HOW TO SEW SPIRIT

INTO A SUIT

A suit always reflects the men who make it. At H. Freeman & Son, approximately two-thirds of the tailors are second and third-generation craftsmen... doing the same type of skilled work for the same company. Their spirit, and the pride they take in their tailoring, is reflected in the clothing they make. It gives you that "made for you" feeling!

told him so. The playwright responded with a postcard request for a photograph. Some weeks later, after receiving the picture, Shaw wrote: "You look like the man who can do the job."

Later, Dr. Henderson said he understood the cryptic remark only after he arrived in London for talks with Shaw, and the playwright was quoted in news interviews as saying it would take "A truly desperate character" to write his life.

"George Bernard Shaw: His Life and Works" appeared in 1911. "Bernard Shaw: Playboy and Prophet" was published in 1932.

The third version, "George Bernard Shaw: Man of the Century," came out in 1956, and was Dr. Henderson's most recent published work.

The enjoyment of jokes at his own expense was illustrated by Dr. Henderson's recollection of his first encounter with Mark Twain, the humorist and author.

It was on a crossing of the Atlantic in 1907. From the center of a crowd, Twain remarked to Dr. Henderson he had seen an article by him in a magazine.

"I read it through; and to tell the naked truth, I never saw in such small compass so many words I had never seen before. Its only possible rival is the dictionary," Twain added.

Dr. Henderson said he absorbed a lesson along with the embarrassment. He resolved to use fewer lengthy words of Latin origin, and more short ones of Saxon derivation.

Regardless of the resolution, Dr. Henderson remained noted for his capacious vocabulary and his ability to use it with telling effect.

He began writing for North Carolina newspapers, under the name of Erskine Steele, early in the century. Later he wrote for national magazines, and in 1910 he published his first book. It was a series of essays on dramatists of the time.

In addition to numerous volumes dealing with the drama and mathematics, Dr. Henderson's published works included histories dealing with the Southwest, and a volume on George Washington's Southern tour.

He came to Chapel Hill as a student in the Gay Nineties, graduating in 1898. He got his master's degree from the University the following year, and a doctor of philosophy degree in 1908. He earned another Ph.D. from the University of Chicago in 1915.

His sixth honorary degree was authorized in February 1962 by trustees of the University of North Carolina, who awarded him the degree of doctor of letters.

Survivors include his second wife, the former Lucile Kelling; and five children by his first wife. They are Archibald Henderson Jr. of Houston, Texas, John Steele Henderson of Tuscaloosa, Ala., Mrs. James M. Webb and Mrs. Graham Ramsay of Chapel Hill, and Mrs. Claude Clinton Ramsay of Spartanburg, S. C. Also surviving are two sisters, Mrs. Lyman A. Cotten and Miss Mary Ferrand Henderson, both of Chapel Hill; one brother, John Steele Henderson of Salisbury; 18 grandchildren and 16 great-grandchildren.

GARDEN CLUB MEETING

The Green Sprouts Club will meet at 8 p.m. Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Wayne A. Danielson, 421 Granyville Road.

A combination meeting and Christmas party is planned. Mrs. Harold Langenderfer will show slides of Egypt and the Holy Land, and members will make Christmas decorations for Memorial Hospital during the evening.

Miss Charlotte Merritt and Mrs. Danielson are co-hostesses.

clubs comprising about 150 women, supported the petition entirely.

Mr. Sanders, Mrs. Work, and the signers of the petition were not alone in their desire to prevent uncontrolled strip commercial zoning along the road. Before the meeting Pearson Stewart, a member of the Research Triangle Planning Commission, said he hoped those attending the meeting would air their objections to commercial development because expression of such objections would help reduce the pressure for commercial development.

"My real hope is that we can get good-looking development," he said, "and somehow I think it's going to be hard to get good-looking commercial development."

The petition was accepted and the planners promised to take it into consideration when planning Airport Road development. It was submitted after Town Planner Lucien Faust had explained in detail the existing development along the Airport Road.

Christmas House Will Open Tomorrow

An estimated 500 children will receive food, toys and clothing this Christmas due to the efforts of many organizations in Chapel Hill who have helped make Christmas House a success. This means that 150 couples will be assisted in a dignified manner to provide a Merry Christmas for their families. Also 10 elderly couples without children will have a brighter Christmas through their visits tomorrow and Tuesday to make their purchases. This is the third year the Junior Service League has coordinated this program to help the needy families of Chapel Hill. R. D. Smith at Lincoln High School and his workshop students have been working diligently to have the used toys collected by the Jaycees looking like new for the Christmas House boys and girls. The Scouts, Brownies, and Church circles have been making tree, table and door decorations for these families' homes. Mrs. Dickson Phillips, treasurer, reports that many people and civic organizations have sent in checks, but more money is needed to meet the budget set to complete this project. If anyone has any questions regarding Christmas House, please call Mrs. Pearl Seymour, (967-1158). Checks may be mailed to Christmas House, Post Office Box 374, Chapel Hill.
