WILMINGTON.

CAPE FEAR RIPPLES.

Duck shooting is fine on Waccamaw Lake. Major Engelhard and Judge Merrimon will arrive in the city this evening.

Rev. Dr. Burkhead will occupy the pulpit of the Fifth Street M. E. church to-night.

The reports are about in now from every county, and people are staking their bets on the result of the election.

The Register of Deeds issued, during the past week, marriage licenses to one white and five colored couples.

Col. W. S. G. Andrews had a policy on his life for $2,000, in the North Carolina State Life Insurance Company.

A seaman was arrested yesterday, on the charge of thieving. He will be arraigned for trial before Justice Harris Monday.

Mr. Williams, clerk of the city market, tells us that yesterday there were more fish in the market than ever yet known on a single day.

We thank an excellent friend for a copy of the Mainburg Daily Review of October 8th, containing some account of the financial falling in Glasgow.

At a meeting of Commissioners of Navigation held yesterday, Capt. R. G. Ross was elected a Port Warden to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Capt. Thos. F. Peck.

A colored stevedore named Jim Williams, while engaged in loading the steamer Benefactor at Colville & Co's mill, had his leg broken above the ankle, by a large piece of timber rolling on it.

Our enterprising friend, P. Heinsberger, has recently added to his large and varied stock of goods, a complete assortment of nautical instruments, glass glasses, telescopes, microscopes, &c., &c.

A delegation of the I. O. O. F., will leave this morning for Goldsboro, to assist in the obsequies of their deceased brother, W. S. G. Andrews, a sketch of whose life appeared yesterday morning in The Sun.

The biggest bet we have seen made on this campaign was put up in front of the Purcell House last night. A prominent gentleman wagered $250 against $50 that Waddell's majority would be as much as 2,500.

The steamer Passport, did not leave on her regular trip to Smithville yesterday. Capt. Harper tells us that she is being freshly painted and scrubbed up, and will be ready for duty Monday, neat, clean and sparkling as a sunbeam.

We regret to learn that Mr. Chas. Bell, formerly of this place, but for some time past living in Abbottsburg, met with a serious accident in the latter place, on Thursday last, by having one of his feet badly mangled by a piece of timber.

An unamiable letter from J. A. Hinson is in the Post Office; so also one from M. Blumenthal, 232 Exchange street, New York. The ch— hasn't been applied for yet. The negro "specked" he'd "have to kill dat dog," Bose, because he wouldn't come at call. We "speck" the Post Office will have to put that Jimmy up at auction, as the fair owner won't call or send.

Senator Merrimon. This distinguished gentleman will arrive in the city to-night. On Monday night, he will address his fellow-citizens of the Cape Fear District at the grand mass meeting to be held in this city. An able and interesting discussion of public questions may be expected. Let the Democrats of Wilmington, and all others sincerely desirous of obtaining information turn out to hear Judge Merrimon.

The Historical Society. Owing to the political meetings that are to take place Monday evening the regular monthly session of the Wilmington Historical and Scientific Society has been postponed until the following Monday, the 11th. Henry Nutt, Esq., one of our best informed citizens, will read a paper on "Early Times in Wilmington." We know it will be entertaining.

Mayor's Court. Kate Mills, 4 and d, given a room in the city prison for two days. That is all the Mayor did yesterday morning, other than to turn over two cases of larceny to Justice Harris, for trial. One of these was mentioned in yesterday's Sun, that of two boys who were arrested for stealing ship rigging. The other case was that of John Sharpley, who was brought in the night before. Their trials will be reported Tuesday.

Presentation. The congregation of the Jewish Synagogue, yesterday afternoon, made a presentation of a silver tea service to Mrs. D. Kahnweiler, an estimable lady and one dearly beloved by every attendant of the Temple of Israel, in this city, not alone for her admirable traits of personal character, but also for her earnest working in behalf of the Temple and of her services rendered the choir. Mr. Sol Bear delivered the presentation speech. It was pleasant affair and will be long remembered by those interested.

TO-MORROW NIGHT!

ENGELHARD, MERRIMON, AND OTHERS.

Last Grand Rally of 1878!

Let's Give an Old-Fashioned Pull for Victory.

To-morrow night the final rally of the Democrats in this city will be made. Judge Merrimon and Secretary of State Engelhard, will certainly be here to address the gathering, and other men of some prominence have been invited and are expected.

This is the last rally of the campaign. Let every Democrat in the city turn out to hear the speeches. Programme will be announced by handbills in due time.

HEATON AT LARGE.

Gone Where the Woodbine Twined.

Last night, between 10 and 11 o'clock, during the temporary absence of the jailor, James Heaton, who has been awaiting trial upon indictments innumerable on various charges, made his escape from jail and is now at large. From all we could learn from those possessing any knowledge of the circumstances it appears that Heaton has never been in close confinement in a room with one of the Sheriff's deputies. Seizing a favorable opportunity Heaton drew a revolver and, threatening to blow the deputy's brains out if he stirred, immediately darted out of the door and made for the woods. Pursuit was given at once but we imagine he will make good time, not stopping until he places himself at a safe distance from Sheriff Manning and Dan Howard.

Result of Sleeping in the Fire Place.

Cornelia Lofton, a colored woman living on Harnett street, between 3rd and 4th, laid down on the hearth to sleep night before last. About daylight, the whole neighborhood was "raised" by her screams, and the first man who reached the house, found Cornelia wrapt in flames. Nearly all of her clothes were already burned off, but what remained on her were torn with much difficulty. Cornelia's body was found to be very badly burned, and physicians were sent for, who dressed her burns as best they could. Her condition was serious during the day, but at last reports she was better, and was expected to recover.

Made Them Kiss.

Friday night, two young white boys raised a row in the market, and then didn't want to be arrested. Though young, they were pretty large boys, and the policeman had to call assistance. "Justice always triumphs," however, and in due time they were ushered in before the Mayor. The larger of the two being muchly under the influence of liquor, wept. The other one said he didn't "kare er durn what they did with him."

The offence was so trifling, and they both finally begged so hard that his Honor made them kiss each other and shake hands, and discharged them with an ominous warning.

Report From Federal Point.

Col. B. R. Moore spoke in Federal Point Township, Friday. Several parties who were present, tell us that the attendance was as large as was ever known to assemble in that Township, at a political meeting. Everybody turned out, and the enthusiasm was particularly noticeable. Col. Moore's effort is represented to us as having been one of the best of his life. He made a lengthy speech which was well received by all. At the close everybody was hurrahing for Waddell. The report from Federal Point is truly gratifying—they are all awake and doing and some of the old citizens say that they will give Waddell a majority that will surprise everybody.

Untrue.

Those interested in having a lie believed have circulated the report that Col. A. M. Waddell is dead. It is on the very eve of election, and the calculation is that the news is now nearly as false as ever. It is his venerable father, Hon. Hugh Waddell, who is dead. The distinguished son survives to add new lustre to the name he bears, and let us add, to give many more drubbings to the authors of malicious reports like that under notice. It is not pleasant while the remains of the elder Mr. Waddell are yet uninterred and the grief of the family is fresh and poignant to be forced to take cognizance of such mendacity.

The Premium Cattle.

Messrs. Tilly & Melton have on exhibition at the city pound nineteen head of cattle, which they bought at the Weldon Fair. The entire lot is of Devon blood, and was raised by Nick Long and Al. Propst, of Halifax county. The entire lot took the first premium at Weldon Fair last week. Among the lot, are two steers that for the past four years have been regularly entered at Weldon and have never failed to take the premium. Some idea of their size may be had when we state that the largest one weighs 2,260 pounds and the smallest one, 2,150. They are of gigantic dimensions and when paraded through the streets yesterday evening, of course attracted a great deal of attention. Messrs. Tilly & Melton are to slaughter them for the city markets.

Harbor Master's Report.

The following is the report of Harbor Master Price, of vessels arrived at this port for the month of October:

Table with columns: AMERICAN, FOREIGN, Tonnage, Total. Includes entries for Steamers, Schooners, Barques, and Brigantines.

Reception of Bishop Keane.

The reception of Bishop Keane last night, at the corner of Ann and Fifth streets, by the Catholics of this city, was an occasion long to be remembered by every one of that faith. The Bishop arrived at about half-past eight o'clock and was escorted to his chair by Mr. F. W. Kerchner, who thereupon introduced Mr. Frank H. Darby, who was to deliver the address of welcome. Mr. Darby said:

Right Reverend Bishop: It is my peculiar pleasure to have the honor, in behalf of the clergy, the Young Catholic Friends Society and the congregation at large, of extending to you a hearty and a heartfelt welcome to this, our little parish of St. Thomas.

You behold before you the greater portion of our small congregation, but we trust that, while you are in number, we are strong in that faith, which, for over 1800 years, has shown to the universal world, not only the highest human personifications of learning and ability, but the greatest earthly perfection of devout religion and sublime charity and benevolence.

We are thankful, under the providence of God, that, while you are in number, we are strong in that faith, which, for over 1800 years, has shown to the universal world, not only the highest human personifications of learning and ability, but the greatest earthly perfection of devout religion and sublime charity and benevolence.

This holy religion has had its triumphs even in this far off section, for more than a quarter of a century ago, where we are now assembled surrounded by these evidences of the zeal of our priests and the benevolence of our people, was only a rank wilderness, and when the priest was roused to celebrate mass on many a bright and beautiful Sunday in that old time, only a dozen or two persons assembled to hear the words of prayer and tend their hearts in adoration before the altar of the Most High; and then came Father Murphy, great, good and kind, and extended the piety and kindness of his disposition and character, as well as his super-human efforts in aid of the Catholic and Protestant alike, during the dreadful yellow fever scourge of 1862 and '63, will ever be a blessed memory with the Catholics of Wilmington.

The church in which we now worship was built under the ministrations of Father Murphy, and extended to its present dimensions by Right Reverend Bishop Gibbons. After the death of Father Murphy came Rev. Dr. Corcoran, pious, humble and learned; and after him for a short interval came Reverend Father Northrop, a genial, kindly, pious gentleman, who was succeeded by our present worthy pastor—Rev. Father Gross—during the first year of his pontificate came Right Rev. Bishop Gibbons, the present Archbishop of Baltimore, a prelate too well-known and too highly distinguished, to require any encomiums at my humble hands. It is sufficient for me to say that here as everywhere, he won an admiration by the splendor and depth of his brilliant intellect, and by the hearts enchained by the magnetic influence of his gentle, kindly manner; and though he has been transferred to a larger and more appropriate field of influence, yet we cherish his memory and lasting recollections of his pleasant, though brief, stay among us.

Now we rejoice to be under the spiritual guidance of good and zealous Fathers Gross and Melton, and to extend to you the history of our small congregation. You come to a State, Right Rev. Bishop, which, although it cannot boast of the number of its Catholics, nor the wealth or architectural splendor of their churches, is not yet wanting in the pride of Catholic history. The saintly Gaston, a devout Catholic, left the impress of a great mind and the influence of a life of peculiar sanctity, upon this, his native State, and the halo of his name, sacred alike for his great patriotism, the wealth of his intellect and the eminent purity and great usefulness of his life, sheds a lustre upon the history of his native land, which should be the boast of all Catholics of North Carolina.

This much for the dead: now let me say for the living. We are proud to be Catholics; at one time a justice of the Supreme Court, who, after a life of purity and eminence in State, yet lives, and is honored.

We have a state of boundless though undeveloped resources, a people speak mostly of non-Catholic's patient to hear and anxious to learn, willing to accord to all that liberty and toleration which is properly and peculiarly the ground-work of Republican institutions. Of North Carolinians I think it can be safely said without exaggeration, that they are filled with hearts as sympathetic as the soil of the winds through the pines of their native forests, with a constancy as continuous as the roar of the mighty Atlantic on their surf beaten shore, and hospitality as warm and genial as the sun that at midday radiates through their western valleys. Thus we hope you will ever find them.

Thought the entire audience kept their seats until each and all of them had paid their respects to the venerable Bishop.

We have been handed the following corrected list of poll holders in the Third Ward, with the request to publish: Joseph McLaurin; Jas. D. Dry; Wm. H. Yopp, vice R. S. Radcliffe; Aug. H. Morris, vice Allen Evans. Registrar—W. L. Jacobs.

Fifth Ward Canvassers and Challengers. The following is a list of the canvassers and challengers in the Fifth Ward:

CHALLENGERS: James M. McGowan; G. W. W. Davis; J. D. H. Klander; Deems Gilbert; R. A. Price; W. H. Goodman; W. H. James; J. G. Darlow; E. M. James; and Wilkes Morris.

On all hands it is agreed that the Fair of the Roanoke and Tar River Agricultural Society, just closed at Weldon, was the best fair held in the State up to date. Smith, Emory and others know how to make a grand success of an agricultural fair, and the sturdy farmers of the two regions represented in the society take a personal interest in all the exhibitions. There has never been an inferior fair held in Weldon.

Big Hunt in Provisions.

A colored woman who keeps a stand at the cotton compress, whereat hungry men can have the benefit of roast 'taters, sweet custards and the like, at prices to suit the times, was yesterday robbed of her entire stock of refreshments in this manner: She was standing some distance from her table, when a colored boy came along, grabbed up a custard pie and ran away. She struck out after him, running him around the wharf for a time, but finally gave up the chase and returned, when lo! the four that her table was bare. While she was running the boy, some one took advantage of the opportunity and cleared up the pie. The old lady was sitting on a rock weeping bitterly, as she related her tale to us.

Whiteville.

At Whiteville, Columbus county, yesterday a large crowd assembled at the court house to hear the Democratic speech during the opening speech, in which he denounced the great Presidential fraud, which the people were cheated out of rights.

Meteorological.

From the daily bulletin, sent by the Signal Station, at this city, we follow the following, which shows the state of the thermometer at each of the cities and towns mentioned below, at 4:21 p. yesterday.

Table with columns: City, Temperature. Includes entries for New Orleans, Jacksonville, Mobile, Panama, St. Marks, Key West, Tampa, Atlanta, Augusta, Savannah, and Wilmington.

Joseph Jones, Wilmington, Del.; Capt. A. J. Gerrard, Steamer Murchison; K. Walker and J. D. Burkheimer, City W. L. Meadows, Henderson, N. C.; A. L. M. Columbus, O.; J. D. Ward, Laurinburg; C. W. H. Polk, Rockingham, N. C.

Marriage Later Difficulties.

Heretofore it is appeared that Salt Lake was somewhat superior to Chicago as a city of refuge for the much-married and the over-engaged; but now it seems as if even this were always to be trusted. A loving young man Miles has been having a very troublesome time there, merely because his affections were generously distributed, and it is quite possible that a United States court will reverse the results of some of his courtship elsewhere. It appears that the tender swain, whether from economic motives, or because he wanted his wives to start fairly in their race for his affections, is not satisfied with three blushing damsels to the altar one and the same time. As nature, brutally disregardful of Mormon necessities, had not endowed him with three right hands, or three pairs of lips, the wedding ceremony had to be performed successively by three brides. Whom to marry first perplexed the bridegroom did not know, he consulted the ruler of the "Saints," and that holy but heartless man decided that the ladies should rank at the altar according to age, without regard to date of engagement. The remorseless discipline of the Mormon Church cannot be better illustrated than by the facts that the ladies actually did not know, he consulted the ruler of the "Saints," and that holy but heartless man decided that the ladies should rank at the altar according to age, without regard to date of engagement.
