Washington and his Mother.

-Chicago Times-Herale

General A. W. Greely, in considering 'The Personal Side of Washington' in April Ladies' Home Journal, brings to bear interesting light upon him as son, husband, neighbor, business man slave owner (as were nearly all Virginia land-owners in his day), and Christian. With respect to the charges that Washington was neither a dutiful nor lovin son, General Greely says:

A MERCIFUL DEED.

A STORY OF LINCOLN An Incident in Connection With the Western Pennsylvania Draft.

Public interest in the deeds and words of Abraham Lincoln seems to in erease as the years come and go. Mr. Speed, of Kentucky, has been giving McClure's Magazine some personni reminiscences which haver never before appeared in print. This selection will be read with interest.

"The last time I saw him was about wo weeks before his assissination. He sent me word by my brother James then in his cabinet, that he desired no see me before I went home. I went nto his office about eleven o'clock. He looked jaded and weary I stayed in the room until his hour for callers was over.
