Tea Time At College

The Hostess' Frock of Serge—Ribbon Trimmed. Muff Cuff Interesting.

New York, November 8th. Tea time at college, just at candle light, is perhaps the most enjoyable time of the day. The lonely girl from the West meets the lonely girl from the East, and friendships spring up which often endure through life. Many and varied are the topics of conversation at these late afternoon gatherings—clothes, of course, come in for a large share of attention, and often a girl with a small clothes allowance is given a hint or two which helps her to improve her appearance with little added cost.

THE GIRL WITH DEFT FINGERS

College and boarding school girls often enjoy an hour or two of sewing now and then; it varies the monotony of study and enables them to add effective little touches of their own to frock and blouse, rendering them somewhat different, and more suited to their own personality. At tea the other afternoon, one girl wore a simple serge jumper frock made with short full skirt and sleeveless overblouse and an underwaist of dark blue crepe Georgette. The guimpe was made with a high collar finished at the top with a tiny frill of white; and closed straight down the front with small dull gold buttons. Narrow black moire ribbon formed the girdle, closing on the left side in a small flat bow with long streaming ends. Six bands of the moire ribbon had been set on to the skirt at graduated intervals, giving the effect of flounces, and adding wonderfully to the appearance of the simple frock. The ribbon, which the wearer had herself applied made the commonplace dress most attractive and unusual.

VARIETY IN COLLARS AND CUFFS

The simplest frocks or blouses may be made attractive and becoming by adding contrasting cuffs, or an unusual collar; these may be made removable and others substituted at will, thus achieving a pleasing change when the dress is becoming somewhat worn. It is an easy matter to fashion any number of

as a rule are charmingly simple, depending for effect upon the color contrast, the soft sheerness of the material, and perhaps a button or two, or a jeweled buckle by way of trimming. The everyday dress of serge, taffeta, or broadcloth may have a variety of these guimpes for all hours of the day—for morning wear there will be one of plain black satin or taffeta; for afternoon and informal evening affairs, club luncheons, and teas, a guimpe of crepe Georgette, chiffon cloth, or net, in a harmoniously contrasting shade will render the costume dressy enough and most becoming.

THREE PIECE SUITS

Another convenience is the three-piece, semi-tailored suit consisting of coat and skirt, combined with blouse of satin, chiffon-cloth, crepe de Chine or other contrasting material, in the same color or a shade that combines well with the color of the suit. A suit like this is easily fashioned at home, as there is absolutely no sign of the old-time tailored stiffness padding, and various other things which a few seasons ago made the idea of fashioning a coat at home so alarming. The touch of fur which is so much a part of these suits just now, renders them smart and becoming as well as warm. Among the novelties noticed on many of these fur trimmed suits the "muff cuff." These are wide and flaring, made of fur or a fur fabric, and arranged so that the hands may be slipped into them quite a some would use a muff. This idea is especially practical for the suit for shopping or general wear, also for the heavy coat, as there is no danger of losing a valuable muff.

MUFF CHAINS ONCE MORE

While speaking of the muff it is interesting to note that the muff cord or chain is again in favor. One sees it often; knotted satin and moire ribbon often form the cord; the regulation twisted silk cord is favored too, and the jeweled chain is smart and effective. Fur trimmed petticoats and pantallettes are among the season's startling novelties; while the idea is somewhat ridiculous, a glimpse of the fur edged petticoat showing beneath the heavy suit is nevertheless attractive and fetching.

A Real Optimist

"Good morning, Mr. Vaughan! How was business yesterday?"

"Good! My business is increasing all the time. I am more than pleased with the trade I am getting."

This is just about the substance of what Clee Vaughan has to say every day upon being interrogated as to business conditions. He is a real, bona-fide optimistic business man, for fair. He attributes his success to fresh goods, sufficient help, prompt delivery and conservative advertising. Of course he handles quality stuff.

"Just tell 'em in my ad to call 1-7-4—it pays you" said Mr. Vaughan. "Be sure to put my ad on the first page."

A sad accident occurred at the home of J. C. Ross early Monday morning when little Clarence Ross, aged about 4 years, came down stairs and thought he would help mama by building a fire in the sitting room heater, while his mother was busy about breakfast. In lighting a piece of paper, his gown caught fire and he was badly burned about the neck, chest, arms and hands.

His mother met him as he ran screaming to her and smothered the flames with her apron. Poor little fellow is very brave and manly with his suffering.

these contrasting sets from bits of velvet, or ribbon (which is at the height of popularity for trimmings of all sorts just now), crepe Georgette, or chiffon. Nothing is softer or more becoming than a hemstitched collar of crepe or chiffon; it will add a dressy look to the plainest of costumes. There is great choice in girdles, too, this winter. One of the popular notions is the narrow band of velvet, faille, or picot edged moire ribbon, drawn around the waist and tied in long ended flat bows.
