RELIEF NEEDED. "WAR TAXES" MUST GO.

During the past week the financial world has been on a verge of a panic. On Wall street, New York, money on call has recently been at ninety per cent interest! All over the land the heavy yoke of a contracted currency has galled the shoulders of an unusually patient and forbearing people, but the end will come some day. What will it be? Will the people suffer from a money panic or will a relief be given?

During and subsequent to the war, money was plentiful and more was in circulation than was necessary. Since that time the policy of the Government has been to contract the currency, until now it is contracted too much and the people groan. have now, in circulation only about one fourth of the amount in circulation in 1870. North Carolina statesmen demand the repeal of the Internal Revenue. They and their people hate a war tax and are weary of its burden. They hold a compromise position, between Mr. Randall's high protective tariff, with repeal of the tobacco tax on the one hand and Mr. Carlisle's free trade aut anti-repeal position on the other. With the one they can never affiliate, because he opposes the very movement, reduction of the tariff, which would give them the necessaries at a low price. With the other they are at direct variance on the Revenue question.

Now the question arises, "Who is the man for Speaker of the next House, who will best represent the interests of North Carolina?"

As has been shown, Mr. Randall and Mr. Carlisle are both out of the question. Concerning this the State Chrontele has already expressed the opinion that the Democratic members from North Carolina should combine with such Democrats in the next House as favor the repeal of the tobacco tax, at the same time favoring a elect some man to the Speakershlp who holds the same views.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER. A Farraginous Feast of Facts Fresh From the National Capital.

pecial Correspondence of The Sentinel. WASHINGTON, D. C. Oct. 3 .- As we are slipping off into winter again the fashionable world returning to town is confronted with the annua riddle which is the sphinx of modern society-"to whom shall we send cards?" for it has been decreed that as the card is sufficient notice that they are at home and prepared to receive callers, strict care and discriminatton must be observed by fashionable circles in leaving or sending out cards. The social world each year has a sesson of prefatory activity immediately tollowing the assembling of the Su preme Court of the United States, on the second Monday in October now We don't want to know whether near at hand. It is customary for the wourt after assembling on that day, and receiving the directions of the Chief Justice, to adjourn and in a body with its officers to make a ceremonia call upon the President, to extend him the felicitations of the beginning of the active season of the official year and the approach of the period of the interming ing of the elements of social gaiety at the Capital. As the President, according to present plans, will be absent from the city, the Court will simply leave a card. A similar recognition of the rules of ceremonial etiquette is accorded to the President pro tempore of the Senate at his of-ficial place, there being no Vice Presi-The President does not return dent. the call. The President pro tempore does, upon the Chief Justice, soon after his return to the city. These dis-distinctively official calls of ceremony are followed within a week by calls of etiquette among the members of the court and their ladies, all calling upon the Chief Justice and lady first, and junior upon senior Justice, which calls are returned in the same order. After this necessary prelude of conventional etiquette has been passed, the ladies of the court are prepared to receive calls from friends beyond the court circle. From this time forward the ball of social life moves along with increasing importance and impetus, taking its grand departure on New Year's Day, culminating during the following weeks until the curtain falls

> The opinion that the approaching session of Congress will be a lively one prevails among public men of all shades of political opinion. It is now generally conceded that Mr. Carlisle will have a walk over for the speakership. Though a strong partisan, he ings, and has always commanded the respect of both sides of the House and very few would wish to see him superceded. There will be many new members in the next Congress, some of whom will undoubtedly make their mark. Knowing ones predicted that John W.Daniels, who succeeded, from Virginia, though a new Senator will be found in the front rank by reason of his public training and high standing at the bar. Indeed, it seems no longer an offense for a new Senator to take an active part in debate. The old idea which required him to remain silent for a year or two seems to have been exploded. It is quite common now for the Senator freshly invested with his toga to have his say among the old members of that body. And this reminds me of an incident of Ingalls' early days in the Senate, as related by one of the Willard Hotel "Majahs." "I guess," said the majah "that nobody has any serious doubts about the honesty of old Edmunds, but it was very comically called in question one day in the Senate by Ingails, of Kansas. A bill was up for providing for large land grants to the Kansas Pacific road. As the matter was locally of great importance to In galls' people, he made a strong argument in behalf of the bill; when he finished Edmunds slowly unwound himself and observed in his withering and drawling tone, that he should oppose the measure, not because there were no meritorious features in the bill, but because he had every reason to believe there was a strong lobby in its interests. This brought Ingalls to his feet. He looked Edmund's square in the face and then deliberately said: 'Mr. President, I am really not aware course and elect a man who will bend of any lobby organized in behalf of his theories far enough to effect an this bill; if the Senator from Vermont is so very positive on the subject, I presume the lobby knew just whom to approach." The effect was tempt to get the crust. North Crro-lina demands the abolution of excise tively a young Member of the body, ial courtesy, would have selected the last man to have crossed swords in the repartee with the sanctimonious Senator from Vermont. Edmunds was so paralyzed by the cool audacity of Heals the Sores, the attack that he could not find his Restores the tongue for a reply.

The inclosure is five pages of Bristol board, upon which the invitation is written, as well as the signatures of the commit tee delegated to present it, and these pages are uniquely ornamented with India ink sketches on the borders, of scenes and of the flora and other peculiarities of the State. There are pictures of the Cherokee rose, a variety native only to Florida, of sand dunes, surrounded with cabbage palmetto, with sea oats and sea gulls, white cranes, alligators, gray Spanish moss and sketches from nature on the St. Johns River, as well as on the shores of beautiful and romantic Lake St. George, all blended in harmonious and artistic arrangement. At the top of one of the pages there is finely drawn scene or picture of genuine Florida "cracker," driving his team to the market through the pines. He has the regular backwoods cart, drawn by a genuine Florida mule which he bestrides, his long legs reach ing nearly to the ground. All in al it is the most unique, characteristic and appropriate as well as artistic invitation received by the President.

The homeward migration of official during the past week has made a perreptable change in the activity of gov-ernment circles. Secretaries Fairchild and Whitney, who returned somewhat unexpectedly, have been closeted with the President discussing the financial situation and proposing and considering measures of relief in event of an emergency, which, how-ever, is not yet regarded as probable, though possible. The opinion still prevails that while there has existed a scarcity of money in certain quarters on account of over-activity in enterprises and business movements requiring rapid turning over or cash, the extent and prospective operations of the money famine have been overdrawn. dorf, in Lower Austria, lives Maria Haas, an intelligent and industrious woman, whose story of physical suffering and final relief, as related by herself, is of interest to English women. "I was employed," she says, "in the work of a large farmhouse. Overwork brought on sick headache, followed by a deathly fainting and sickness of the stomach, until I was unable to retain either food or drink. I was compelled to take to my bed for several weeks. Getting a little better from rest and quiet, I sought to do some work, but was soon taken with a pain in my side, which in a little while seemed to spread over my whole body, and throbbed in my every limb. This was followed by a cough and shortness of breath, until finally I could not sew, and I took to my bed for the second, and, as I thought, for the last time. My friends told me that my time had nearly come, and that I could not live longer than when the trees put on their green once more. Then I happened to get one of the Seigel pamphlets. I read it, and my dear mother bought me a bottle of Seigel's Syrup, (Shaker Extract of Roots) which I took exactly according to directions, and I had not taken the whole of it before I felt a change for the better. My last illness began June 3d, 1882, and continued to August 9th, when I began to take the Syrup. Very soon I could do a little light work. The cough left me, and I was no more troubled in breathing. Now I am perfectly cured; and oh, how happy I am! I cannot express gratitude enough for SEIGEL'S SYRUP (Shaker Extract of Roots). Now I must tell you that the doctors in our district distributed handbills cautioning the people against the medicine, selling them it would do no good, and many were thereby influenced to destroy the Seigel pamphlets; but now, whenever one is to be found, it is kept like a relic. The few preserved are borrowed to r. al, and I have lent mine for six miles around our district. People have come eighteen miles to get me to buy the medicine for them, knowing that it cured me, and to be sure to get the right kind. I know a woman who was looking like death, and who told them there was no help for her, that she had consulted several doctors, but none could help her. I told her of Seigel's Syren and wrote the mine down for her that she might make no mistake. She took my advice and the Syrup, and now she is in perfect health, and the people around us are amazed. The medicine has made such progress in our neighborhood that people say they don't want the doctor any more, but they take the Syrup. Sufferers from gout who were confined to their beds and could hardly move a finger have been cured by it. There is a girl in Witnesser the little bell rang, which is rung in our place when anybody is dead, we thought surely it was for her; but Seigel's Syrup and Pills (Shaker Extract of Roots) saved her life and now she is as healthy as neglectly goes to church, and can work even in the fields. Everybody was astonished when they saw her out buowing ow many years she had been in bed. To-day she add to gratitude to mine for God smar and Scigel's Syrup. Ma o dass.
