Exhibit Pleases at Exposition.

The baby village, a feature of the health exhibit of the North Carolina State Board of Health, which was loaned to the U. S. Children's Bureau to use this year at the International Exposition at San Francisco, is attracting wide interest.

The papers of San Francisco found it an interesting story and played it up accordingly. Under the thrilling headline, "Let Us Live," cries "Kiddies," the San Francisco Bulletin carried the following story:

"The lights in a hundred little houses came on suddenly. Then one by one they flickered and died out. No, there was nothing wrong with the current. It was the Infant Mortality Model from North Carolina in the U. S. Children's Bureau in the Palace of Education at the Exposition.

The exhibit centers around the baby death model. One hundred lights in one hundred homes represent the birth of as many babies. Then a flashing sign proclaims, "End of First Day," and three lights flicker out. "End of First Week" finds four more homes dark and sad; the rest of the first month adds three more; by the end of the second year 29 babies have died for every 100 born. "Most of these deaths were preventable," is flashed by a final sign.

This is the model that has carried to thousands of North Carolina mothers its warning and its message of information. Perhaps there are already North Carolina babies who owe their lives to its twinkling and flickering lights."

The physician in charge of the exhibit, writing the State Board of Health from the exposition, says: "I want to thank you personally for this contribution to our exhibit, which has aroused a great deal of interest among visitors. I consider it one of the most telling features of our display."

"What Happened to Jones".

"What Happened to Jones", a rollicking light farce, was played by local talent to a partially filled house on last Thursday night. This show, which was declared by the audience to have been the best local production that has ever been staged here, was cleverly acted throughout and showed that the cast had been put through some hard work in "putting it over". From the rise of the first curtain it was seen that the foot-lighters had the audience with them. Mr. Leland Kitchin who, depicted the role of the fresh and natty commercial agent was continually provoking mirth from his audience in demonstrating and displaying his household articles for sale, namely: hymn books and playing cards. He was supported by a strong cast in Misses Annie Dunn, Lydia Josey, Mattie Josey, Laura Clark, Messrs. Allison McDowell, Ashby Dunn, Ralph Phillips, Newsom Riddick, John Edwards, and Miss Lillie Belle Ashworth. The audience was somewhat disappointed in the side part that Mr. Ashby Dunn portrayed as he is considered by the majority of the local theatre public to be leading man timber. Though Mr. Dunn got away with his role as well as the role would permit. Miss Ashworth, the Swede servant, was very good with her Swiss Linggo and bribing proclivities. Allison McDowell divided first honors with Jones as the Rev. Goodly, author, lecturer and prize-fight fan. Newsom Riddick who doubled the parts of Cop and Sanatorium Superintendent was especially good. Mr. Riddick is always a familiar face above the orchestra pit in local talent plays. On the whole the play was a screaming success.
