A CALM REVIEW.

IV.

If every one had felt like the rank and file of the Populists felt immediately after the election in 1892, there would perhaps have been little more enthusiasm worked up for the new party. For they were in a hopeless minority and there was nothing in the outlook for those who did most of the voting but defeat as often as they should attempt to elect nominees as they did in conference. in that election.

But those who set out some years before to entrap the good farmers of the State into a snare that would work out great advantages to the few who were thus plotting, were not willing to give it up. So they kept up their senseless tirades of abuse of any and evagain.

disappointed or soured Democrats.

Many of the evils which these calamity howlers portrayed were real ones, but such as no political creed nor power of party on earth could remedy. They were purely and simply logical effects which follwed certain causes Many of the evils also complained of were simply imaginary and did not exist at all. For instance, one year ago, many laboring men in North Carolina, who labored for monthly wages, were amongst those who were loudest in their clamors for "a new deal," because they said they could not live on the wages they were receiving, because forecoth, cotton was selling low, and perhaps they had never sold a bale in their lives. The truth is, the man who was receiving monthly wages was in better condition than he had ever been because he was receiving almost as much as he did 10 years before and could purchase twice as much with a dollar as he could 10 years before. But the larger the number dissatisfied the howl.

The Democratic party, it will be remembered, had been in power in North Carolina for many years; and although there was a great howl all over the State, not a single man could lodge an intelligent objection against our State government. The Republican party was glad enough to see so much un- (Correspondence to THE DEMOCRAT.) rest throughout the State, for they began to hope in the adage that "It is an ill wind that blows nobody good."

So it began to appear that inasmuch as the new party could not pos- ry's hall a few evenings ago for the pur-Republican party might make a proposition, either directly or indirectly to join forces and thus beat the Democrats. HOW SHALL WE SHOW IT?

Is it a fact that Scotland Neck and community present advantages to those who desire to move from other sections of the country? Is it a fact that here are advantages for investors and those seeking to find pleasant homes? "Yes," says everyone. Well, then, how shall we let it be known? our community the attention of those who are looking for new homes in new places? Can anything be done?

What can the Business Men's Association do?

Let it be a matter of concern to every man for one week and then let's make some new effort. What say you?

SUPREME COURT DECISION.

In the case carried before the Supreme court last week concerning the better it promised to work for the new assignment law, the opinion was shysters and tricksters; so they howled given that the new law applied only to mysterious cause?
