BONI CASTELLANE "ANNA'S" LATE SPOUSE TO TOUR AMERICA

Has Organized a Patriotic Entertainment For Funds

MANY ARTISTS

Paris, Nov. 25.—New York is soon to see Anna Gould's divorced husband, Count Boni de Castellane, in a new role. Under the patronage of President Poincare, Marshal Foch and Marshal Joffre, he has organized a patriotic entertainment, which will be performed by famous artists to gain funds for the recreation of cities in France's devastated zone.

The show will be presented first at the Opera, Paris, at the end of December or the beginning of January. Afterward, Count Boni says it will be taken to London, Rome, Brussels, New York and Tokio. Aron Gould, now the Duchess de Talleryand, is one of the contributors to the society which is sponsoring the affair.

There will be three parts of the show. The first will be a ball with airs by Lull's, Desnoches, and MoreAntine, Charpentier, in which will figure a dance before Louis V. and his court. The second with "The Thermopyles of France" will depict incidents in the revolution. The third will be a symbolic of victory and the Allies' watch on the Rhine.

Canon Frewer, of Brighton, said "this is the day of England's moral crisis."

Raleigh, N. C., Nov. 25.—The State Teachers' Assembly, which begins its three-days annual meeting in Raleigh Wednesday night of this week, promises to be one of the most largely attended of recent years. Several hundred have registered by mail already. Contributing factors to the large attendance on the better organization of the county and municipal school boards of the counties and towns, whereby the teachers who attend the meeting will be paid for the time and their expenses assumed by the school boards.

Labor union men here do not credit the report that they may yet put up a man to vote for in the ninth congressional election December 16th. The impression here seems to be that, as an organization, labor will take no part in the fight between Hoey and McCaff for the nomination. As to Morehead, it does not appear that he can elicit much strength among the organized labor ranks of the district.

Raleigh's new mayor, T. B. Eldridge, completes the "trinity" of the most "pious" set of commissioners the city has ever known. If propositions in church parsonages are to be classed as 100 per cent "pious," Brother Eldridge teaches a Methodist Bible class, Brother Morehead is a Baptist Tabernacle deacon, while Brother Pace is a pillar in the Presbyterian church here.

Stratford-On-Avon, Nov. 25.—An aluminum factory is to be constructed in this town, famous as Shakespeare's birthplace. A suggestion that its erection would constitute "the first step in the industrialization of the city" has been rejected upon recommendations to Stratford Council "that the anticipations of a possible loss to the world's culture" as a result were not such as could justify a prohibitive order.
