PROHIBITION AN OLD STORY IN BECHUANA LAND

(By Associated Press)
London, Oct. 10.—For fifty years Bechuana land, north of the Cape Colony in South Africa, has enjoyed peace and prosperity under chief Khama, with Great Britain lending a helping hand when needed. Khama, said to be the oldest native ruler in Africa, is now celebrating his jubilee. As he looks back over the years he sees much to make him happy, but nevertheless he is disturbed as to the future of the protectorate. His son and heir belongs to the new order; looks upon Khama as an old fogey; does not believe as he does, and shows no inclination of following in his footsteps. For twenty-five years the son has been away from home, and has not seen his old father. He turned up only just in time to attend the jubilee celebrations.

According to the story of him told by the Bulawayo correspondent of the Morning Post, Khama is a remarkable man. "Only in Bechuanaland," the correspondent writes, "do we find an exception to the normal rule that the coming of Christianity and civilization means the passing of the authority of the Chief. Khama is a genuine Christian. He practices his religion. He succeeded in maintaining his influence over his people during the difficult transition period when the old order was giving place to the new. Khama was no namby-pamby ruler. He did not trust to the force of his own example alone. He made a law that none of his people should touch firewater and he enforced it.

"One of the secrets of Khama's success," writes the correspondent, "is his imposition of absolute prohibition of intoxicants within his land. Bechuanaland was dry before the Anti-Saloon League of American began to think of prohibition." At the time of the Jameson Raid, in 1895, Khama needed help. He crossed the ocean and saw the "Great White Queen," Queen Victoria, told him the raid would be stopped, and that as long as she lived his rights should not be infringed by any of her people. That promise was kept.

As part of the jubilee celebrations Khama's native army passed before him in review, and there was dancing and great demonstrations of loyalty. Many speeches were made. The resident Magistrate, missionaries, and white settlers showered congratulations on the venerable old man. The ceremonies lasted a long time. When they were done a last, Khama rose to his feet and amid profound silence made an impressive speech. At its close, to the surprise of everybody, he made a pathetic appeal to his son, Sekgoma.

"I have a word for my son. I do not know him. He has grown up away from me, and from his people, so that he cannot know my wishes and their ways. If he is willing to walk in the road that

RAILROAD RESTAURANTS IN RUSSIA OFFERS FOOD IN PLENTY

(By Associated Press)
Tver, Russia, Oct. 6.—The old time scenes at American railway junctions, when the brakemen came through the train shouting: "Blankville, 20 minutes stop for supper," are being duplicated in Russia as the normal conditions of travel are being restored and railway station restaurants, foodless and closed for four years, are opening again. Passenger during the revolution had nothing to eat on long journeys except what they brought with them, but now practically every station restaurant offers almost a pre-war bill of fare. As the trains pull in a scramble for food ensures that would rival an American quick lunch counter during the rush hours. Some of the more important through trains have dining cars, but they are patronized only by first-class passengers, and even many of these enjoy the rush at the station restaurants more than the decorum of the wagon-restaurant.

HILLMAN DENOUNCES SOME MEN IN EXPENSIVE GARB WITH FALSE MOTIVES, AS BEING MEANER THAN MANY LESS PRETENTIOUS.

Taking for his subject the strong and weak foundations of Christian endeavor, Rev. E. L. Hillman proceeded to laud the professed Christians who go about in a quiet, unassuming way doing good, and severely denounced the high-headed, haughty and self-centered imitations of Christian workers who go about scorning the efforts of the less pretentious ones.

Raising himself to his fullest height and shouting at the top of his voice, he exclaimed: "There are among those dressed in broadcloth some of the biggest hounds this side of hell."

So intense was the interest manifested in his message, it was noticed that many of his listeners leaned forward in their pews, lest a word might escape them.

At the close of his sermon, in a rather unusual way, without a song and with the congregation bowed in prayer, he gave an invitation to accept Christ, when one man more than fifty years old walked forward and knelt by the preacher.

During his introductory remarks last night, Mr. Hillman expressed his regrets that the meeting has to conflict in any way with the Baptist Association here this week, but said it was almost unavoidable.

The services will be continued through the week, with the assistance of Mr. Loney, the leader of the singing, and Mr. John Josey, pianist.

BLACK SHEEP FAILS TO QUALIFY AS MASCOT

Paris, Oct. 10.—Gaurisankar, three-year old son of Sardana-pale; Grand Prix winner in 1914, who made the journey from Maisons-Laffitte to Doncaster and started in the St. Ledger, is a social thoroughbred who dislikes to be alone even when travelling.

His favorite companion is a jet black sheep, and the latter went off with the son of Sardana-pale on his trip to England. Arriving at Boulogne, Wallace Davis, Gaurisankar's American trainer, was informed that owing to the embargo against the importation of sheep into England, the thoroughbred's pet could not land at Dover.

Davis thereupon sent the following cable to his agent at Dover: "Buy black sheep at once meet us at pier with him." While entertaining some doubts as to his employer's sanity, the agent went out to look for a black sheep, succeeded in locating one, and met the party at the boat.

Gaurisankar immediately took a fancy to the English black sheep, all black sheep alike to him, whether British or French.

The sympathy was not mutual, however, and the patriotic English sheep did not show any inclination to pal with this French invader coming with the intention of capturing one of the classics of the English turf. He was surly and noisy. He got on Gaurisankar's nerves and the animal was in a high state of excitement when unloaded at Doncaster.

Winkfield, the American negro jockey from Kentucky, brought his mount through the stretch with a rush after a poor start, finishing fourth.

"Tis all du to that blasted, bleating English sheep," he said, "Had we had our regular mascot we might have won the race."

BRITISH LANDOWNERS WARNED TO MEND THEIR WAYS

(By Associated Press)
London, Oct. 9.—The big landowners of England have been told, in substance, that as a class they have made a bad mess of the land business and that if they did not do better in the future the country would take the land from them and turn them adrift.

The speaker was Lord Bledisloe, himself a big landowner who, during the war helped the government manage the food supplies of the country. The occasion was an address before the British Association.

"The British agricultural landowner today is on his trail," Lord Bledisloe asserted. "Unless he justifies himself as such, the nationalization of the land is inevitable. Public opinion will demand his extinction, and parliament will endorse the demand."

"Many landowners have been for two generations nothing more than rent receivers, and they have possessed neither the knowledge nor the inclination personally to administer their own estates, still less to cultivate them on commercial lines for their own and the nation's benefit."

"So far as they have been organized as a class of the community, they have been organized, not as producers of wealth, but as defenders of property, as such their organization has, in a highly democratic country, afforded them but a small and steadily decreasing measure of security. They have thus lost their political power because they had no economic basis. They have, not wholly without justification, been stigmatized as ignorant, reactionary and despicable."

NEW FIGHTING AIRPLANES PROMISE GREAT EFFICIENCY

(By Associated Press)
London, Oct. 9.—Great claims are made on behalf of several new airplanes about to be tested by the British Air Ministry. Among them is a new type of machine which it is predicted will place an entirely new aspect on the aircraft versus battle-ship controversy. It is known as the "Curaboo." Fitted with a very powerful engine it will have a range, it is said, of over a thousand miles when fully loaded with bombs or torpedoes. This is a three-seater machine, and it will be a most effective weapon, when operating in large numbers, in repelling not only invading aircraft, but sea craft as well.

When engaged against the latter the new machine, it is claimed, will be able to dart down, discharge its torpedoes at the enemy vessel and climb out of range of anti-aircraft guns in no time. Its ability to climb rapidly will enable it to destroy quickly any Zeppelin that it sights. It is credited with a speed of three miles a minute. Greater secrecy is being observed about another machine, a four-seater known as the "Bisson," which it is also predicted will do wonders. It has been specially designed for landing on and taking off from the deck of a battleship or aircraft carrier.

ASA CANDLER BREAKS HIS ENGAGEMENT

SHE ADMITS TO HAVE SOLICITED TWO MEN TO VISIT HER AT HER HOTEL AT NIGHT.

(By Associated Press)
Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 10.—Mrs. Oneizima DeBouchel, of New Orleans, whose engagement to Asa Candler was announced a week ago, had the engagement broken because of a report to him setting on her character.

Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 10.—September the fifteenth, fifteen days before the day of her wedding, Mrs. Candler wrote Mrs. DeBouchel, according to her statement, saying that it would not be fair to marry her and bring her to Atlanta, where she would be slighted because of the reports circulated against her. "These reports, according to him, were that during the Confederate Re-Union at Atlanta," Mrs. DeBouchel's statement continues, "when I had the supreme honor of being the Chaperone-General, I solicited two men to visit me at the hotel at night."

DEPOSITORS IN CUBAN BANK MAY GET PARTIAL PAYMENTS

(By Associated Press)
Havana, Cuba, Oct. 9.—Brighter prospects for recovering some of their money are seen by depositors of the defunct National Bank of Cuba as a result of a compromise reached between the bank liquidation commission and the government.

After a long drawn out controversy, the administration has decided to turn over to the liquidation commission approximately $16,500,000 in collateral seized by the government to secure nearly $20,000,000 it had on deposit in the National Bank when it closed its doors. The commission will proceed to classify and grade the claims against the bank, and if the government is not satisfied with the treatment it is accorded, recourse will be taken in an appeal to the supreme court.

The controversy with the government has been the chief stumbling block in the liquidation of the bank, which has been going on, under a hot fire of criticism, for nearly two years. The tying up of the government's cash has been given by President Zayas as one of the causes provoking the financial crisis which has faced his administration ever since he took office in May, 1921.
