THREESCORE AND TEN.

Threscore and ten! How the time rolls Nearing the limitless sea;

Bearing the voyager over life's flood To boundless eternity. On through the childhood's sunny hours. On through youth with its golden flowers, On through manhood's ripened powers, Till age appears,

With its crown of years nd the time-worn mariner sighing for rest Anchors at last in the port of the blest.

Threescore and ten! How the rolling years storm.

Earth's joy into sorrow must fade, pring with its bloom and perfume sped rait-laden summer quickly fled Autumn came with weary tread, Fent with the load Of treasured food-And then stern winter, with frosty breath, Throws over the fields the pall of death.

THE SOUTH AS A FIELD FOR SPECU-LATION.

Among the wealthy men of England, and among the wealthy men of time awaiting opportunities for remuerative investment, If the men who oll that capital in hand could but be made as familiar with the inviting advantages offered in the South as ill southern men are, they would reak up their profitless gold gorges and pour their money into the old slave States in such torrents as would oon cause the whole southern and to glow with the warmth of thrift and cheerfullness again. In England, and in the northern Stataes of this Union, the fields for speculation have been so long and so vell worked that it is rather excepional than otherwise for an opportunity for large and speedy returns rom any safe investment to present tself so boldly as to command the confidence of capital. In these southern States it is very different ; for all through the South, from the Potomac o the Gulf of Mexico, there may be ound, almost without looking for hem, suca occasions for most lucraive investment as, presenting themelves where the capitalists live. would be caught at with eagerness and improved to the highest ultimate dvantage. Whether the man with noney may prefer to invest with refcrence to agriculture, in any of its arred features, or to manufacturing or to mining, there is no other region of the habitable globe in which he can be made more sure of success than in these old slave States where the lands are cheap because the owners, impovished by the late war, are unable to cultivate them as in other tays; where the facilities for manufacturing, extraordinarily offered on every hand, are unutilized by the ative people because the native people have not the money to make them vailable; and where the mineral resources, just beginning to be developed, represent in themselves coming authous of money and tell too plainly of the South's long neglect of the great riches lying at her feet. In adlition to all this, the vast forests of the southern States are entitled to conspicuous claim to high consideration; for the woods of the new world are no longer looked upon as valuetess incumerances of the earth to be enjoyed only by the wild animals innaoiting them, but they are attractcome yet.

The opportunities and advantages are the results of the war by which the whole southern land was sudden. ty brought down from prosperity to poverty.
