columbia Street tract court had radios, but a lot of others did not. There were few, if any, in the dorms. Back then people listened to record players, except late nights when they'd search out a "wireless" to hear Kay Kyser, Coon-Sanders, Jimmy Green, Ben Bernie, Herbie Kay, and Guy Lombardo.

And on fall Saturday afternoons when the Tar Heels were playing away from home, we went to Memorial Hall to listen to and watch the game — not on radio or television. It came in by Morse code and Western union.

A Morse operator sat in one of the rooms or wings and transcribed the report of the game.

On the stage we had set up a panto-something or other. I forget the name of the thing. But it was a big green board with lines representing the ten-yard stripes and goals.

One of my assistant cheerleaders would move the little white football up and down the board as the game progressed and we got the report from the telegraph operator.

It was always bedlam when Johnny Branch or Rip would break loose. We'd dramatize it a bit by moving the white ball tantalizingly backward as if they were being thrown for a loss, moving it forward a bit, then backward and across the board like a broken field runner. By that time the crowd was teased to a pitch and we'd streak the ball across the goal for a Carolina touchdown.

The proverbial roof proverbially came down.

There were always hundreds of students in Memorial Hall for the games away, and we'd have cheers and half-time pep talks. Not like today when separately we listen to our individual transistors and have no one beside us to beat on the shoulder or commiserate with our second guessing.

I'm not opposed to progress and the electronic advances we have made, but I do feel the togetherness we experienced back then made for better spirit and enthusiasm.

Nevertheless, here it is September, 1963. Let's go, Carolina.
