Fallout Shelters Are Tax Exempt

The North Carolina Legislature, in the 1963 Regular Session, amended Chapter 105 of the General Statutes of North Carolina by adding a new section, 105-294.4, exempting from local property taxes the value of privately owned family fallout shelters up to $2,000 in valuation.

The State Civil Defense Agency will, upon request, inspect family fallout shelters and issue to the owner an exemption certificate if the shelter meets protection criteria and standards of the Office of Civil Defense, United States Department of Defense.

School Fellowship Attacks Illiteracy

Under the auspices of the Chapel Hill Fellowship for School Integration, a small group of Chapel Hill townspeople has started a reading class to combat illiteracy among first and second grade pupils.

Six children attended the first reading class held Monday by two readers. Program director Mrs. Thomas Donnelly said she expected more children to attend in the future.

Last year the Fellowship conducted a study hall at night for students not accustomed to using reference materials and who had no mastery over study techniques.

The reading program was suggested by Chapel Hill School Superintendent Howard Thompson. Dr. Thompson said reading weaknesses were the "number one problem" in schools across the nation. "I think reading is the crux of learning all the way up," he said.

He added, "A goodly number of dropouts result from embarrassment over not being able to read assigned material."

Duke Man Named To County Board

The Orange County Democratic Executive Committee last night elected Duke University Alumni Affairs Director Roger Marshall to the Orange County Board of Education.

Mr. Marshall, 42, replaces board member Charles M. Walker Jr., who resigned. The new board member is a Duke graduate, a former newspaperman and a resident of Orange County.

County party Chairman L. J. Phipps told the committee that recent changes in the election law will require a ruling by the state attorney general to determine the length of Mr. Marshall's term.

"Apparently, this was not accounted for when we wrote the law," Judge Phipps, a former state representative, said of the vacancy-filling procedure.

Judge Phipps said he hopes to have the attorney general's ruling before Mr. Marshall is sworn, scheduled for Nov. 4, when the school board next meets.

Mr. Marshall, of Rt. 3, Hillsboro, won the job over two other candidates, Paul Gates of the Caldwell Community and Reid Roberts of Rt. 1, Hillsboro.

might desire pay raises of more than 10 per cent.

Orange County's State Rep. Edwin Hamlin and Judge Phipps joined in reporting on their contacts with Person County Democratic leaders on a Senate rotation agreement, necessitated by the recent Senate redistricting.

Both counties agreed, they said, to wait until after Jan. 14, the date of a constitutional amendment referendum on redistricting, before making a rotation agreement.

"In my thinking, Orange County would get a senator for 1965 if the amendment passes and 1965 and 1967, at least, if it fails," Mr. Phipps said.

Mr. Hamlin added that he thinks Orange should get a three-two rotation, that is, keeping the Senate seat for three consecutive terms and then turning it over to Person for two terms.

Mr. Hamlin also said he will vote for the redistricting proposal in the Jan. 14 referendum. In the General Assembly's special session, he voted for the bill that established the referendum.

The Opera Workshop will perform the second act of Verdi's "La Traviata."

"We are performing this act because it is a wonderful vehicle for three splendid singing actors and because it has such a wealth of fine solo and ensemble numbers in it," said Wilton Mason, professor of music and director of the Opera Workshop.

Rebecca Carnes of Chapel Hill will portray the soprano role of Violetta. In the tenor role of Alfredo Germont will be Wayne Zarr of the UNC Music Department, the new director of both the University Chorus and the Chapel Hill Choral Club. This will be Mr. Zarr's first singing appearance since he has been here.
