United Church

Activities Today

Christian Stewardship is the subject of the Rev. DeWitt L. Myers' sermon today at the 11 a.m. worship service at United Church, 211 W. Cameron.

The ministry of music will include the anthem "Lord, Our God" by Jeremiah Dencke, and sung by the choir under the direction of Lynn Ikenberry, Director of Music and accompanied by the organist, Mrs. Warren Morris.

Mrs. Morris will play as prelude, "Sinfonia to Cantata No. 156" by J. S. Bach, the "Offertory in E Minor" by J. K. F. Fischer and, as postlude, "Risuluto" by Gustave Tritant.

The children of the first four grades in school who stay for the morning worship service or scripture and music and for the Children's Story, will then withdraw to Fellowship Hall to continue their study of the customs and missions in Japan, under the leadership of Mr. and Mrs. William Cherry. Next Sunday the children will be given a demonstration and lesson in the Japanese hand skill of Oragami, by Mrs. George Clifford, who once lived in Japan.

Church School classes for all ages will be held as usual at 10 a.m. The Adult Class, under the leadership of Dr. C. David Jenkins, will discuss last Sunday's sermon as outlined for the class by the minister.

Visitors are welcome at all services. Nursery and kindergarten facilities under supervision are available from 10 until noon.

Junior High Fellowship meets 5 p.m. at the church for recreation, supper and a program. Led by a UNC student Kellis Parker, there will be a discussion of United Nations' Human Rights Day. Mr. Parker was one of the United States delegates to the International Students' Conference on Human Rights held in Greece in the summer of 1962.

At 7:30 p.m. today there will be a congregational Stewardship Day meeting at which the finance chairman William Cherry, will present the proposed 1964 budget for discussion and adoption. Dessert and coffee will be served by the Women's Fellowship.

CHORAL CONCERT

The Durham Civic Choral Society will present its 15th annual fall concert on Monday, November 25, at 8:15 p.m. The program, which will feature John Hanks as soloist, will be held at the Alice M. Baldwin Auditorium on the Duke University campus under the direction of Paul Bryan. The public is cordially invited and admission is free.

-A Talk With William W. Davidson-

all right. You have no other choice."

You come away from an hour or so with him carrying little clumps of thought or observation in the back of your mind. Some of the clumps are like stones in your shoe. You can't completely forget about them.

On acolytes: "I called them into the church and I said, now look up at that ceiling. They were all chewing bubble gum. I talked to a man the other day and he chewed and chewed all the time we were talking. Of course, I don't want to criticize. It may have been anxiety. I can't do it. It's so tiring. It's killing. I suppose my children will be doing it, which probably means they have psychoses or neuroses or something, but there are plenty of psychiatrists around here to fix that. Anyway, I told them, look up at that ceiling. You see those beams? So they looked up, all the gum going smack, smack, smack. I said, take that long beam there, and that upright, and that's what they had to make a cross out of to break Christ on. This is man's work. This is not a little boy's work, and you're not little boys any more. Now, I'm not going to come around and ask you where you were if you don't show up. You're men now, so I expect you to come and tell me why you didn't show up. Right? All the gum stopped, and one of them said he felt nervous, and I said, what do you think I am? I came across four thousand miles of water, I've never stood at this altar before. I'm a little frightened. You help me and I'll help you and we'll be all right."

On his own parish in England:

He is concerned with the image of the Church presented in the press. "I wouldn't want people to think the Church is nothing but a lot of superficialities. I tell the press over there, I'll get in touch with you if I have something really important. Otherwise, silence is a very powerful weapon." Mr. Mead's welcome reception in Escher was attended by nearly 300 people, though the occasion received

"We have seven thousand people. They're all packed in, very rich, very poor." Some are very important people, in business or government, entertainment or journalism; one is a street-sweeper, another has been in prison. "All packed in. It's fascinating. Fascinating."

On religious retreats: "I go twice a year. Complete silence for a week. It's the most wonderful thing in the world. I go with monks, a contemplative order. They observe strict silence. Many people are afraid to be by themselves. That's why they have background music and they keep busy all the time. Can't bear to be with themselves. The first year I went on retreat I couldn't find anybody to go along, so I went myself. The next year we had four. Three times a day a monk says a little something, to give you something to think about—things you never even thought of thinking about."

As he sees it, the influence of the church is best spread not by "trumpeting" publicity of trivia, but by a process he calls "salting": "Salt doesn't benefit anybody if it's still in the salt cellar. When you sprinkle it, it becomes invisible, but it has a definite effect. A church is a salt cellar, and the people come to get salted. They go out and scatter around and that's much more valuable than anything else."

If Christ Church in Escher had eight candles on the altar, as the Church of the Holy Family does, it would be considered "very high church indeed." The same would apply if Mr. Davidson called acolytes acolytes.

relatively little advance publicity. "I didn't go around telling people, 'You'll be sure and come, won't you.' I just told whoever I saw, 'I'm sure you'll make him welcome.' Two or three hundred people turned up. I didn't say anything to the bell ringer, but he had eight bell

Mr. Davidson quotes the Bible just as casually, and with almost the same frequency, as most people strew their paths with cigarette butts. "What a man thinketh in his heart, that is he," he said, no less offhand than if he were analyzing a quarterback's technique. He also quotes his colleagues. He told a story about Dr. Fisher, former Archbishop of Canterbury, in a news conference, who was asked by a particularly cutting reporter whether plans had been made to fill the empty churches. "You see the whack in that question? The Archbishop said, 'That's a very good question. I'm glad you asked that. We have made our plans. We plan to fill the pews one seat at a time. Have you started yet?'"
