cial train on the ACL. Spike Saunders showed me a photo of the train, with an alligator leading it. The Seaboard and Southern are shutting Tar Heels to the game, too.

The alligator was standing (the alma mater song was probably being played) and Spike wondered whether the animal looked enough like a real gator to suffice. The beast looked more like a crocodile to me. Ogdan Nash once versified, in academic vein, in that regard. "I give you now, Professor Twist A conscientious scientist. Trustees exclaimed, "He never bungles." And sent him off to distant jungles. Camped on a tropical river, side. One day he missed his loving bride. She had, the guide informed him later. Been eaten by an alligator. Professor Twist could not but smile. "You mean," he said, "a crocodile."

Speaking of poetry, professors and Ogdan Nash, an official memorandum was mailed to members of the faculty of the University of North Carolina the other day, and the subject matter was presented in verse.

Prof. Almonte C. Howell, secretary of the faculty, wrote the poetic memorandum. The memo concerns new voting procedures in the faculty -- to elect an advisory council. Prof. Howell begins: "We proceed now to state our preference For personnel for a committee to whom we should all show deference"

EXECUTRIX NOTICE The undersigned, having qualified as executrix of the estate of Wilhelm Gierasimowicz, deceased, late of Orange County, this is to notify all persons having claims against said estate to present them to the undersigned on or before the 11th day of June, 1964, or this notice will be pleaded in bar of their recovery. All persons indebted to said estate will please make immediate payment to the undersigned. This the 11th day of December, 1963. Helena P. Gierasimowicz 309 Ransom Street Chapel Hill, N. C. That's chosen by a process which is so complicated That I'm not sure you will find it clearly stated Below So Here we go: (With apologies to Ogdan Nash)."

Two reasons often given by scientists for withholding information from the press are: 1. They hesitate to take credit for themselves. 2. They must share the honor with their colleagues.

Modern physicists, chemists, zoologists and other scientists are strict about giving appropriate recognition to others. They are team-work operators. They shrink from personal publicity, lest they be criticized by their fellows. Science is so long and the work of one man is built upon the work of many others who have gone before.

For these reasons, scientists communicate with anonymity sometimes preferred, and with insistence that their colleagues get due consideration and attention. That attitude deserves commendation, in a way, especially when it relates to altruism and giving proper consideration to one's fellows. But the idea can be carried too far. Many have gone overboard in this Organization Man policy among scientists.

It was not always thus. Scientists of yore were plain talkers and individualists. Archimedes is an example. When he conceived the idea that a body displaces an amount of water equal to its own bulk, he got so excited that he forgot the normal amenities.

It happened that the relationships of ideas occurred to him while he was in a public bath. He jumped out of the bath, and with only perhaps a towel wrapped around him he ran into the street, yelling "Eureka."

Eureka doesn't mean: "My colleagues and I have made some tentative findings that upon further research may have some value in relation to physics, and pending final checks and balances, I wish to give credit to my colleagues who have worked with me in this task." Eureka does mean: "I have found it."

He uses the personal pronoun "I". He doesn't say others are laboring to determine the same things. He doesn't moderate or modify, or dilute his assertion with any qualms or doubts. He has found it!

Rec Commission To Meet Tonight

The Chapel Hill Recreation Commission will complete its organizational processes at its meeting tonight at 8 in the Town Hall. The bylaws committee of the newly-organized Commission will report on clarifications of and minor changes in bylaws it submitted for the Commission's consideration at the last meeting. The Commission will also appoint members to committees if the revised bylaws are approved. The revised bylaws provide for three multi-titled committees instead of several single-responsibility committees: the programs, facilities, and policies; finance and personnel; and long range planning and publicity committees.

In other business, the Commission will hear reports from Recreation Director Corpton Shelton on the swimming pool at the Roberson Street Center, operation of which the Town officially agreed to take over Monday night; and the Strowd Building on the corner of Columbia and Franklin Streets. The Town Monday authorized $700 to help pay for renovation of the basement of the building into an uptown recreation center for teenagers. Mr. Shelton said the Recreation Commission would actually spend $1,000 and labor on the renovation, but that $300 and the labor would be provided by donations.

'Busy Martyr' Tryouts Monday

Tryouts for the Carolina Playmakers' next major production, "The Busy Martyr," will be held on Monday, December 16, at 4 and 7:30 p.m. in the Playmakers Theatre. The new comedy by George Hitchcock was recently chosen by the South Eastern Theatre Conference as their new play-of-the-year.

Set in a small town in Southern France, "The Busy Martyr" calls for a cast of 16 men, 7 women, and several extras. Director Tom Rezzuto, Jr. will also be looking for four young children to play roles in the production. Anyone in the Chapel Hill-U.N.C.-Durham area is welcome to attend and participate in their auditions. Production dates for "The Busy Martyr" are February 11 through 16.

Scripts are available, for those wishing to read the play, at the Reserve Reading Room in the University Library and at the Department of Dramatic Art, 307 Bynum Hall.

Department had authority to cross land without permission, but wished the permission anyway as a necessary step toward making a feasibility study of the road. Property owners in the area have fought the road's inclusion as a part of the Town's Major Thoroughfare Plan for over two years. The Highway Department, however, has said that the Plan cannot be approved and implemented unless the road is included.

A combination meetings and Christmas party is planned: Mrs. Harold Langenderfer will show slides of Egypt and the Holy Land, and members will make Christmas decorations for Memorial Hospital during the evening. Miss Charlotte Merritt and Mrs. Danielson are co-hostesses.

ROTARY SPEAKER Alex McMahon, general counsel for the N. C. Association of County Commissioners, will be the speaker at tonight's meeting of the Chapel Hill Rotary Club. The dinner meeting begins at 6:30 at the Carolina Inn. He will talk about his recent trip to Russia.
