Southern 'Cheap Labor' Said Not To Be Cause Of Industrial Movement

Claims by our Southern "Republicrats" that cheap labor is essential to the industrial expansion of the South have been disproved—disproved by industrialists themselves.

A report by the National Planning Association says that plants locating in the South are interested in, first, the good markets offered by the region; second, available raw materials in the area; and third, the Labor Supply.

The report comments: "Labor came up third—which may be a surprise to many. But the Committee turned up even more surprising information: New plants were usually not after cheap labor; they wanted labor supply itself and low labor costs—quite a different thing."

The report, "New Industry Comes to the South," was made by the Association's Committee of the South. It is based on painstaking research, not emotional appeals which most Southern Congressmen are in opposition to Wage Hour Measures.

The Committee studied 88 plants built in the South since the end of World War II. They are in 13 states: Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Mississippi, North Carolina, Oklahoma, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas and Virginia.

The study was published as most Southern Congressmen and Senators continued their attack on the expansion of wage-hour legislation.

Their arguments run like this: Southern businessmen cannot afford to pay such "high" minimum wages as 75 cents or $1 an hour. (That amounts to the "luxury" rate of pay of $30 to $40 a week for 40 hours work.) To attract industry from the Northeast, the South must hold down its pay scales.

But the report says, "... Available Labor and satisfactory Labor attitudes were more important to these companies than the South's alleged cheap labor."

"This survey indicates that companies operating plants in both the North and South pay roughly the same wage rates in towns of equivalent size. ... "With few exceptions, those companies that are paying lower wages in their Southern than in their Northern plants told the Committee that they would not have risked their funds in a new Southern location simply because of the wage-scale differences. They considered these differences only temporary. ... "Many ... companies knew their plants would be Unionized, and therefore were anxious to locate in a town that had a history of good Labor-Management relationships. ... "A few apparel, shoe, and textile plants were located in certain communities in order to try to avoid Labor Unions. ... But, on the whole, the companies with Unionized plants elsewhere placed little or no stress on avoiding Unions."

TRUMAN LABOR BILL LOOKS LIKE THE TAFT-HARTLEY ACT DUPLICATE

WASHINGTON. — The Senate today added three amendments to President Truman's labor bill and thereby made it look a little more like the Taft-Hartley act. The senators approved all three proposals by voice votes without any audible "noes."

But despite the amendments, the administration bill still was far from identical with the T-H act. It did not contain a long array of T-H features like the use of injunctions to delay strikes and the bans on closed shop contracts, mass picketing and certain other union activities.

The three amendments, sponsored by a bi-partisan group, would do these things:

1. Make it illegal for a union to refuse to bargain in good faith. The administration bill already contained a requirement that employers must bargain. The amendment had the effect of imposing the same duty on both sides, as in the Taft-Hartley law.
2. Guarantee freedom of speech in labor relations unless the speech in question contains threats or promises of benefits. The amendment is similar to, but not identical with a Taft-Hartley provision.
3. Require both unions and companies, if they want to take cases before the National Labor Relations board, to file annual financial reports. The Taft-Hartley law requires only unions to do this.

Considering of a fourth amendment on non-Communist oaths was deferred until tomorrow. It was expected to pass like the others.

July's sultry days move your electric fan, or fans, right to the center of the summer stage ... so a little tryout is in order.

If your fan is stubborn about starting the first time you use it, disconnect it and spin the blades by hand a few times. Last summer's oil may have congealed or hardened during the months of storage.

If the motor is noisy, oil with a good grade of light, non-gummy oil.

Keep all parts wiped free of dust.

Be sure connecting cord and plug are in good condition.

Be sure a fan in use is always placed out of the way of passing feet, reaching hands, and fluttering garments.

IT WILL BE GOOD NEWS

when appliances are available again. In the meantime, you can plan to have your wiring brought up to date. The Duke Power Company wiring engineers invite you to consult them.
