FROM THE PERSIAN.

Faithful friends, it lies, I know, Pale, and white, and cold as snow; And ye say-Abdaliah's dead-Weeping at the feet and head, I can see your falling tears. I can hear your sighs and prayers, Yet I smile and whisper this; "Cease your tears and let it lie, It was mine, it is not I."

Sweet friends, what the women lave For the last sleep of the grave, Is a but which I am quitting, Is a garment no more fitting. Is a cage from which at last, Lille a bird my soul has passed. Love the minate not the room; The wearer, not the garb-the plume Of the eagle not the bars That keep him from the splendid stars.

Loving friends; oh rise and dry Straightway every weeping eye; What ye lift upon the bier Is not worth a single tear, 'Tis an empty sea-shell-ene Out of which the pearl is gone. The shell is broken, it lies there; The pearl, the soul, the all is here. 'Tis an earthen jar whose lid Allah sealed the while it hid That treasure of his treasury, A mind that leved him; I tit he. Let the shards be earth once more, Since the gold is in his store.

Where I go you, too, shall dwell, I am gone before your face-A moment's worth, a little space, When you come where I have slept, You will wonder why you went: You will know, by true love taught, That here is all and there is naught.

I Am Great and You are Small.

- A sparrow swinging on a branch Once caught a passing fly; "Oh let me live!" the msect prayed, With trembling, piteous cry.
- The bird had scarce begun his feast

For I am great and you are small."

- Before a hawk came by:
- Was new the spatrow's crv. For I am great and you are small."
- An eagle saw the rogue and swooped Upon him from on high-"Pray let me live; why should you kill
- So small a bird as 1?"
- Oh." said the eagle, "you must fall, For I am great and you are small."
- But while he ate. the hunter came: He let his arrow fly.
- "Tyrant!" the eagle shricke !, "you have
- No right to make me die!" For I am great and you are small."
