REASONABLE DOUBT
 The Loyalty Review Board re-opened the cases of 545 Federal employes for a recheck under its new rule that a "reasonable doubt" of loyalty is sufficient to cause dismissal from government jobs. The new ruling was first invoked by the board in the John W. Service case. It found a "reasonable doubt" as to Service's loyalty after the veteran State Department official had been cleared in 9 previous inquiries. Service was promptly dismissed.

CHARLOTTE OBSERVER
INAUGURATES NEW RETIREMENT PLAN

 The Charlotte Observer and the Carolinas by these fine people throughout their many years of employment are very greatly appreciated." Ralph Nicholson, editor and publisher, said in making the announcement. "We wish them all many happy years of leisure secure in the knowledge that the great newspaper they helped create has provided them with substantial lifetime pensions.

The December 31 Observer had the following to say regarding the individuals retired:
JOINED OBSERVER IN 1917
 Mr. Parham was managing editor of The Observer from 1917 to 1941. He has been associate editor since 1941. The Observer's circulation at the time he came to it 33 years ago from the Wilmington Star was slightly above 14,000 daily and 17,000 on Sunday.

Mr. White has been with The Observer 24 years. He came here in 1926 from The Knoxville Sentinel. He was Observer mechanical superintendent from 1926 to 1948 and has been production manager since the latter date. He served two terms as member of the City Council and is now chairman of a city-council commission studying the operation of Good Samaritan Hospital and the general problem of Negro hospitalization.

Mr. Rouser is completing his 23rd year in The Observer advertising department, and for the last 15 years he has been national advertising manager. During his tenure The Observer's lineage of national advertising has grown to exceed that of any other daily newspaper between Richmond, Va., and Atlanta, Ga.

Mrs. Abernethy, society editor of The Observer for many years, has been chronicling activities of Charlotte women since 1924. The wedding stories she has written would, if placed end to end, stretch out over a radius embracing much of the area The Observer serves.

25 YEARS IN NEWS ROOM
 Mr. Spencer has been with the newspaper 25 years, and during a major portion of this time he has presided over the circular desk across which flows news and features coming from the wires of The Associated Press, and North American Newspaper Alliance.

Mr. Blakeney has been an Observer proof reader the last 22 years, a veteran of the department which has the responsibility for preventing errors from getting into print.

Mr. Ferguson is a veteran of 20 years of service as an Observer linotype operator, the job of converting editorial, news and feature copy into lines of lead type.
