WILMINGTON, AUGUST 30

THE COUNTY CONVENTION.
From various parts of New Hanover county we learn that the people are discussing the merits of different gentlemen to represent them in the approaching county convention. This is right, and we trust the discussions will be continued. It is important to the whole people that good men shall be chosen to this convention. The convention will be a representative body of the people of the county, and aside from determining the proper persons to receive the suffrages of the people for the constitutional convention, will give expression to the sentiments of the people on the great questions of the day. We trust therefore that no one will be sent from any precinct of the county merely on partisan grounds. Let democrats and old line whigs, native Americans and what not, ignore their obsolete differences now and all come together in selecting the most loyal, the most public spirited, the most intelligent man to represent them in this crisis and give expression to their sentiments. Let no partisan influence avail, and let no political ambition sway the masses. Politicians have once well nigh ruined the country, and now is the time when the people of the country can have their revenge by ruining the politicians. It is an opportunity that can with honor, and doubtless will be, improved.

THE MISSISSIPPI CONVENTION.
The Mississippi constitutional convention assembled under the call of Mr. Sharkey, the provisional governor appointed by President Johnson, has met, transacted its business and reached a final adjournment before the convention of any of the lately rebellious states has assembled. It met on the 14th inst., and, after sitting eleven days, adjourned on Thursday of last week. The more important points in its proceedings have already been noticed. It adopted an ordinance prohibiting slavery in the state and pronounced null the act of secession, but ratified all proceedings of the rebel legislatures not inconsistent with the constitutions of the United States and of Mississippi. During the last day's session a despatch was read from President Johnson congratulating the convention on the progress it had made, expressing a hope that all obstacles to the state resuming its position in the union will soon be removed, and promising that the writ of habeas corpus shall be restored in the state and the troops removed at the earliest practicable moment.

OHIO POLITICS.
The democratic state convention of Ohio assembled at Columbus on the 25th. General George W. Morgan was nominated for governor, and William Lang for Lieutenant governor. Candidates for the various other state offices were also nominated. The resolutions adopted in the main accord in spirit with those of the Pennsylvania democratic convention. The principal points of them are the assertion that the rebellious states are entitled to all the rights which they possessed previous to the rebellion and unconditional representation in congress; denunciation of military arrests and trials and negro suffrage, and regret that the rebels were ultimately deprived of the favorable terms for them at first agreed upon between Generals Sherman and Joe Johnston. The resolutions are of a strong state rights character, and promise President Johnson support "in all constitutional efforts to restore to the states the exercise of their rights and power." Clement L. Vallandigham and James L. Pugh, as well as General Morgan, the gubernatorial nominee, were among the speakers.

APATHETIC.
We are informed that the number of voters who qualified in this city on Monday by taking the amnesty oath required, was eleven, and yesterday one. At this rate we fear our citizens will not be in time to vote. The time allotted for the purpose of administering this oath is necessarily short. The magistrates appropriate only two hours per day—this is barely sufficient to qualify one thousand voters before the day of election. We urge upon our fellow citizens the necessity of going at once and qualifying to vote at the most important election ever held in North Carolina.

SPIRITUALISM LEGALLY PRONOUNCED SLEIGHT OF HAND.
The great question in Buffalo before the U. S. district court, whether spiritualism was sleight of hand or supernatural manifestations, has been decided at last. A jury of twelve loyal men have done what all the doctors and men of science have failed to do. They have unanimously come to a verdict that all the table tipping, conversations had with spirits through table legs, the reading blindfold of the contents of folded writings, all the tying and untying of mediums in boxes, the blowing of trumpets, and peregrinations in the dark of spiritual tamborins and guitars, are merely tricks of jugglery, and experiments of sleight of hand, and therefore the performers of them must take out a license to practice jugglery. This is bringing down the spiritual to the material in a way that must shock the sensibilities of the true believers.

But what is the use of the possession of supernatural power if it cannot demonstrate that spirituality? The "sperits" by acting properly upon this stubborn jury might have reversed the verdict and got an approved endorsement of their immateriality, which would have helped along wonderfully the worthy professors who enlighten the public upon the nature and manifestations of the unseen world.

OUR NEW YORK CORRESPONDENCE.
It will hardly be necessary for us to direct special attention to the racy and instructive letter of our correspondent "Ariel" from New York. We feel ourselves particularly fortunate in securing through this correspondence the services of one of the finest writers of the present day, and one very intimately identified with our current literature—one who stands among the most prominent of the New York journalistic contributors. Our readers will have occasion to hold sundry chats with him we trust, and by means thereof will become familiar with all that is stirring in political, commercial, literary, social and general circles in Gotham—a familiarity that will not be useless in these times.

We shall print a second letter from "Ariel"—dated the 26th inst.—in our evening edition to-day.

THE POPE AND THE FENIANS.—The Roman catholic bishop of Philadelphia has had authority from Rome to announce that the assertion made in certain newspapers to the effect that the following decision had been given by the Holy See, to wit: "Fenians non esse inquietandos," "the Fenians are not to be disturbed," is utterly false, and he promulgates the fact lest it should be understood that anything has emanated from the Pope in favor of the fraternity.

PRESIDENT JOHNSON on the 25th directed that Major Generals N. P. Banks, Daniel Butterfield, Silas Casey, Abner Doubleday, Samuel P. Heintzelman, George L. Hartshuff and John J. Peck, be honorably mustered out of the service of the United States. Thirty-nine brigadier generals of volunteers were also directed to be honorably mustered out.

BETWEEN THE UNITED STATES of America and the United States of Columbia a convention, supplemental to that of September 10th, has just been proclaimed. The joint commission heretofore appointed for the examination and adjustment of such claims as were presented, but not settled, is extended for nine months.

MISSISSIPPI HAS PLACED HERSELF among the FREE STATES—her convention having adopted the ordinance abolishing human slavery within the limits of the state. The ordinance of secession has also been declared by the same body as null and void.

POSTMASTER GENERAL DENISON has ordered a resumption of the daily mail service from Macon to Columbia, Atlanta, Chattanooga, and by railroad to other important points in Georgia.

About Pardons.
[From the Washington Chronicle, Aug. 15.]
A very strange doubt or misconception exists in regard to the effect of the president's pardon upon the property rights of the party pardoned. The language of the proclamation seems to be as explicit as possible on this point. It is as follows:

To the end, therefore, that the authority of the government of the United States may be restored, and that peace, order and freedom may be established, I, Andrew Johnson, president of the United States, do proclaim and declare that I hereby grant to all persons who have directly or indirectly participated in the existing rebellion, except as hereinafter excepted, amnesty and pardon, with restoration of all rights of property, except as to slaves, and except in cases where legal proceedings, under the laws of the United States providing for confiscation of property of persons engaged in rebellion, have been instituted; but upon the condition, nevertheless, that every such person shall take and subscribe the following oath, to-wit:

This is the general pardon, which tens of thousands have taken. The following is the tenor of the special pardons, granted in conformity with the same proclamation, under the list of exceptions, viz:

That I, Andrew Johnson, president of the United States of America, in consideration of the premises, divers other good and sufficient reasons thereunto moving, do hereby grant to the said persons a full pardon and amnesty for all offenses by him committed, arising from participation, direct or implied, in the said rebellion, conditioned as follows, viz: This pardon to begin and take effect from the day on which the said shall hereafter, at any time acquire any property whatever in slaves, or make use of slave labor; and that he first pay all costs which may be accrued in any proceedings heretofore instituted against his person or property.

These pardons, special and general, are granted in conformity with a clause of the confiscation act itself, approved July 17, 1862, and entitled "an act to suppress insurrection, to punish treason and rebellion, to seize and confiscate the property of rebels, and for other purposes." The clause is as follows:

Sec. 13. And be it further enacted, That the president is hereby authorized, at any time hereafter, by proclamation, to extend to persons who may have participated in the existing rebellion in any state or part thereof, pardon and amnesty, with such exceptions and on such terms and on such conditions as he may deem expedient for the public welfare.

It thus appears that the president has the authority of congress for granting amnesty and pardon for all offenses against the United States committed during the late rebellion, and that he has exercised the power thus conferred by where legal proceedings had been instituted, but not consummated. If the proceedings are begun under this act of confiscation, in any court of the United States, the pardon has the effect of quashing them on payment of costs by the party pardoned.

We have been induced to make this statement in consequence of doubts and misapprehensions in regard to the effect of a pardon, which tend to throw suspicion upon the solvency of southern men, and to prevent the revival of business and industry. The whole country is interested in the speedy restoration of peace, order and confidence in the south, without which there can be no healthy trade and intercourse between the sections.

THE WILMINGTON HERALD publishes an article from an exchange, on "southern suffrage as it was," in which it incorrectly states that the constitution of "North Carolina requires twelve months residence in the state, and owning a freehold of fifty acres for six months." This is a mistake: There is no property qualification of any kind, for a voter in the state. Formerly, the constitution required that all voters for the senate branch of the legislature should own fifty acres of land. The free suffrage humbug changed it some years ago. We should not be surprised if in ten years, all the advocates of free suffrage will change their tune. Should a certain contingency take place, which we hope never will, the necessity for a different basis for the senate to that of the house, will be absolute. —Raleigh Sentinel, Aug. 17.
