HAIR So many persons have hair that is stubborn and dull. It won't grow. What's the reason? Hair needs help just as anything else does at times. The roots require feeding. When hair stops growing it loses its luster. It looks dead. Ayer's Hair Vigor acts almost instantly on such hair. It awakens new life in the hair bulbs. The effect is astonishing. Your hair grows, becomes thicker, and all dandruff is removed. And the original color of early life is restored to faded or gray hair. This is always the case. $1.00 a bottle. All druggists.

THE EDITOR'S LEISURE HOURS. Points and Paragraphs of Things Present, Past and Future. This is the season that crowds almost every train with school boys and school girls making their way to the various schools and colleges which they attend. Great responsibility rests upon them, for they are to be held accountable for the manner in which they utilize their opportunities. Three accounts they must give: to themselves, their parents or guardians, and to their God. To be sure, with this view every boy and girl should make the best possible record. Just so! The Populist have commenced to organize Populist McKinley clubs. The papers say that last week the first such club in the State was organized in Swift Creek township, Wake county. More than five years ago THE COMMONWEALTH took time and pains to review in a series of articles, twelve in number, the conditions that brought into existence the Populist party, its support, its tendencies, and we predicted its results. We said then, and it has come true as a prophecy, that the Populist party would finally become allied with the Republican party. Every indication has pointed in that direction from that time until now; and no man with any observation at all can deny that what was once the Populist party in North Carolina has become so completely merged into the Republican party one can no longer draw the distinction.

NEW POE CONTROVERSY. Assertion That the Poet Was Born In Norfolk. HIS PARENTS STRANDED THERE. I recently visited Fordham, where the quaint old cottage stands with its gable end to the street, and on which has been placed an ornamental metallic plate bearing the inscription, "Poe Cottage," and the figure of a raven, beneath which are 1844-49, the term of Poe's residence in New York and occupation of the cottage. Handsome dwellings have been erected in the locality, which are known as Poe villas, and are owned and rented by people of wealth and culture. The scheme of preserving the cottage, beautifying its surroundings and attaching Poe's name to the charming area is indeed a touching memorial to the poet. STORY OF AN UNPUBLISHED POEM. It may not be generally known that Poe wrote a poem of keenest satire, the publication of which for some reason now unknown, he suppressed. To substantiate this assertion I will state the following facts: In the early sixties I formed the acquaintance of a gentleman whose mother adopted Poe's sister at the time that Mr. Allan, of Richmond, adopted Edgar. The former gentleman and Poe were intimately associated from childhood up to the time of the poet's death. On a certain occasion he remarked to me that 'the best poem Poe ever wrote had never been published,' and recited it to me then, and several times afterward. It was a merciless satire, of perhaps twelve or fourteen stanzas, concerning a rival in a love affair who was a dry goods clerk in Richmond. I am strongly of the opinion that my friend told me that the original manuscript of the poem had been preserved by his family. It might, by proper effort, be secured and given to the world. There is another matter which suggests itself in connection with the poet a matter which I do not refer to except after a long consideration, and one which has received the attention and careful investigation of certain men prominent in the literary world. This is concerning the birthplace of the poet. BIRTHPLACE OF POE. Of course it has ever been recognized as a fact beyond question that Poe was born in Boston. But there are men of conservative judgment, widely known by reason of their high rank in literature, who, after having made exhaustive investigation, claim that the poet was born in Norfolk, Va. The following facts have led to this conclusion: Poe's parents were members of the theatrical profession, and a short while before the date of the poet's birth a company by which the father was engaged became stranded in the above city. The Poes remained in Norfolk for several weeks after the company disbanded, and during this period a child was born to them in the old home-stead of my family, where they had been invited to reside during their stay in Norfolk. It is claimed that the child was the first of the two children born to the parents; that Edgar was older than his sister, and, therefore, that it was he who was born at the above place and time. The little family went on to Boston shortly afterward, and it is plausibly stated that it might have been with a view to eliminating all association of their straitened pecuniary condition at the time with the event of the birth of their child that Boston, where they were soon happily situated, was claimed by the parents to be the birthplace of the infant. The above theory has been maintained for many years by men whose judgment cannot be lightly regarded, but this is, perhaps, the first time that it has been presented for public consideration. CHARLES E. FORREST.

A Talk With Parents. CHILDREN--WHAT SHALL WE DO FOR THEM? It is very common for parents to say all they can in this world's goods and give it to their children. This within itself is right, provided we neglect no other duty to them. Surely boys and girls starting out in life need help, but how shall we help them? Generally speaking there are two ways--with property and with training. Now, which is best? There is danger of inherited wealth doing the child more harm than good. Nearly two years ago I knew a young man who inherited $2,000 life insurance money upon the death of his widowed mother. He had a farm when he inherited this. To-day his money is all gone and his farm under mortgage and he is known in his town and community as a reckless, dissipated young man. His vices are much stronger than before, while his physical and mental powers are weakened. He had very little intellectual or moral training, hence the result. Again it may be unexpectedly swept away in a few minutes. In the little village where I was going to school a few years ago, the alarm of fire was given one night, and hurrying to the scene I found a block of four stores burning. It was impossible to stop the fire until they were burned. One man owned all of the buildings and a large stock of goods in one of the buildings, and I can never forget how sadly he walked away a short distance and sat down and cried like a child. His wealth was gone. So we see wealth may cause dissipation and not only leave the person without money, but ruined for life and his soul doomed in eternity, alas! it may be swept away in a few hours. But how about the mental training? Did you ever see a boy or girl whose mental and moral nature was trained who was injured by it? You may say educated men make the meanest men in the world. Some of them do, hence the necessity of being sure your children are trained under Christian influences and by Christian teachers--those who realize that every child will make the world better or worse, and above all that every sane child has an immortal soul to be saved or doomed to destruction, and that the teacher is largely responsible for the kind of life the child is to live. It is true that training gives power, and of course a child's power is increased and what might have been a common thief (as in case of negroes) may become a highway robber or burglar, but when the spiritual is not neglected training is free from any danger. Then it is that the evil tendencies are checked and men and women are raised up who will uplift their fellow creatures and whose lives will stand for something. I have heard many people say they regretted having neglected their opportunities to secure an education while young, but I have never heard any one express regret at having secured a good education. Did you? Now, there are three special places to train them, home, day school and Sunday-school, each very important, but I will not discuss these now. It is often true that an uneducated man has more property than his educated neighbor, but a trained mind is capable of making a living and really doesn't need so much amassed, and then comes the additional pleasure of understanding so many of nature's problems as well as helping others. A trained mind does not mean one learned only in books. His mind may be trained at the work bench or in the machine shop, but if possible it should always be trained in books first so that it is better fitted for the profession. Then, if an investment in the mind is always safe and profitable and property is not, why don't parents always invest that way? You take the pictures of the poor starving inhabitants of India and show them to the people and they respond liberally, and I am truly glad they do, take the poor crippled child and our sympathy is touched, so naturally a parent seeing the need of food and clothing for the physical needs of the child makes sacrifices to furnish these temporal necessities, but not being able to see the mind and see its poor, emaciated, starving condition we are never moved to supply the mental food. Poor child! The talent which he has has not even been put out at usury, so it is taken away and given to the one who is using his talents. What are you going to do about it? Mothers, don't you want your daughters to rise above neighborhood gossipers and "news-toters"? Fathers, don't you want to invest in that boy in a way to fit him to better enjoy life, help others and make the world better for his having lived in it? If you do, then give them the very best education you possibly can. Winterville, N. C. The One Day Cold Cure. Kermott's Chocolate Laxative Ointment for cold in the head and sore throat. THE PRICE OF COTTON. Good Chances For It To Be High. SOME SIGNIFICANT FIGURES. Atlanta Journal. When Hon. C. H. Jordan, the agricultural editor of the Journal, several months ago predicted that cotton would bring ten cents a pound this fall, there was skepticism in the minds of many who had not given the subject study, and even in the minds of some who had. A number of farmers and fertilizer concerns sold cotton for fall delivery at about eight cents. Now it transpires that there is more faith in the staple, and the talk of ten cents has become common among newspapers and people who have just waked up to the situation. No one can predict with absolute certainty what the market will be, but the general opinion as to the fall price of cotton is far above that of two or three months ago. There is an impression abroad that the demand for cotton will be seriously curtailed by the war in China. This is a most popular impression calculated to effect the price of the staple, but in well informed circles it will not have much more effect, for general reasons, among which are the following: The amount of raw cotton purchased by China in 1899 was 74,000 bales but her purchases of cotton goods amounted to $73,671,971. The amount of raw cotton in the raw state, will make about 600,000 bales of 500 pounds. If all of this trade were cut off by the war this year it would be offset twice over by the failure of the crop in India. It is estimated that the cotton crop of India this year will be about one-fourth of the average for the past five years. That average was about 1,900,000 bales of 500 pounds each. This year the official estimate of the direct general statistics for India is about 500,000 bales of 500 pounds each. This leaves a shortage of 1,400,000 bales in India. If the demand for cotton and cotton goods in China were wholly cut off, the shortage of the crop in India would offset it and still leave a shortage of 800,000 bales. It is not likely that the Chinese demand will be entirely cut off. While war is progressing in the province of Pe Chi Li, containing the cities of Peking and Tien Tain, other provinces, with the ports of Hong Kong, Canton Shanghai are open to trade. The bulk of the imports goes through Hong Kong, and there we have heard of no check upon trade. It is likely, therefore, that most of the consumption of cotton goods in China will be reported the coming year. If the allied powers speedily reduce the insurrection, which has been called "an imperial riot," confined mostly to the province which includes the capital and Tien Tain, and the progressive young emperor is placed on the throne, the entire country will be opened up and the foreign trade will be immensely increased. The tendency in that direction is shown by the fact that it increased 25 per cent. in the last year reported, ending with 1899. The chances are that after the curtailment of demand, if any, due to the war in China, is deducted, the crop failure in India will have a shortage of over a million bales, so far as the continent of Asia is concerned. With cotton consumption increasing throughout the civilized world, and in many parts which are hardly civilized, there will be a large relative shortage. In this country the condition of the growing crop was reported by the government bureau of statistics at 76, which is lower than the condition of the crop in August first for several years. The crop promise of two or three weeks ago has not continued and untimely drouth following a wet season has done much damage to the cotton in some sections. Well informed opinion now looks for a crop of about 10,250,000 in this country and a crop in the rest of the world far below that of recent years. Under these circumstances, with prosperous times and a high level of purchasing power among the world's workers, the price ought to be good. Women as Well as Men Are Made Miserable by Kidney Trouble. Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased. Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the flesh or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose. Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy, Swamp-Root, the immediate effect of which is felt. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and one dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also pamphlet telling how to Swamp-Root. Write for it, including many of the thousands of testimonial letters received from sufferers cured. In writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure and mention this paper. WHEN BEES BEAT TROOPS. It is on record that a swarm of bees as weapons of war were used not once but twice, and with the best possible effect. When Themisya, in Pontus was besieged by Lucullus, the Romans employed turlets, built mounds and made large mines beneath the city. While they were creating the mines the people of Themisya dug down through the earth to the mines and then cast in upon the Roman workers bears and other wild animals, together with a swarm of bees. History repeated itself in England when the Danes and Norwegians made their attack upon Chester, about ten centuries since. The town was held by the Saxons and some Gallic allies, who tried stones and boiling water upon the besiegers without effect. As a last resource they collected all the hives and upset them into the enemy's camp beneath the city wall. This had the effect of making things "hum," so to speak, and it is recorded that the enemy were so badly stung that they could move neither arms nor legs. Whitehead & Co. THE ADVANCE OF TIME. The age of man, we are told, is three-score years and ten. From 25 to 40, if the health be good, no material alteration is observed. From thence to 50 the change is greater. Fifty-five to 60 the alteration starts; still we are not bowed down. In the earliest periods of our life the body strengthens and keeps up the mind; in the later stages of it the reverse takes place, and the mind keeps up the body; a formidable duty this and keenly felt by both. The recent meeting of the North Carolina Press Association held in Asheville was very pleasant to those who attended. The business transacted was important, the papers read and addresses delivered were instructive. The citizens of Asheville tendered a banquet which was much enjoyed, as well as a trip to Biltmore. There will be an excursion of the North Carolina editors to Niagara Falls Sept. 29th. The following officers were elected: President--T. N. Ivey. First vice president--J. J. Boylin. Second vice president--George L. Hackney. Third vice president--J. A. Robinson. Secretary and treasurer--J. B. Sher-rill. Historian--C. L. Stevens. Orator--Rev. J. C. Troy. Poet--J. D. Boone. It has gone out that the Republicans are already at work trying to formulate some plan whereby they may fabricate charges against Hon. F. M. Simmons which will prevent him from serving in the United States Senate as Butler's successor, should he be elected. They will try to show, it is said, that Mr. Simmons carried the August election in this State by fraud. They will never show it. It is only a trumped-up affair to try to intimidate Mr. Simmons; but it does seem that the Republican party in North Carolina has had experience enough with Mr. Simmons to know by this time that he is not one of the kind to be intimidated. He is one of the bravest and most fearless men in the State, whether applying it politically or personally; and nothing the Republicans can do will have any effect upon his course or his chances for a seat in the Senate. THE COMMONWEALTH believes that he is the logical candidate for the place and the people of North Carolina will do themselves honor by sending him to the Senate. We believe his claims are far and away ahead of all other aspirants. Chinese are dangerous enemies, for they are treacherous. That's why all counterfeits of DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve are dangerous.
