W. H. KITCHIN. 5 T if.

And load thee with dispraise-Thou wert born five hundred years too SUGH

For the comfort of thy days, But not too soon for human kind. Time hath reward in store, And the demons of our sires become The saints that we adore. The blind can see, the slave is lord, So round and round we run,

And ever the wrong is proved to b wrong, And ever is justice done.

Keep, Galileo, to thy thought, And nerve thy soul to bear, They may gloat o'er the senseless words they wring From the pange of thy despair; not hide The sun's meridian glow--The heel of a priest may tread thee down, And a tyrant work thee wee, But never a truth has been destroyed. They may curse and call it crime, Pervert and betray or slander and slay Its teachers for a time;

But the sunshine e'er shall light the sky, As round and round we run, And truth shall ever come uppermost, And justice shall be done.

With thoughts like the great of old? Many have died in their misery And left their thoughts untold; And many live and are ranked as mad, And placed in the old world's ban, For sending their bright, far-seeing souls Three centuries in the van. They toll in penury and grief Unknown, if not maligned-Forlorn, forlorn, bearing the scorn Of the meanest of mankind. But yet the world goes round and round, And the genial seasons run, And ever the truth comes uppermost, And ever is justice done.
