ERSHIP DOMINATES CONGRESS

session of the Sixty-seventh Congress has just begun, and it can truly be said that the same reactionary leadership which dominates the regular session as it dominated the pecial session gives no indication that it intends to do any better or wishes to day any Letter in 1922.

The Senate Finance Committee is holding hearings on the Tariff bill, which the House passed at a special section in such unsatisfactory shape that it will have to be redrafted in its entirety. President Harding asking for sole authority for the exerative to determine the tariff rates as conditions may require, thus admitting the inability of his party to frame a satisfactory tariff measure.

If the Democrats in Congress were inspired only by a desire to make political capital for their party in the enactment of a tariff bill they would give President Harding the authority he asks and also approve the American valuation clause contained in the act under which no importer will know what duty he has to pay and will fre quently be paying a duty on a duty. But the Democratic leaders will continue to offer constructive amendments with a view of making all legislation of benefit to the people.
