A HOPEFUL SIGN.

the cotton crop for the past two or three weeks, the various schools and colleges of the State have opened well. And this is a hopeful sign.

Those who were disposed to sling mud at the opposers of the township special tax for tree schools voted on 10th of August, can not now say that the people of the State are indifferent to their educational interests. We doubt not that there will be a larger number of young men and young women registered at the high schools and colleges in the State by the first of October than has been for many yearsperhaps since the war.

We like the spirit of independence and self-help that seems to be taking hold upon the young men of the State, and in many cases the young women too. We have all the while believed and preached that any young man or young woman in this country who has a strong right arm, a fair stock of common sense and a strong will, may become educated if he or she so desires. And we are glad to believe that many of the young men who have helped to swell the opening numbers at the various colleges of the State, are forging away in defiance to difficulties and obstacles and discouragements. It is from such young men that the State and society often receive the most yalnable additions to an educated manhood. We rejoice in the fine opening of all the colleges and schools, and we can but feel that it augurs well for the State at large as well as for each sepa rate community; for in a few years the leaven must necessarily work out good and grand results which will be felt in every part of the State.

Honor to the faithful teachers in the fand who stand at their post year in and year out; but let them remember that their positions as instructors and molders of the mind and character and life of their pupils, calls for work that is honest to the core every day and every hour, from opening call to dismissal bell.

Much depends upon our schools everywhere; and let it be fully recognized by all interested in or connected with

THE HAZLETON HORROR.

On the little sheet, COMMONWEALTH JUNIOR, we give partial details of most horrifying slaughter of miners near Hazlelon, Pa.

More than twenty miners were killed and about fifty others wounded. They were foreigners, but men all the same and such whole-sale killing ought to be avoided. They were interred Monday in the Polish church yard under the auspices of the Catholic church.

WHAT OF THE COTTON CROP!

Inasmuch as the cotton crop is the chief money crop in a greater part of North Carolina, people all over the State are anxious about the yield. This is the case every year, and it is especially so this year in view of the fine prospect a few weeks ago, but which has been cut off very much by the se vere drought throughout the State.

The Commissioner of Agriculture at Raleigh has given out the following other to THE COMMONWEALTH. personal opinion of the cotton crop as reported to the state press by Col. F. A.

"You can say for me, a farmer of thirty years experience, that if the seasons are right in June, July and August in spite of arought and everything else the crop of cotton will be an average one, I don't care what happens. Of course when people pitched their hopes so high and cotton was so magnificent, as it was August 1st, it appears to them now as if the crop is pretty nearly destroyed, The August return gave the condition as 1021. That was so from the 1st to the 10th of that month. He wilfully disobeyed orders and took the life of many people thereby.

It is said that twelve bolls to a stalk will produce a bale to the acre. I want you to note the fact that cotton this year 18 heavily fruited." By this the commissioner means to say that he considers the crop up to the average. There was of course an increase in the acreage of cotton, a big increase. Then, too. 400, 000 tons of commercial fertilizers was sold in the state last spring.
