"I feel it is my duty to let you know that your medicines have cured my little girl of nine, of spasms. She commenced having them nine, of spasms. She commenced having them at the age of three. #### A Lesson in Economy.

THE great exposition at St. Louis last year was a mammoth affair. Its outlays in money, time and energy were immense; and there has been surprise at the financial success of the enterprise. The St. Louis Republic refers to it as a lesson in economy as follows

"Teach this to the children of the nation. When the question is asked, Why was the St. Louis exposition a business annual message, you will perceive the success in spite of its mammoth dimensions and elaborate features? let it be known that the sole secret was economyeconomy in its larger sense of vigilance, method and strictness. Citizens of ability devoted themselves to the minutiae of economy as well as to the broader principles. If in the battle Providence is on the side of the heaviest artillery it is in business enterprises on the side of thorough detail."

IR. Clarence H. Poe, the versatile editor of the Progressive Farmer, has refused an offer to leave North Carolina. The newspaper men all over the State are rejoicing that Mr. Poe is to remain in North Carolina journalism. About the neatest turned compliment for him that we have seen is the following by the Statesville Landmark:

"Mr. Clarence H. As is well known to you, Holding the cotton for a higher price will have a strong tendency to raise the price of cotton-indeed if such a course shall be persisted in long enough, it will surely do the work. The decrease in the acreage and the use of less fertilizers will also have a tendency to raise the price of cotton; but we fear that the reduction in acreage will not lessen the cotton crop as are now at work trying to remedy the much as at first one might suppose. Almost certainly with a damage. From their report it seems reduction in the acreage there will follow effort to make a that in the future it will be unwise to larger yield per acre. And while the amount of fertilizers may continue to pile books and papers upon also be reduced 25 per cent. along with the reduction in acre- floors that might at any moment give age, there will be a larger use of other manures and doubtless a little better cultivation. So even with a general reduction of 25 per cent, both in acreage and the use of fertilizers, it will not mean that the number of bales produced will be 25 per cent. less than the last crop. Other things being equal, there will most certainly be a discrepancy between the reduction in acreage and fertilizers and the amount of cotton produced. If the whole Supreme court building. crop of last year was in round numbers twelve million bales, and the acreage and amount of fertilizers this year should be reduced 25 per cent., a corresponding reduction in the crop result would make it eight million bales. Under the conditions recited the crop will most certainly be more than that. So the farmers' entire relief cannot come from the proposed reduction. They must make themselves more independent by raising home supplies and thus having less need for money.

House-Governor Glenn sent to the House the same message that was sent to the Senate.

Other matters acted upon were only general importance. NINETEENTH DAY-WEDNESDAY, JAN 25.

SENATE-Senators Alexander, Bragaw, Odell, Springfield and Scales offered resolutions and petitions against the divorce laws which at present obtain in the North Carolina courts, and the petitions prayed that all divorce laws enacted since 1883 be repealed. The pe titions were strong in their denuncia tion of the laxity allowed by the law in marriage relations, and which al most made the marriage altar a mart for the buying and selling of husbands and wives. They were referred to the Committee on Judiciary.

Ms. Scales also sent forward a petition from the Friends' church, of Guilford county, asking that the Watts law be amended, and commending the es-e: tial value of an anti-jug law. The petition was referred to the Committee on Propositions and Grievances.

Mr. Arendell offered a petition to sale of l'quor within five miles of certain churches. Propositions and Griev-
