American Indians Loyal To The Flag

York Tribune. The Indians as a class are now prosperous that they were able to invest about $25,000,000 in Liberty bonds, or approximately $75 per capita, which is better than the per capita investment of many of the states being about $1,000,000. The report of Cato Sells, the United States Indian Commissioner, Jackson Barnett, a Creek, $1,000,750 into Liberty bonds. The Malley Fier estate, $313,000, invested as follows: Susan, $357,000; Mollie Davis, $325,000; Sandy Fox, $325,000; the Malley Fier estate, $313,000. Some of the tribes are wealthier than others of them are among earth's fortunate dwellers and are very poor indeed—literally having no place to set their heads. The Osage tribe, for instance, realized a bonus the last fiscal year of more than $10,000,000 on oil and gas leases, with a royalty besides of 16 2/3 per cent on all the oil and gas that may be produced therefrom. On the other hand, the Indians of the Bishop, Cal., agency realized only $48,000 all told in the whole year for more than 1,500 persons. More than 56,000 adult Indians are now self-supporting and less than 5,000 able-bodied adults receive rations with or without labor equivalent. The Indians sent 10,000 of their young men into the army and two thousand into the navy, and they boast that the first American to cross the Marne in the great battle that threw the Huns back for the last time was an Indian. Even Sergeant York was outdone by the exploit of Private Josea Oklahombi, a fullblood Choctaw, of Company D, 141st Infantry, who received the Croix de Guerre in recognition of a feat of arms set forth in Marshal Petain's citation as follows: Under a violent barrage he dashed to the attack of an enemy position, covering about 210 yards through barbed wire entanglements. He rushed on machine gun positions, capturing 171 prisoners. He stormed a strongly held position containing more than fifty machine guns and a number of trench mortars. Turned the captured guns on the enemy and held the position for four days in spite of constant barrage of large projectiles and of gas shells. Crossed No Man's Land many times to get information concerning the enemy and to assist his wounded comrades. Of other deeds of Indian heroism in the great war Commissioner Sells says in his report that Francis Lequirer, a young Chippewa in company with two or three others, attacked a machine gun nest and when left as the only survivor faced all that remained of the machine gunners and killed or captured the entire group. He was said to be recovering from 11 wounds received in action. Among those who won the croix de guerre was Volunteer John Harper, a full-blooded Uncompahgne Ute; Chester Armstrong Fourbear, a full-blooded Sioux of South Dakota, cited for bravery in swift running as a messenger at Bellecourt; Ordnance Sergeant James M. Gordon of Wisconsin, cited for rescuing while under shell fire a second lieutenant of the French army who was wounded while on an inspector tour; Nicholas E. Brown, a full-blood Choctaw who, when killed, was a corporal in the 142d Infantry, composed largely of Oklahoma Indians, the honor being posthumously awarded; Marty Beaver, a full-blooded Creek, on the military records as Bob Carr, an orphan boy, who enlisted in Company F, 142d Infantry Thirty-sixth division, details at present lacking. Alfred G. Bailey, a Cherokee of Oklahoma, had been in regular service with General Pershing in Mexico. He was a sergeant when killed in action in France and was awarded the distinguished service cross for creeping into the enemy's lines alone far in advance of his regiment, where, unaided, he killed two German gunners and captured a third, together with his gun. Walter G. Sevalia of Brule, Wis., a corporal in Company F, Seventh Engineers, was cited for extraordinary heroism in action near Brioules, France in November, 1918. He swam the Meuse under terrific fire with a cable for a pontoon bridge, and later carried another cable over the East canal and across an open field covered by enemy machine guns. At this time he was wounded, but returned bearing a message of great importance. Sergt. O. W. Leader, a three-fourths blood Choctaw, was foreman of a cattle ranch in Oklahoma when he entered the war.

Greatly to his chagrin, an idle rumor gained currency that he was a Hun spy. He quit the cattle business at once and enlisted as proof of his American loyalty. He was cited for bravery in battle in the course of a brilliant record, of which the following is a synopsis: Fought at Cantigny May 28, 1918; fought at Soissons, Chateau Thierry, July 18, 1918; fought in St. Mihiel salient, September 12, 1918. Twice wounded and twice gassed. In addition to this military record is the interesting fact that Sergeant Leader was selected by the French government as the model original American soldier of whom an oil painting should be made to hang upon the walls of the French federal building, where will be displayed groups of all the allied races." A man who can be bought and sold ceases to be a man. He is on a par with the fellow who buys him.
