REPORTS SENT TO MUNICH JULY 18, '14

Robbery Case Not Reached

The Superior Court was occupied with motions and with small criminal cases this morning until recess, and the McLeMore James case was not reached.

Mr. A. Paul Kitchin made an application to the court to dismiss the witnesses until tomorrow morning in view of the fact that the attorneys for the state wished a conference before the bills to be presented to the grand jury were prepared. The judge however had not given his consent to this to the time of taking a recess for lunch.

It is expected that all witnesses will be required tomorrow and at that time a date will be set, probably Monday or Tuesday of next week to try the case as Judge Kern has intimated he would adjourn court tomorrow evening over Thanksgiving and not meet again until Monday.

LITTLE WORK BY CONGRESS

(By Associated News Service)

Washington Nov. 26.—The recess taken by Congress until December 2, and the proposed departure of President Wilson to attend the peace conference in Europe presage no important legislative activity until the expected recess for the Christmas holidays. The revenue bill will probably not be taken up until January. The wartime prohibition measure, disposed of by the Senate November 18, only awaits the President's signature to become effective for a bone dry country until the final peace terms are disposed of. Government ownership of public utilities is one of the big problems that Congress is to grapple with. In deciding to take over the ocean cables, Postmaster Burleson has taken a determined stand for government ownership.
