state that the Southern officials are now investigating to see what is the the best thing to do. The proposed line from Reidsville via Winston would shorten the line from Washington to Atlanta several miles. While this is true, the present main line, via Greensboro, has so many side-tracks that it would not require a vast amount of money to connect them, thereby making a double track. The present situation is such that something must be done and that at an early date. The Southern is handing so many trains on the main line that some of them are delayed almost Tobacco Barn Burned.

While curing a barn of tobacco Thursday, Mr. George Glass, who lives about six miles northeast of Greensboro, stepped to the house a few minutes and while he was away the barn caught fire. The tobacco being dry and hot, in a moment the flames enveloped the whole building, destroy-ing it in a short space of time.

How the First North Carolina Regi ment Received the News

A letter from one of the soldier boys at Jacksonville says that orders were received at corps headquarters between the hours of 11 and 12 o'clock Tuesday, to the effect that the First North Carolina Regiment would be retained in the service of the United States and would remain in the seventh corps which would be sent to Cuba. The news was telephoned to Regimental Headquarters and spread like wild fire

The order was welcomely received by some, while others were sadly disappointed by the change being made. The matter has brought the entire
