2. It is vulgar--altogether too low for a decent boy.

3. It is cowardly-implying a fear of not being believed or obeyed. 4. It is ungentlemanly. A gentleman, according to Webster is a genteel man-well-bred, refined.

The Old Homestead.

Homestead, published at Savannah. Ga., by Dayis Bros., the fourth since its inception, is an indication that the purposes of its projectors have been carried out. Its aim was to encourage southern literature, to develop southern talent, and to stimulate those domestic virtuethat inherently and inseperably belong to southern homes. The pab lication has for contributors some of the best and most gifted writers in the South, and the faith the people have in it has been demonstrated by the phenomenal growth of its subscription list, which now foots up 20,000. Fascinating serials, com plete stories, entertaining sketches, Patent Roller Family Flour poems, children's page, puzzle de partment, and select music constitute its attractions. There is no handsomer magazine publishd, and the subscription price-fifty cents a year-enables every family in the South to have it in its home. The September number will contain the opening chapters of the purest, most refined, and fascinating serial ever published in the South. It was written for The Old Homestead by Miss M. E. Dicken of Baltimore, the authoress of "The Beautiful Icicle," which delighted thousands of readers of the New York Weekly.
