Watercolor "From The Sea," By Earl Tyler

Morehead Planetarium Exhibits Earl Tyler's Works

The Morehead Planetarium has announced the opening of a one-man show of oils, watercolors and drawings on November 30 of the New Jersey artist, Earl Tyler. The exhibition contains paintings which have been loaned by several collectors for this show and a series of drawings executed while Mr. Tyler was assistant to Amedee Ozenfant, the French painter. At the same time he is exhibiting at the Planetarium, Mr. Tyler is exhibiting a collection of watercolors at the Worth Avenue Gallery in Palm Springs, Florida.

Reverend Steve Kimbrough, pastor of the Hillsboro Methodist Church from 1958 to 1962, has taken a great deal of interest in Mr. Tyler's work. They are now both residents of Bay Head, New Jersey, where Mr. Kimbrough is the pastor of the Methodist Church and Mr. Tyler is the director of the Bay Head Creative Workshop.

The artist, who is the former head of the Butte Art Center in Montana, began his art education under the direction of artists in his native Montana and studied under Doris Lee and Boardman

METHODIST WOMEN MEET

The Woman's Society of Christian Service of the University Methodist Church will meet tomorrow in the east parlor of the church at 8 p.m. Mrs. J. A. Warren will speak on "The Mission of the Church." Mrs. J. W. Lasley Jr. will conduct the worship service and members of the Minnie Wilson Circle will be hostesses.

Tobinson at the Colorado Springs Art Center; under James McKay Redmond; at the Academie de Chaumiere in Paris and with Amedee Ozenfant in New York. He has many one man shows throughout the United States—in Butte and Great Falls, Montana; St. Paul, Minnesota; Seattle, Washington; New Jersey; Silver Springs, Maryland; and New York City. His paintings have also been exhibited in London, Edinburgh and Belfast. Some of his murals in Montana State Hospital, in an estate in Cheltenham, England, and he has executed a thirty-foot mural in the apse of the Greek Orthodox Church in Butte.

Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy and the White House Fine Arts Committee expressed their interest in Mr. Tyler's exhibition at the Guardian Federal Savings and Loan Association in Maryland. While Mr. Tyler exhibited abstracts in the 1940s at the Museum of Non-Objective Art in New York he feels that abstractionism does not accomplish his goal which is one of communicating with other people.

Fritz Cleary of the Asbury Park Press in his review of the artist's show at the Old Mill Gallery in Tinton Falls said, "The first impression of Mr. Tyler's work is that here is expressed the viewpoint of a young man. Everything he depicts in his painting is new, pristine, almost dewy. His paintings breathe optimism: according to them the world IS a good place in which to live."

"There is a deceptive simplicity about some of these works," said one of the reviews of the St. Paul exhibition. "Their messages are not startling nor does the presentation depend on shock value or subjective psychology. Subject matter is generally that of the things and scenes about us and the interpretation or commentary is purely in terms of color, structure, light, textures and other basic elements of painting." Another art critic has written of the artist's work, "Because much present day painting makes a comparatively quick impact and its emotional content is almost immediately apparent, these paintings and drawings may seem at first to be intellectual exercises but after a while the mood which they created, always tempered and restrained, make themselves definitely felt." The exhibition at the Morehead Planetarium will continue through December.
