WILMINGTON. Wednesday Evening, January 2, 1861. The Herald Job Office

pletely fitted up with the finest asorthant of Jon Type to be found in the State. Every species of Job work can now be speedand somely printed at this office from a land down to a visiting card. Handbills, circulars, blanks, &c, &c, neatly and promptly -hort notice, and on reasonable terms. E-pecial attention will be given to the Job department hereafter, and we feel assured that all work entrusted to our Job hand, who is experioned in the business, will be executed satinterfly in every respect, Give him a trial at in rate, and if it is not done well, no complaint ill be made of a withdrawal of patronage.

To Our Patrons. The DAILY HERAED is presented to its readers this, theffirst day of the new year, in an endress, the general fit of which will, it ove more attractive than its former the place of six wide columns of be to the page, it now contains seven, the affect marrower columns of type, a size This change of the entire appearance because to the proprietor. It has been made, too, time when new investments in any business are considered imprudent. It has been made, lowever, in view of the fact that enterprize and energy, are the chief elements of success in the management of a newspaper, and with the hope will appreciate his efforts, and liberally assist him to realize his expectations. The HERAED, although its circulation has steadily increased the support to which it is entitled. The want of this support, heretore, has kept it somewhat in the background, but we have determined to make it merit a liberal support hereafter, whethcrait receives it, or not. The office is now furshed, we believe, in every respect, better than other in North Carolina, and we have very od authority for so believing. The paper is printed on one of Hoe's Cylinder Presses, which is run by steam-all the type in the office is new, man, "imported expressly for this market," and a reporter, whose exclusive business is to give the markt and ship news. Our exchange list is of the country, and, hereafter, our telegraph and news column, will be more full than heretofore. There can be nothing wanting to make the paper a good one, except a want of qualification in the editor, and of that the public must judge, assume an independence we do not feel, or to make any further appeal to our friends for support than is proper, but we do think that our to remain ten days, and would return to Hong efforts to publish a good paper (in the face of Kong about the first of December to take on many diffigulties,) entitle us to the consideration of our political friends, at least. It is very poor consolation to an editor to be told that you approve of his course, like his editorials, &c., &c., but withold your material aid, or give it to those whose course you do not approve. A newspaper cannot exist on empty praise, however gratifying it may be to the editor. We are perfectly willing to stand or fall, according so; but we cannot appreciate that kind of aid which acknowledges the merit, and stops at that. We, therefore, respectfully ask our friends, and the friends of the HERALD, to bestow upon us their business patronage, only according to their estimate of the extent to which we deserve it.

The Official Gazette of China.

The Chinese Government has an official journal, similar to those seen in most of the States of Europe. It is organized, managed, and edited with an ability which the persons most experienced in the mechanism of the press would dmire. It satisfies all the wants of governmental and private publicity, embraces all the questions, and unites morally and politically the different provinces to the centre, by supplying official news which must be reproduced by the provincial press. It is at once a means of govrament, of centralization, of justice, of instruction and of amusement. The Pekin Gazette, as it is called, appears daily in the form of a pamphlet, and contains from sixty to seventy pages. Nothing can appear in it without having been previously examined by a political or literary committees. The official part emanates from the Emperor's Cabinet, which every day verifies it with minute attention. It notices all public affairs, and gives a succinet recital of the principal events. It contains the petitions an nemoirs presented to the Emperor, with his replies, as well as his orders and instructions to the mandarins. Records of judicial events conclude the official part, which the editors cannot change in any respect without exposing themselves to lose their lives. This severity, examamples of which occur from time to time, maintains among the public an almost religious respect for all that may appear in the Gazette .-The journal is regarded as the expression of the Emperor's will, which every one obeys, and be-fere which every one bows. Hence it follows that the Western Powers have great interest in stipulating that their conventions with the Chidese Government shall be published in the official journal, that being the best sanction a treaty can receive, and being, moreover, a sort of public consecration of it. The non-official part consists of matter similar to that which appears in the political and literary journals of Europe; but, contrary to what exists in Europe, there is more poetry than prose. The praises of the Em- Pork, peror, or the recital of some of his acts, are ormarily the themes of the Chinese poets, and they employ that exaggerated and hyperbolical language which distinguishes the Chinese from other nations. Among the poetry are also to be found fables and allegories, and it seems that the Chinese had their Esop long before the Greeks emerged from barbarism. Similar to the great journals of Paris, the Pekin Gazette contains a species of feuilleton, in which are recorded romantic and fantastic adventures, and in which latterly the "Western devils" have been made to play a leading part, of course, being but little flattered. Apart from the exaggera-tion relative to the Fou-lang-sai (French) and the In-ki-li, (English) the journal is really interesting, and nothing is better calculated to give

[From the Boston Courier.] THE TRUE WAY TO INFLUENCE THE SOUTH .- In reading a recent quarterly report of an agent of the American Tract Society in North Carolina,

The Paper is always stopped, unless a remittance Northern men contented themselves with such sort of interference with the South, the country would have been saved the present terrible convulsion which threatens the utter prostration of our government and dismemberment of the Union; and not only so, but that an amount of fies all persons having accounts or demands of any good have been done to the slaves, as well as kind against said Estate, to present the same to of Wayne. the freemen of the South, which all the direct the undersigned for payment, within the time presanti-slavery efforts of the North never have done, and never can do.

The following is an extract from the report to which we refer. It is the December report of Mr. Crowder, General Agent of the American Tract Society in North Carolina:

"Since September 1, I have labored in 13 counties, visited and talked on personal religion with 429 families, 37 of whom had no Bible, 7; no other religious books, 102 habitually neglected preaching, and 197 never had a religious visit and prayer at their houses. I have also distributed over 240,000 pages of gospel truth, mostly in families and Sunday schools, which schools Depend upon it, mothers, it will give rest to yourwe have organized in the most ignorant sections, in which hundreds of parents and children are feetly safe in all cases. See advertisement in anothbeing taught to spell and read, and directed to Christ. During the quarter I have learned of 68 persons who attributed their conversion to God's blessing upon the reading of books and

A minister told me that the tract 'Come to Jesus,' which I gave him a few years ago, was the means of the hopeful conversion of a whole family. At the same time, he says, I gave him a packet of tracts worth 25 cents, which he scattered in a section where there was not one family in ten that attended preaching because of the distance-10 or 12 miles to the nearest-and their great wickedness and indifference. Since then there has been a revival, and a church built there; and he has good reason to believe that the packet of tracts was the means, in God's hands, of starting this reformation. And all this is but a sample of what the agents of this excellent national institution have been doing at the South. In North Carolina alone, colporteurs are now successfully reaching over twenty thousand families every year, chiefly in the more destitute counties of the State, leaving of the paper, has been made at considerable ex- the more favored counties to be occupied by other instrumentalities. DESTITUTION AND DEATH OF A REVOLUTIONARY Soldier.—Robert Curry, a veteran of the Revolution, died near Cincinnati one day last week under circumstances of extreme destitution. For several weeks Prior to his death he was without the common unecessaries of life, and his son and two step daughters who were living with him, not being able to defray his funeral expenses permitted the body to lie for several days on the bed in which the veteran died, unand of the best kind-we have a competent fore- til the police, hearing of the matter, had the remains decently interred. The deceased was one hundred and two years of age, born in Little York, Pennsylvania, in 1758. At the age of thirteen he enlisted as drummer boy in the Cona very large one, embracing papers from all parts | tinental army, and served through the war of the Revolution. He came to Cincinnati in 1816 and resided here until his death.

GRAND VIRGINIA DISCOVERY. Some four months since our excellent townsman, NAPHTAL EZEKTEL, informed us that he had prepared a hair restorer, with which he was experimenting upon his own head, whose top was entirely bald. We saw him two days since, and on the place so bald four months since, a fine crop of hair has sprung up with a vigorous growth. So coninced is Mr. Ezekiel of the efficacy of his discovery, that he has named it "THE 1NFALLIBLE VIRGINIA HAIR RESTORER."
