Den I goes to Memphis. Und I must go by boat to New Orleans. Und Shneral Washburn says my pass is no good. Den I galls on him and he looks at it and says, 'it don't reach.' Den I say, 'Don't you know me? My name is Hans Van Steenix. I see from der Bowery. I makes war speeches, and sends my son Sam to der war. He killed himself mit a leg in his gunn ball, and I goes down der river to pring him home before he dies. Und he shakes his head and looks wise. So I try him mit a greenbox! Und he looks blessed and he says, 'What is your name?'

Den I say, "Hans Van Steenix, from der Bowery! Und he says: 'Oh, Mr. Van Steenix, I recollect you! Sit down. Glad to see you. How is Sam? Here is your bassport.' Den I goes to der captain of ter steamboat on ter river. I show him my bassport. He says nothing. Der boat is shunt going. He tells me to go ashore. I tries him mit a greenbox. He takes the greenbox, and says, 'Oh you are Mr. Van Steenix. Ah! I'm glad to see you. Never mind your bassport it's all right. Hope you'll find your son quiet.'"

Den I goes to New Orleans. Und I goes to Shneral Banks. I show him my bassport. He says, 'Ah, come next month, when I come back from Red River.' Und I tell him I want to see my son Sam who is dead mit a gunn ball, and wants to see me before he gets well. Und I tell him my name is Hans Van Steenix, from der Bowery. He tells me to go off. So I try him mit a greenbox.

Den he says, 'What did I understand your name?' Hans Van Steenix, from der Bowery! 'O, I'm glad to see you, like to forget you. By all means, Certainly! Take this bassport! Go see your son Sam. He was a brave boy.' Den I goes to der hospital, and knocks on der door. Und a guard wants to know what I want, and he no lets me in. Den I show all my bassports. Und he says, 'I can't read.
