HUNDREDS OF AMERICAN STUDENTS IN FRENCH UNIVERSITIES

(By Associated Press)
New York, Oct. 25.—American students from 43 states and the District of Columbia, graduate of 103 American universities and colleges, are now studying in French universities, Professor Earle B. Babcock, reports on his return to New York University after serving as director of the American University Union in Paris.
The largest number of American students, 524 men and women, since the beginning of the war are registered at the union. Before the war between 1,100 and 2,500 students were studying in Paris every year. As the result of the work of the union and the American Council on Education, all the French state degrees are accessible foreigners except that of doctor of letters, Professor Babcock said. Professor Paul Van Dyke of Princeton will be director of the union for 1921-22.
