My Books.

—My poor man's My Heart
Wardlaw's large on higher thought.
I have a book for you on the
In these few volumes you behold
I could not give more than gold.
Though they are but poor, indeed
No more I ask—no more I need.

These, only for my every need.
Let all companions drink and feed
Are also true for heart and brain,
And useful to the physician's pain.

The noblest knight—so strong and mild—
The fairest dame that ever smiled,
The truest chivalry that ever died,
The merry life that ever lived,
Come down and cheer me round my board
And bid me drink, at a word.

For you will share with me the stage
With much of every time and age.
For you will share with me the life,
And share with me the world's strife.

Some eyes were once so bright and true,
And greatly did I love to see
The darkest hours will quickly fly,
Chained by the talons of the night.

Some nights I sleep, I sleep in bliss,
With that sad prophetic, Gill Blas:
And what what hours of pure delight
I spend in the arms of my dear wife!

To contemplate and study self—
I take a Kempis from the shelf.
Then, O ye miners, long your gold!
Ye cannot buy my wealth so sold.

O ye teachers, hold your tongues!
Ye weary me and hurt your lungs.
O ye who seek, shoulder, slay,
To save me in peace, your sweat and pray.

And gently did I love to see
The darkest hours will quickly fly,
Chained by the talons of the night.

THE SOUTH.

ITS PRESENT AND ITS FUTURE.

Richmond Dispatch.
The South is a conservator both in finance and politics. Its material development will be to the advantage of the whole country and the battle it is fighting on behalf of free-trade, if successful, will be of enduring benefit to the people of all sections.

The time has passed for us to be contemptuously treated as "the States lately in rebellion." Given a fair chance we will show the world clearer than ever, not only that we have material resources of extraordinary value, but men with the industry, pluck, and skill to develop them.

Our misfortunes in the war and our environments at its close prevented us from springing forward with the elasticity of the great West, but we have been tugging along steadily and will make greater and greater strides as we approach the top of the hill. If reckless partisanship can be put aside the time will soon come when the North and West will be proud of us and when all will realize that the Union is something more than a name.

From the middle of December to the 10th of January there is always a tightness in the money market, owing to the preparations which railroads, banks, insurance companies, and other corporations and firms make to accumulate money to pay their dividends, interest, or other obligations, and we need expect no "loose times" until after that period, but this over and no untoward occurrence intervening, we shall expect Virginia and the South to leap forward and move on at a pretty pace.

There are hundreds of intelligent northern men who have recently become interested in southern prospects, and to these we have the right to look for help. They ought to try to shut the mouths of some of the fanatics. They can say that the South is a wheel-horse at the chariot of American progress, with the desired chance we will not only get rich, but make our friends rich.

Unless Congress deliberately murders our prospect 1891 will be a grand year for the South, and consequently for the whole country.

Cut Feed For Horses.

(Times-Democrat.)
The London Omnibus company found that three thousand horses fed on sixteen pounds of ground oats, seven and one-half pounds of cut hay and one-half pound of cut straw did as much good work and kept in as good condition as another three thousand fed on nineteen pounds of neat hay, thus saving by grinding the grain and cutting the feed six pounds of feed per day, or a saving in the feeding of three thousand horses, amounting to $300 per day.

NASHVILLE, April, 3, 1890
Radham's Microbe Killer Co.,
Nashville, Tenn.:

Gentlemen—My wife has been suffering for seven years with an over-riding tumor; has been treated by our best physicians and has been twice. In July last the doctor said they would have to use heroic measures and perform an operation which was very dangerous. Having heard of the Microbe Killer, we would not consent to the operation until we had given it a trial. I procured a jug at once and after two days my wife began to improve and she has improved very rapidly ever since. She has been reduced in size nearly three inches, seems strong and well, and is able to do her own work. It is something she has not done for five years. We consider it a most wonderful medicine and believe it will do all you claim for it.

Respectfully,
H. P. Post.

TRUCK FARMING.

EASTERN CAROLINA ESPECIALLY ADAPTED TO THIS INDUSTRY.

Argosian.
The conditions which are most favorable for the profitable cultivation of vegetables and fruits for market, are a suitable soil, early maturity, cheap labor, and rapid transportation. All these conditions exist in Eastern North Carolina to a greater extent than at any other point on the Atlantic coast. Only eighteen hours from New York, we can put our vegetables and fruits in any of the Northern markets in a condition as fresh as the localities near by. In this particular, as well as in the cost of transportation we have largely the advantage of the States South of us, and the consequence is, that although Florida vegetables get in market ahead of us, they do not bring any better price than those shipped from North Carolina, from the fact that they are not so fresh. It is also true that when the distance is so great, a large quantity is lost from decay before reaching market. As our vegetables get in market ahead of those shipped from any point North of us, and yet get there in a fresh and nice condition, we get much better prices. Thus it will be seen that Eastern North Carolina, as to location, occupies the most desirable position of any State on the Atlantic coast.

The soil of this section is specially suited for trucking. It is warm and friable, and easily cultivated, and susceptible of a very high state of improvement. The experiments which have been made, fully demonstrate that no better, or more suitable soil for the purpose can anywhere be found.
