BEAUTIFUL DECEMBER MARRIAGE.

Witnessed by a Host of Friends Gathered From Town and Country.

Miss Kitchin Becomes Mrs. McDowell.

"Thy fatal shafts unerring move, I bow before thine altar, Love."

Nothing is more interesting and approaching marriage, and there is universal welcome for the hour when the beautiful young woman exchanges altar vows with the chivalrous young man. No one knows who learns it first, but the plighted troth of loving hearts is never said so soft and low but the whispering galleries where Cupid roams tell out the story full, and soon their friends may know it too.

So it has been in Scotland Neck for Enfield where she will remain until weeks and weeks while a host of expectant friends have waited for the solemnizing of the marriage rites between two well known and popular Greenville, some days ago visited the young persons, Miss Annie Kitchin chine over white taffets with Reinssand Mr. Charles L.
