THE WHAINGTON HERALD .- This is the largest and handsomest Daily now in North Carolinaand is conducted with energy and ability second to none in the country. Its typographical execution is really refreshing to look upon. The very latest news is given by telegraph and otherwise. The price of the Daily is St a year-Weekly $2. Let every one that wants a real live paper, and one fully up to the times, send to A. M. JANUARY 8th, 1861. ADDRESS To the Clergy and Laily of the Christian Churches of the Country.

DEAR BRETHREN :- When evils so great impend over our beloved country, every citizen should do his utmost to avert them; and especially should Christians seek the good of their native land, because of the house of the Lord their God which is in it. We have therefore presumed, humbly, but earnestly to beseech your ing the duties appropriate to the people of God in this day of rebuke.

The great sectional questions, which divide at length to have reached the crisis. One State has formally retracted its allegiance to the Union; others are preparing to follow, and a tempest of excitement shakes the nation. "We are in the midst of a revolution only bloodless as yet. -But every day the complications assume a more angry aspect; a fatal current seems drifting all parties with frightful rapidity towards the bloody arbitrament of the sword. Daily the public heart stands still, expecting lest the next breeze, which sweeps from the South, come freighted with the resounding crash of civil war, which may soon be re-echoed from all other quarters. The counsels of our rulers seem to be turned into disappointment, and the lover of his country knows not whither to look for refuge, except to God. But, in thisextre, mity a cheering voice reaches us from the great city of New York, in the form of a Christian appeal to the people of God in the South, and signed by twenty-six of the clergy of various Christian denominations. A similar appeal is also issued by most revered and influential Christians, from Chicago, in try, and to the blessed work of peace makers; to hold out to us the right hand of love and symrances, that sectionalism and fanaticism are not dominant at the North; and to pledge themselves to the noble work of breaking the rising power, and restoring to us our rights in the Union. Stating the solemn conviction that the victory of truth and right over error, can yet be secured, if time and favorable auspices are allowed for the discussion there, they implore the South not to precipitate the rupture of the Confederation, before they are allowed to go behind the heated or interested partizans, who have misdirected public opinion, and make the ap- ing results. peal to the honest and patriotic people. Every hristian at the South will concur in meeting these fraternal, and generous advances, in the spirit in which they are made. We know that bilities to God and his Church. Every man we may bid our Northern brethren God speed whose heart is not harder than the nether milldue them with the spirit of justice, and truth, in their work, in behalf of the Southern Chris- stone, will sarely count the cost at such a time tians. We joyfully reciprocated their affection- as this, and view deliberately the terrible results ate greeting, and pray God that they may be which may possibly or probably come from ersuccessful in moderating animosities, in removing misconceptions, in dispelling functicism: and we entreat them to lose no time in a work come us. Christian brethren of the South, to cooperate in our sphere in the same peaceful work? Have we no animosities to moderate, no misapprehensions to repudiate, no exaggerations of feeling and language to confess, and no advances to make towards a renewed fraternity?

All Southern Christians would deplore an unnecesary rupture of the Federal Union, bequeathed to us by our heroic sires, as marring their glorious work, and showing ourselves unworthy of their inheritance: as bringing the corgeous promise of the "Empire Republic" to an early and ignominious close; as plunging the country into the inevitable evils of financial distress, and Here is the Courier's description of the "flag but too probably into the horrors offrequent wars; as inaugurating on this hitherto peaceful continent, the jealous political system of Europe, with Legislature, on Saturday night, made choice of its balance of power, its enormous standing armies. its crushing taxation and ultimately, its despotic Carolina. The Committee will report the result | governments; as covering the claims of American Christianity and Republicanism, with failure and disgrace, before the world; as destroying our national weight and glory, and thus our personal security abroad; as disappointing the hopes of self-government throughout the nations, and justifying the claims of tyranny; as bringing innumerable confusions, disruptions and disasters upon the churches of Christ: and as arresting the beneficient labors of one third of the missionaries and teachers, and drying up a simportion of the charities, which now carry the necessity for our acknowledgements has life to the perishing souls of the Heathen. Surely he who would risk even the possibility of a result so dire, unless impelled to it by causes absolute and inexorable, hath not the heart of a calm, loving, and potential voice of God's Law.

Christian, nor even of a man. Do these causes then exist? We would distinetly say, to avoid creating a mischievous mistake, that if the Southern States of the Union are persistently refused their full rights in the confederation, and its common territories, and the protection granted by the Constitution to their peculiar property, then, in our opinion, the Southern people must conclude that these causes do exist, and that the catastrophe, however, lamentable, must be met, sorrowfully indeed, and yet with the resolution of freemen. But on the other hand, we cordially appreciate the honorable sincerity of the revered Brethren at the North; who assure us that in their opinion, the necessity for this ultimate resort does not yet exist; and, assuredly, every motive should prompt us to hope till hope becomes impossible, that they judge correctly. We rejoice to see grounds for such a hope in the large and patriotic minority, approaching so nearly to half the Northern community, who in the late Presidential election, cast their suffrages with so much manliness in favor of our rights; in the extensive reaction which has since appeared in public sentiment there; in the persevering hopes and efforts of our wisest and most patriotic legislators to conciliate: and in the force of truth and right, when fairly presented. Nor can we permit this hope to be extinguished by the pertinacity of the leaders of that misguided party, which assails our rights; when their conduct may be so fully explained by the personal exasperations of former political collisions, by their confident expectation that the imprudent haste of some part of the Southern people would compromise the justice of their cause before the nation, and by their full consciousness that the peaceful triumph of constitutional right would be the final downfall of their selfish ambition. We can easily believe that these considerations Landsfelt, with a pension of 20,000 florins. She may prompt them to deny us justice, and yet Wilmington, N. And to our brethren of the North and South, And to our brethren of the North and South, alike, we would say, when that final step is so solemn, and may be so awful, should not every honorable means for avoiding its necessity, be exhausted by the good man before he takes it?—Yea, even though we were uncertain whether the glimmer of hope were a true living spark, or only an illusion, would it not be better to wait fence, outside the Union, the answer would be

till that uncertainty is decided, than to incur the calamities of the extreme remedy, and afterwards be haunted, perhaps, by the remorseful discovery that we had precipitated them without actual necessity? We do not advise that any of the measures truly necessary for self-defence, be delayed a single day; but we would respectfully plead, that it would be eminently worthy of you, as Christian citizens, to seek the suspension of all such measures as would cut off or embarrass the appeal from the rulers, to the people of the North, as would causelessly embitter or complicate the existing differences, and above all. such measures as would set on fire the destroyfavorable attention to the following views touch- ing passions of civil war. It becomes us, even while we prepare for the worst, to look diligently on all sides for some mediating umpire, by whose impartial hand the dogs of war may be held in leash till the final verdict of the people the opinions of the North and the South, seem is given. Surely God has not given us over to madness, but the issue might still be that they should then be chained up forever, instead of being now let loose to rend our common mother. And further, we would humbly appeal to all Christians, of the North and the South, to exert everywhere the moderating influences appropriate to the followers of the Prince of Peace. It cannot but appear to the reasonable mind most unsuitable, that Christian men, and Christian ministers should be in the extreme front of party movements, when all history tells us that such movements never become heated without becoming extreme. In tempering the body-politic, together, God has given to the Christian members a function like that of the conscience in the natural man, which regulates and moderates the whole. The movement of the common body is the resultant of many concurring forces, of which, if some are liable to be too sluggish, many are always too impetuous. The Christian may therefore safely conclude that his duty will be best performed by acting with the moderate instead of the vehement. God's people are the regulators of the social machine.-Shall they forget this most necessary and wholesome function, and throw their whole momenthe most beloved, and venerable names among tum to hurry that motion which should regulate? Then nothing can be expected but that the machine will wreck itself with its own mad velocity. Let us then all study moderation of political sentiments, of resentments, and of the great North-West. The object of both is to language. Let us keep a watch before the door summon God's people to the rescue of their coun- of our lips, lest some needless word issue forth to exasperate what is already too angry. Let the Sabbath, with its acred calm, be revered more jealously than ever for topics truly divine, in order that its recurring sanctities may aid in tempering the excitement of the people. For this is the wise ordinance of Him who "made the Sabbath for man," that this weekly breach in the current of our secular cares, and the sobering and elevating contrast of heavenly contemplations, might prevent the flow of earthly passions from becoming morbid, and chafing the soul into phrenzy.

It is usually found that wherever the excitements of our weekly debates are allowed to intrude into the sanctuary, the pulpit and the Sabbath, a feverish exasperation of popular feel-

The urgency of our country's dangers will be apology for again beseeching you, dear Brethren, to remember your Christian responsiror now committed. Is disunion, or civil war now before us, a civil war whose rigors and atrocities may appal the world? The wisest hearts admit the fear. Let each man then place himself now before it is too late, in the midst of the possible horrors of that fratricidal war; let him bring before his mind a country ravaged; its fields lately smiling with plenty, stained by battle and the carnage of fellow-citizens, and brethren of a common Christianity, its cities sacked or deserted; its peaceful homes desolated. and its order displaced by fierce anarchy, and let him ask himself whether, as he stands amidst ruin he will be able to take Heaven to witness that none of its guilt is in his skirts. Let each man remember that he must answer at the judgment seat of Christ, for his conduct as a citizen, and see to it that when he meets there the ghosts of all that shall be slain, of all the wives that shall be widowed, of all the children that shall be consigned to orphanage, and destitution of all the hoary parents that shall be bereaved of their sons in this quarrel, and of all the ignorant damaed through our neglect while we are waging the work of mutual destruction, he shall be able to appeal to the searchers of hearts that none of it was his doing; that every whit of this moun- A E Hall. tanous aggregate of guilt belongs to his adversaries, and not to himself: that he had exhaused every righteous expedient, and exerted every lawful power to avoid it. can do this, it: will be well with you, however ill it may be with our miserable country. But if not, who can estimate that guilt? But blessed be God all is not yet lost. And if only his church shall have grace given to her equal to her duty; if she can only rise above the rulgar mists of prejudice, false pride and mutual recriminations; if she shall steadily lift up the speaking peace to the tumults of the people, and even to the incipient din of war; if the hands of Receipts per W. & W. It will not unpleasantly affect the breath, like Kreosote, injure the gums, or destroy the enamel of the teeth: the numerous cures it has accomplished are well attested, and it has only to become generally known to be as highly appreciated by the public, as it has long been by Dentists.

ANDOVER, N. H., Oct. 15, 1859. Messrs, S. W. Fowle, & Co., Boston, -Gentlemen:-I have an earnest desire that all persons suffering from pulmonary complaints, should know the wonderful virtues of Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry, and make the following statement with the hope that some skeptical person may be induced to give him a trial ;

Six years since I was attacked with a violent sough, and resorted to physicians, first at home, and next abroad, or acknowledged skill and seputation, and made use of many patent medicines, The disease augmenting to such a degree as to lely the skill of the physicians, and the hopes of friends, I was induced, as a tast resort, to make a trial of your popular Balsam, without any confidence in its merits, as that had been destroyed by numberless trials of advertised nostrums. But the effect was magical! My friends were again hopeful, and I was astonished at the rapid change. The racking cough, the severe pain in my side, and deluging night sweats, which had reduced me almost seleton, abated, and I was soon in a fair of recovery, and by a continued use of the rome dy was restored to good health Yours, very truly, GEO. W. CHASI. go. Cantion to Purchasers. The only genuine Wistar's Balsam has the written signature of "1, Burgs," and the printed one of the Proprietors on the outer wrapper; all other is vile and worth-Prepared by SETH W.
