(Snow Hill Standard-Laconic.) If you have made up your mind to live in a town, then stand up for it, and if you know positively no good, then silence is golden. Do all you can to help along every man who is engaged in legitimate business. Do not send away for everything nice you want and still expect the home men to keep a stock to suit the whim of one or two customers. The success of your fellow townsmen will be your success. No man liveth to himself and no man does business independently of his fellow business men. Take your home paper. Do not imagine the big dailies fill up all this space. There are many little crevices of a good cheer, social sunshine, personal mention, in the home paper that the big dailies do not print. Then do not abuse your neighbor. The main difference in the number of his faults and your own is that you see through a magnifying glass as a critic. The ill omened, the croaker, can do a town more harm in a minute than two you." good citizens can repair in a month.

THE ENGLISH TEA-HABIT.

How an American Business Man Tried to Overturn a British Tradition.

A writer in Everybody's Magazine tell the story of the collision of an American business man with the English tea habit. He had gone to London as the manager of one of the biggest enterprises in which American money is invested. He was formally introduced to all his heads of departments on the first day he went to the office. After everybody had strolled away and he had turned to his desk, a small clerkly-looking person approached him and said: Please, sir, I wish to know if we can have some new tea rings."

"Tea rings?" said the manager; 'what in the name of the Thames Embankment are tea rings?"

"Rings we put on the stove when we make our tea, sir. Thank you.'

"When you make your tea?" "Oh, yes, sir; we have our tea regularly every afternoon. Thank

The manager looked into the tea business. He found the clerk was right. The whole office force quit work in the middle of the afternoon and drank tea. The proposition did not appeal to his American mind, so he issued an order stopping the teadrinking. There was a wild protest. Here was this American overturning the precedents of centuries. Here was a man who dared to deprive the Britons of their tea. The manager held out for a month and then capitulated, for his board of directors stood with the clerks. The directors drank tab on the amount of gas used in He discovered that the tea-thirst of used Orino Laxative Fruit Syrup for the clerks in his offices cost the com-
