SATURDAY, JANUARY 7, 1916.

If opportunity has shut one door,
Resolve can open thrice a hundred more.

When you talk of maintaining a principle, be sure that it is not a prejudice.

Gasoline is going to 35 cents a gallon. But what do we care? We don't drink.

At this time of the year, the days are not the only things that are "short."

Berlin hears of an uprising in India. None can hear so well as he who wants to hear.

Say what you will about those Ford peace delegates, they are not too proud to fight among themselves.

Possibly the Pullman Company wanted to set an example for the public in "tipping" its employees $600,000.

Next year is leap year, and, in all probability, we will see conscription in this country for the unmarried slackers.

It appears that Henry Ford was the first boy "our of the trenches and headed for home on Christmas morning.

The Colonel says there is nothing as useless as an untrained soldier. He ought to know for he has been one himself.

Indictments for bomb plots have now reached "high water." It's usually the man higher up who is the most low down.

A plumber, who is now an English officer, has been decorated for bravery. There is nothing unusual, however, about a plumber displaying unusual nerve.

After recognizing Carranza this country is even more anxious to be able to recognize some of the good results he has so liberally promised. —Chicago Herald.

The people of Green county, Wis., have been living on Limburger cheese of their own production, and to this the physicians attribute the good health of the inhabitants and the low death rate.

Everyone will probably agree that the city of Philadelphia is wise in its decision not to have the Liberty Bell make any more long journeys; however, we must not forget that the old bell was viewed by more than twenty million people during its visit to the Pacific Coast recently, and that it was a great stimulant to their patriotism.

WILL THE PRICE OF MEATS EVER STOP RISING?

Aside from the trusts and trade combinations, there are many influences that are forcing prices of meats upward. The vast armies that are eating meat rations are not only rapidly depleting the supply of the world, but they are forming a taste and getting a habit that will persist when peace comes. As the population of the world increases and social intercourse among nations becomes more common, the demand for meat grows greater. In Japan rice, which has ever been the main foodstuff, is being displaced by the use of greater quantities of meats. And another great cause is that the flocks and herds of the world are not keeping pace with the demand, and especially in the United States. The lands with largest grazing areas—Brazil and the Argentine Republic, in South America, and Australia and Mongolia—are not extensive enough to offer much relief, and unless the farmers of this country raise more live stock we will have to consume more fish.

NOT YET SECURE.

Sportsmen, or men who call themselves sportsmen, are still fighting the Federal migratory bird laws, claiming that it is unconstitutional, and adequate protection of our birds is not yet secure.

On the other hand, the Boone and Crockett Club, the New York Zoological Society, and the Camp Fire Club of America have filed briefs with the Supreme Court of the United States in favor of the law, the last-named organization on the interesting ground that birds are so important to the safety of our crops that they are entitled to protection as a measure of military preparedness.

The national Weather Bureau has finished a ten years' study of thunderstorms in America. The place that had the largest number is Tampa, Florida—944 in ten years. During the same period, Santa Fe had 732. On the Pacific coast electrical storms are rare. San Francisco had only eight in ten years.

During the last few months this country has been losing population to Europe instead of gaining it, and there is little likelihood that the problem of the unemployed will be so pressing this winter as it has been in the past two years. In fact, many parts of the country now report a shortage of unskilled labor—a very unusual condition at this time of year.

Our sole import from Greenland is cryolite, five thousand tons of which came in this year, at an average price of $20 a ton. It is a white cleavable mineral of waxy lustre used in making an opaque glaze for enameling hardware. The normal supply from Europe the war has shut off.

If the Republicans nominate Roosevelt next year it will mean one of two things—that the Republicans are in desperate straits, or both. —Kansas City Journal.

It is wrong to say that the Democrats are the only ones interested in the proposal to nominate Roosevelt on the Republican ticket—very, very wrong. The Colonel himself is intensely interested. —Kansas City Journal.

To the Point.

Many people would rather believe a lie than the truth.

He is a wise man who knows his opportunity when he sees it.

A woman always boasts of the virtues she practices because she has to.

When you find that the truth is in your way, you may be sure that you are on the wrong road.

The remembrance of how quickly Hall's Emulsion relieved your cough will linger long after the fifty cents you paid for it is forgotten.
