Simple Plan for Dispensing With

Ordinary Insulation. fee is an almost perfect hon-conductor of electricity. In this connection a prominent engineer has suggested the use of a pipe of metal for an electrical conductor. It would be immersed in a subway kept filled with water and through it cold brine from a freezing machine would be allowed to circulate. This would could be used in supplying artificial cold to refrigerators in stores, mar-

Norwegian Honesty.

The Quacks of Paris.

A congress has been sitting in Paris to consider the question of quacks, says an English paper. The French capital abounds in them. Some of the unlicensed resentehers, such as Pasteur and Metchnikoff (neither of whom is to be numbered among the doctors), done marvelous work for science, while others are the merest charlatans. The competition is so terrible for the recognized healers that the most qualified is very likely to starve while the herbalist and the curer by suggestion make a large fortune.

One doctor in the quarter of Grenelle was so struck with this disagreeable fact that he put his diploma in his pocket and resolved to practice as a "natural healer." A complaint was made against him by the medical profession, and he was haled before the bench. "I am a doctor-here is my certificate," he said to the magistrate; "but, above all, do not tell anybody, otherwise my practice would be ruined."

Women Gamblers. Marie Antoinette was a slave to cards. On one occasion she played for thirty-six hours at a sitting, with but an intermission of a couple of hours. "The play at the queen's table at Fontainebleu," wrote the Emperor Joseph II., "was like that in a common gambling house; people of all kinds were there, and mingled without decorum; great scandal was caused by the fact that several of the ladies cheated." Anne Boleyn, Henry VIII.'s 'i" fated queen, was never quite so hat my as when playing for high stakes. The rocords of privy purse expenses are full of her winsings from her royal spouse, for she was a lucky player.

Heat on Tobacco Improves it Like Roasting Improves Green Coffee. Heat Bevelops the Stimulating Aroma and Taste found in Schnapps Tobacco and Coffee A Standard

Three ways are used by farmers for curing and preparing their tobacco for the market; namely sun cured, air cured and flue cured. The old and cheap way is called air cured; the later discovery and improved way is called flue cured.

In flue curing the tobacco is taken from the fields and racked in barns especially built to retain heat and there subjected to a continuous high temperature, produced by the direct heat of flame heated flues, which brings out in the tobacco that stimulating taste and aroma that expert roasting develops in green coffee. These similar processes give to both tobacco and coffee the cheering and stimulating quality that popularizes their use.

The quality of tobacco depends much on the curing process and the kind of soil that produces it, as expert tests prove that this flue cured tobacco, grown in the famous Fiedmont region, requires and takes less sweetening than tobacco grown in any other section of the United States and has a wholesome, stimulating juicy, full tobacco taste that satisfies tobacco hunger. That's why chewers prefer Schnapps, because Schnapps cheers more than any other chewing tobacco, and that's why chewers of Schnapps pass the good thing along -one chewer makes other chewers. until the fact is established that there are more chewers and more pounds of tobacco chewed to the population in states where Schnapps tobacco is sold than there are in those states where Schnapps has not yet been offered to the trade.

A 10c. plug of Schnapps is more economical than a much larger 10c. plug of cheap tobacco. Sold at 50c. per pound in 5c. cuts. Strictly 10 and 15 cent plugs.
