ADVERTISEMENT OF A LONE DAY

BY MRS. LYDIA H. SIGOURNEY.

Lost! lost! lost! A Gem of countless price. Cut from the living rock. And graved in Paradise.

Large diamonds clear and bright. Lost-where the thoughtless throng In fashion's makes wind. Where trilleth folly's song, Leaving a sting behind: Yet to my hand, 'twas given

Set round with three times eight

A golden harp to bur. Such as the white-robed choir *ttune To deathless minstrelsy

Lost! lost! lost! I feel all search in fair That gem of countless cost Can ne'er be mine again; I offer no reward,

For, till these heart-strings sever I know that neaven-in rusted gift Is reft away forever.

But when the sea and land Like burning scroll have fled. I'll see it in His hand Who judgeth quick and dead; And when of scathe and loss, That men can ne'er repair, The dread inquiry meets my soul. What shall I answer there?

The cobra warning is unmistakable-be dilates the crest upon his neck and gives a hiss loud enough to be heard distinctly fifty feet away. The cobra's crest is a flexible membrane or hood with two black circulars joined together so as to form a very good representation of a pair of spectacles. When the bood or crest is in position its eyes seem to blaze with an impish lustre, and the contiqued hissing gives the very air a noisome smell.
