Better Farming in the South HOW CROP YIELDS ARE LIMITED

The Weakest Element of Plant Food Fixes the Crop Yield, Just as the Weakest Link Fixes the Strength of the Chain—Only By Fertilization Can the Weakness Be Removed.

J. C. PRIDMORE Agronomist

Plants must feed to grow. Four essential food elements come from the air and six from the soil. Only three of those that come from the soil fall short of crop requirements...

Plants differ from animals in taking food, in that plants will take foods only when the elements composing them are in soluble form, that is, when they are dissolved in water.

To illustrate in another way, observe the picture. Here is a vessel made of staves. Each stave may represent a food element or other factor of crop production.

shortest plant food element represented here by a stave, limit the possible production of a crop?

If, for instance, there is only enough nitrogen in the soil to produce 20 bushels of corn or 175 pounds of cotton per acre, while there is enough plant food elements of other kinds to produce enormously more, how then can greater yields be obtained than the nitrogen will permit?

Since there is a limiting factor in all soils, it is worth while for each farmer to undertake to remove that limitation. Intelligent use of fertilizers will accomplish it, if food elements be this limiting factor.

PASTURE VELVET BEANS.

Inquiry—"What is the most profitable use of the Velvet Bean?" Plant the velvet bean in the corn and get a double crop. They do well together. Plant an early variety and fertilize for a good growth.
