UNC Fullback Is Out Stronger Deacons Expected

The last time Wake Forest College won a football game was in 1961 — against Carolina's Tar Heels. In the interim, the Deacons have dropped 12 in a row, tying the school's record for consecutive losses. If Wake Forest loses to Carolina when they meet at Winston-Salem this coming Saturday night, there will be a new record.

Carolina is anxious to help Wake Forest achieve this somewhat dubious distinction, but according to UNC assistant coach Emmett Cheek it won't be as easy as it might look on paper.

Talking to sportswriters at UNC's weekly press conference, Coach Cheek said Wake Forest has a good football team, despite its poor showing so far.

In losing its first two games of the season, to East Carolina and Virginia Tech, Wake Forest started out strong, Coach Cheek reported. "All during the first half they were really in the ball game. Against Virginia Tech, they were real aggressive and at the start looked like they might win the game."

The Deacons have been having a little trouble at quarterback, Coach Cheek said, but they figure to be much stronger against Carolina.

One of the bright spots at Wake Forest is the return to action of quarterback Karl Sweetan, the celebrated junior transfer who broke his wrist in pre-season practice.

Sweetan saw limited action against Virginia Tech last week and turned in what Coach Cheek called some fine punting, averaging 45 yards in the rain.

"Carolina always gets one of its roughest games against Wake Forest," Coach Cheek said, and Saturday night doesn't figure to be any different.

Besides facing a Sweetan-led Wake Forest attack, Carolina will go into the game without the services of its starting fullback.

Coach Jim Hickey announced that Hank Barden had suffered a slight hand fracture that will keep him sidelined for about three weeks. Eddie Kessler, now recovered from a broken nose suffered in the opener against Virginia, will take over the fullback assignment.

It is also doubtful that end John Hammett will see action against the Deacons. Hammett hurt an ankle in the first week of practice and it's still bothering him. "I'm going to let him stay out until he's well," Coach Hickey said.

There will be other changes in the starting lineup against Wake Forest. John Hill has moved into the starting tackle post, replacing Vic Esposito, and Joe Robinson will start at right end, and Ronnie Jackson probably will start at wingback.

In a review of the 31-0 loss last week to Michigan State, Coach Hickey was critical of the Tar Heel blocking. "I don't know what's the matter with the blocking," he said. "The main problem has been one of blocking the wrong man. There's no excuse for it. One play we look good, and then we do something stupid."

He said there were "no real reasons" for quarterback Junior Edge's off-day on his passes against MSU, but he pointed out that end Bob Lacey, Edge's favorite target, had pulled a groin muscle and had seen only one day's work in the previous week's practice.

Although he expressed bitter disappointment at the team's showing against Michigan State, Coach Hickey said, "I don't feel any different about the team than I did on the first day of practice. I think it's a good football team and I think we're going to show you that it's a good football team."

The most disappointing thing so far this season, Coach Hickey said, was "We haven't been able to move the ball offensively." The most satisfying part of the team's efforts so far, he said, has been the defense.

As for the Deacons, Coach Hickey said, "We'll have to go into this game like the first two games. Wake Forest has shown us something new for the past three years, and we expect them to do it again."

"I think they'll really be after us," Coach Cheek added. "We'd better be ready."—JHS

Dart Ball League Now Open To All

A dart ball league was formed in Chapel Hill and Carrboro last August. Six teams have joined the league, and six games have been played so far.

The teams: Carrboro Baptist, Damascus, Antioch, Mount Carmel, Ephesus, and Bethel.

Standings:

Team	Won	Lost
Damascus	4	2
Carrboro	4	2
Bethel	4	2
Antioch	3	3
Mt. Carmel	2	4
Ephesus	1	5

All games are played on Tuesday nights, and interested persons are invited to attend games free of charge. Twelve games will be played by each team before Christmas, and another series of twelve games will be played after Christmas.

Any church interested in forming a dart ball team should contact any member of the league.

League officers are Caswell Andrews, president; the Rev. Richard Park, vice president; Bobby Spagh, secretary; Alton Riley, treasurer; and Bruce Martindale, publicity chairman.

Jehovah Witnesses Will Convene Here

Jehovah's Witnesses of Circuit 36 will hold their late autumn circuit convention in Chapel Hill November 1-3, according to Theodore Stokes, presiding minister of the Chapel Hill East Unit Congregation.

The meeting is scheduled to take place Friday, Saturday, and Sunday, November 1-3, at Lincoln High School. More than 400 delegates from the 16 congregations that make up Circuit 36 are expected. The circuit extends from Sanford to Washington, N. C.

The circuit convention will climax the weekly ministry development program held at the Kingdom Hall. The Watchtower Bible and Tract Society is sponsoring the assembly. Its purpose is to give Jehovah's Witnesses and friends three days of advanced Bible knowledge and special ministerial training.

Football is not all blood and thunder. There are moments when even the enemy can be humorous.

The North Carolina football squad, which has been bombed by Michigan State twice in as many tries, found the Spartans to be original in combat.

A year ago, Matt Snorton, a 245-pound end, would break the huddle and come to the line of scrimmage chanting: "One, two, three, fo' — here we go for 20 mo'."

Last weekend, Charlie Brown, a rugged lineman not to be confused with the comic strip character, had an announcement to make each time he stopped a play.

Said the Spartan to the Carolina back under him: "You have just been tackled by Charlie Brown."

AMONG THE special guests on the trip to East Lansing were Chancellor William B. Aycock and Dean of Faculty James Godfrey.

After the plane had gained altitude, one of the hostesses making her rounds struck up a conversation.

"Are you one of the coaches?" she asked the Chancellor.

"No," said Chancellor Aycock without a hint of a smile, "I'm the trainer."

He nodded toward Dean Godfrey.

"And this," he continued, "is my assistant."

ELEPHANT JOKE: Day before the Carolina team arrived at Lansing's airport, an elephant busted out of a circus and went on the rampage downtown.

Billy Carmichael, III, suggested that the elephant saw liberal credit terms suggested in a department store window — so the elephant charged it.

THE BIG ONE: Carolina coaches are making no bones about their feelings after Michigan State. They're bitterly disappointed.

"We have pledged ourselves to work harder this week than ever before," said Hickey.

There are problems to iron. Chief one deals with blocking. The Tar Heels haven't given their runners a chance to perform.

"Our backs too many times are out there by themselves," scolded the coach. "They aren't that fast. There simply has been a sad lack of interference."

It recalls a slogan that the late General Bob Neyland, of Tennessee, continually used. It was:

"ONE GOOD INTERFERER IS WORTH THREE BALL CARRIERS."

SOME CHANGES?: Hickey said he would likely make some lineup shifts this week—based upon practice effort and a recheck of the Michigan State films.

"I felt the game was much closer than the 31-0 score indicated," said Hickey. "I also feel we are going to have a good football team. We have eight games to go and we're going to be ready."

Carrboro Parents To Meet Thursday

Parents of first-graders at Carrboro Elementary School will meet tomorrow night at 8 in the school lunchroom for a discussion of curriculum.

The curriculum discussions are being sponsored by the Carrboro PTA and will take the place of the regular October PTA meeting.

On hand for the discussion will be Carrboro Principal Klay Box, Mrs. Jesse Gouger, Chapel Hill instructional supervisor, and the teachers concerned. All parents of first-graders are urged to attend.

Meetings of parents of students in other grades will be announced later.

Chapel Hill Meets Graham On Friday

By JOE SPRANSY

As the Chapel Hill Wildcats approach the mid-season point they sport an enviable record of three wins, one loss. They hold hopes of broadening their winning record with a victory against the Graham Red Devils in a non-conference skirmish Friday night in Graham.

The Wildcats, who walked away with a 21-6 win last Friday at the expense of Coach Johnny Parham's Oxford Wildcats, are credited by Coach Robert Culton as having played their best game to date that night.

"We did a very commendable job against Oxford in all departments, with our defense doing an especially good job in holding them to a mere 28 yards rushing."

He singled out end Glen Blackburn and fullback David Gibson for pulling together the Wildcat defenses and holding Oxford for sizable losses. "Our pass defense has improved noticeably since our Northern game," Coach Culton added. The Wildcats held Oxford to seven of 14 attempts and 109 yards in the air.

"Our backfield also did a very competent job in eating up 160 yards on the ground." Halfback Tim Riggsbee, Stan Perry, and Donnie Clark carried the majority of this total. Riggsbee has scored four touchdowns this season and is among the leaders in the conference in total points.

Others in the scoring column for Chapel Hill are Perry with 12; Blackburn, who has been on the receiving end of seven; Eugene Hines snagging one touchdown pass; and quarterback Danny Leigh, who has accounted for 12 with one touchdown and a successful six of nine attempts to boot the extra points. So far this season Chapel Hill has outscored opponents 61 points to 51 points.

In taking on Graham the Wildcats will be out to avenge a 37-20 defeat at the hands of the Red Devils last season. Graham's team is almost exactly the same as the one that outscored the Wildcats by three touchdowns last year. Their offense, the same that they used last year, is a multiple offense centered around the single wing formation. Though the single wing has been outmoded by the more versatile "T" and spread formations, teams of this area are not familiar with defenses against it, giving Graham an advantage.

The Red Devils hold a two-win and three-loss record to date, one of these losses coming from the defending District Three champions, Roxboro.

At their present rate the Wildcats should not be troubled too much with Graham if one phase of their game improves. This one troublesome department is penalties. The Wildcats had 146 yards of valuable ground erased by penalties in the Oxford game, and will have to improve on this to go on winning.
