SMALL CHURCH, BIG SALE—The Rev. Sidney Stafford, pastor of Amity Methodist Church, is shown setting up one of the 900 Christmas trees the church has for sale this Christmas at the church grounds on Estes Drive near Airport Road. The Canadian firs, Scotch pines, and local cedars are individually staked, and the customer may walk among more than 200 standing trees to make a selection. Proceeds from the sale go toward the building fund of the church, and retirement of indebtedness. Sales are from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily. Each Thursday night women of the church will be in charge of sales.

ENLARGES MILL

Clyde Walker, of the Caldwell Community, has just added on a large shed almost doubling the storage and work area of his milling operations. Mr. Walker first purchased a small farm feed mill seven years ago to make his own poultry feed. Since that time, he has made three separate additions to his building, added 50,000 bushels of metal grain storage, installed heavy modern feed making equipment, and a molasses storage tank of several thousand gallons. Mr. Walker's mill serves a large number of farmers in the northeastern section of Orange County.

GOOD ALFALFA

P. W. Scott, of Mebane, Route 2, seeded 35 acres of Cherokee alfalfa last fall. This alfalfa looks unusually good, and P. W. expects high yields of good quality hay next summer. Granulated heptachlor was applied with fertilizer to control the alfalfa weevil.

SHEEP NOTES

The deadline for filing for the wool incentive payment at the ASCS Office in Hillsboro is December 31.
 David Baird, of the St. Mary's community, has a good crop of early lambs. Mr. Baird is convinced that this is the result of good management practices. Last year at this time his sheep had produced no lambs, and this year by using good management he has 30 lambs already born and expects the remainder of the crop very soon.

BEEF SCHOOL

The first session of the Beef Short Course will be held Tuesday, December 17, 7:30 p.m., in the assembly room of the Agriculture Building in Hillsboro. This meeting will be devoted to proper feeding of beef animals.
 The second meeting, scheduled for December 31, will be devoted to management practices of the beef herd.

4-H NOTES

The New Hope Junior 4-H Club sponsored a Christmas party last Saturday, to honor the 4-H'ers and the non-4-H'ers in the County. Their particular objective was to bring in the non-4-H'ers for fellowship and to join in the Christmas cheer.
 The Northwestern District 4-H Leader's recognition banquet held in Greensboro at WUNC last Saturday was attended by the following delegates from Orange County: Mr. and Mrs. Cashe Boggs, leaders from Schley Com-
