IRON HAND OF NOSKE WILL CRUSH ANY GERMAN REVOLT

He Declares That Upon the First Sign of Outbreak He Will Declare Martial Law

VIOLATION TO QUIT WORKING

Berlin, Sept. 2.—Minister of Defense Noske continues to treat labor troubles and revolutionary attempts with a hand of iron.

At the first sign of an outbreak he declares martial law.

Realizing that railroad service dominates everything else in economic importance, he has announced the following standing orders, to apply as soon as martial law is declared:

"All railroad employees unable to produce absolute proof of physical disability are forbidden:

"1.—To quit work.

"2.—To remain away from their posts.

"3.—To refuse to obey orders.

"4.—To change their work without the express approval of their superiors.

"All persons are forbidden to attempt, by word or mouth, by literature, proclamations, or propaganda of any sort whatsoever, to induce railroad employees to quit work, remain away from work, refuse orders, or change their work without the consent of their superiors.

"Violations of these orders will be punished with prison sentences not to exceed one year."

The Students' Alliance of Berlin has adopted a resolution pledging its assistance to the government in putting down all disorders, and promising to "do everything in our power to help in the reconstruction of our beloved Fatherland."

"See the Great American Ace and airplane that fell 2,000 feet. Admission 50 cents."

"How's business?" the lieutenant inquired, walking up to the farmer.

OTTO KAHN DESIRES BUREAU OF SALVAGE

New York, Sept. 2.—Creation by the United States government of a Bureau of Salvage similar to one in England which in three years saved to the nation $500,000,000 worth of materials "usually consigned to the scrap heap" is recommended by Otto H. Kahn, financier, in a memorandum as to possible measures for alleviating the high cost of living made public here yesterday.

Other suggestions include appointment by the government of a non-political body of experts "to study the effects of the various kinds of taxation which have been in force during and since the termination of the war and to make recommendations to Congress based upon such study."

CZERNIN AS PROPHET PREDICTED KING'S FALL

Letter to Charles of Austria Shows Uncanny Correctness

SEES ALLIED GAIN

Berlin, Sept. 2.—Count Otto von Crudenitz Czernin, formerly Austrian foreign minister, is shown as a prophet who fore-shadowed coming events and his collapse of the Central Powers with almost uncanny correctness according to his now famous letter to the Emperor Charles, written early in April, 1917, in which he urged that monarch to "make peace at all hazards or suffer the loss of your throne."

It shows among other things, that Czernin, along of all Austrian statesmen, prophesied "the entrance, two years before, of Rumania into the war on the side of the Allies and predicted "almost the day of its outbreak." The letter also said the Count "expected" immediate French, British and Italian offensives and his forecast was borne out by what happened. Within a fortnight after the note to the ruler had been drafted, on April 16, 1918, the French began the great Soissons-Rheims "drive" along a 25-mile front, and the British had started the battle of Arras on a front extending to Lens. The Italians, a few weeks later, plunged across the Isonzo in the Carso sector for a distance of 37 miles, crushing the Austrians in their mad rush.

A FLOATING MUSEUM OF ABSOLUTE JUNK

London, Sept. 2.—A spectre fleet of more than one hundred warships, a nondescript miscellany of large and small craft, some worn out through long years of prose patrol duty, others prematurely aged by encounters with enemy submarines or participation in such engagements as Jutland or the Dardanelles, is today anchored in the river Medway.

This jetsam of the war, a floating museum of naval junk, swings at its last mooring—abandoned, unwanted. Ships that were heroes amid ships that never did anything but "dog work" ride the tidal river currents side by side—miles of forlorn rusty ghosts. Some were built in feverish haste to meet emergencies during the war; some were constructed in peacetime leisure; but now they are all superfluous.

Paris, Sept. 2.—"The era of speculation in foodstuffs throughout the world is largely responsible for the high food prices," Herbert Hoover said on eve of his departure for the United States.

"Wharves and warehouses in northern European ports are overflowing with foodstuffs sent by merchants from all over the world, who gambled on prices, but depreciated currency in the Baltic states, Germany, Poland and elsewhere makes it impossible for these countries to pay for the food and in consequence many commodities are in danger of spoiling."
