LESS THAN A LIVING

What do you consider a bare living for yourself and family? Gov-ernment statistics have tried to figure this out, if you haven't. They have estimated, according to the cost of living in different cities, just how much it costs to feed, clothe and house the average family of man, wife, and a couple of children, at the most economical level, without any trimmings or luxuries or even a second-hand car. This "maintenance level," as the WPA researchers call it, calls for an income ranging from $1,190.90 a year in Mobile, Ala., to $1,502.29 a year in New York City. In other words, in any of the larger cities of the United States, a family must have an income of at least from $22.90 to $28.89 a week—and have it every week in the year—to be able to eke out a bare existence.

Yet the Survey of Current Business of the U. S. Dept. of Com-merce shows that in the last year the average wage of boot and shoe workers ranged from less than $16 to a little more than $19 a week. Textile workers got from $16.36 to $17.72 a week; lumber and saw-mill workers from $17.08 to $19.45. The average for all American factory workers was only from $24.01 to $25.81 a week. If most American factory workers with a family to support can live at only a bare maintenance level even when working steadily, what can be said for the level of existence of those millions who are laid can be said for the level of existence of those millions who are laid off much of the time or are unemployed?

People can and do exist for a time at less than a living wage, but only at a cost of malnutrition, stunted growth, ill-health and today are lower in stamina than those who were drafted in the World War: that they are less able to withstand hardship, fatigue and disease. The reasons given, according to the United States News, are soft living, automobiles, bad and irregular habits.

Those reasons, while they may affect some young men, appear incomplete.

How about poverty? How about unemployment?

How about slums?

How about lack of sufficient nourishing food?

You can't bar 30 or 40 million people from regular family incomes for a whole decade without impairing the stamina of the young and the not so young.

This is one of the reasons why organized labor has been lustily hollering, all these 10 years, for a genuine effort to abolish unemployment .-- Summit County Labor News.

BEGAN MONDAY

DRIVE PLANNED BY WAGE-HOUR BY WAGE-HOUR BY WAGE-HOUR MONDAY

Fifteen inspectors of the Federal Wage and Hour Division met in Charlotte Saturday with Fred Coxe, senior inspector, to receive last min-ute instructions on a five-industry, compliance drive which began Mon-day morning in the Carolinas and throughout the nation. Industries to be covered in the and luggage, boots and shoes, hosiery and woolen goods. The inspection in the Carolinas will be under the super-vision of Mr. Coxe. October 1 has been set as the date for the completion of the inspection. The concentrated inspection of these industries is the second step in the Wage and Hour Division's drive to obtain compliance with the Fair
