ILGWU BRANDS SOVIET FOREIGN POLICY "MOST SERIOUS THREAT" TO WORLD PEACE

Cleveland — The convention of the International Ladies Garment Workers Union adopted a resolution branding Soviet foreign policy as "the most serious threat to world peace." Only three of the convention's 900 delegates voted against the declaration.

The resolution urged that trade-union representatives be drawn into the American diplomatic corps as one means of insuring that our own foreign policy would be free of any taint of imperialism.

The convention's foreign-policy declaration accused Russia of following an "imperialist" and "expansionist" course in its relation with smaller nations, of maintaining a worldwide fifth column and of undermining the prestige and authority of the United Nations. It backed the Baruch plan for the control of atomic energy and hailed the granting of independence to the Philippines, India and Burma as signs that the United States and Great Britain were putting aside imperialism.

After the resolution had been adopted David Dubinsky, president, chided delegates from two Los Angeles locals for failing to take the floor in opposition to the statement. The locals had submitted resolutions condemning the Truman Doctrine and urging greater co-operation with Russia.

Mr. Dubinsky said both Los Angeles resolutions had been written by the Communist party and not by ILGWU members. He charged further that the failure of the Los Angeles delegates to rise in support of their measures was based on outside orders, rather than on a desire to avoid discord in the organization.

"I expect our delegates will take instructions only from the members—and nowhere else," Mr. Dubinsky shouted.

On the recommendation of its international relations committee, headed by Israel Feinberg of New York, the convention called for enactment of the Stratton bill to permit the entry into this country of 400,000 displaced persons during the next four years.

A few simple precautions often are the difference between a perfect vacation and a vacation marred by discomfort or accident:

Learn to identify poison oak and poison ivy.

Rest after meals, before plunging into the water.

Don't go boating in strange water unless you and your companions are all excellent swimmers.

Beware of getting too much sun too fast. Why not have your skin beautifully tanned before vacation begins by means of an inexpensive, easy-to-use G-E Sun Lamp?

And, now... enjoy every minute of the two weeks that add zest and efficiency to the other fifty!
