THE DAILY DISPATCH.

WILMINGTON, APRIL 4, 1867.

Denouncing a "Traitor." The following letter, under the above caption, appears in the Columbia Phænix of Saturday: COLUMBIA, March 28, 1867. MESSES. EDITORS :- I see in your paper of this morning, that at a meeting of the colored people held at Union Hall, on the 25th inst. grave charges were made against me, on account of the speech, or remarks, made by me on the 18th inst.

This so-called public meeting was held in a hall which is thirty-one feet nine inches by thirty feet. Perhaps there were two hun- consisting of dred and fifty persons present. Well, who composed that meeting? I learn that the greater part-in their unsophisticated credulity-had been made to believe that my notion was to put them back into slavery. This meeting was led on by Bob Trice and his satraps, foreign and domestic. Oh! my country, when I think of the fate of the children of Israel, I tremble for my people.

At this meeting it was determined that none of my friends should be heard. When Mr. Davis tried to speak he was hissed. Yet SWISS, MULL AND he would be heard, and his remarks caused such a division among them that the chairman had to take a vote three times to de cide whether the resolutions were passed or

Now for the committee which brought in the resolutions which had been previously prepared. First, who is Bob Trice? He came here a hard-shell Baptist; the next we heard of him he was a temperance lecturer; next he became a Catholic, and now a bar-room politician. But I forbear. Forrest, poor Forrest, I leave you to yourselfthe worst company you could have got in.

Now, Williams, did you not tell three gentlemen of this city that you came back from Florida dissatisfied, and that you never wanted to have anything more to do with the Yankees-that you had come home to live among your own people? You now desympathy for my fellow-citizens, be they I ask for no prouder inscription on my tomb than "W. B. Nash, the Traitor.

Thank God, I can look up to Heaven and say that I never did pledge myself to any old times. man to vote or act against the interests of my State. I am a Union man, but a South

Fitzsimmons I respect as a gentleman, But I would ask the chairman of this socalled meeting why he did not publish all the resolutions passed? Is he riding the rail between the North and the South? For shame, man! When your prompters behind the scenes prepared this resolution, your heart failed you, and you would not publish it. Like the owl, you fear the light. I now ask you if you and your party dare meet me before the people in daylight? I say to you, beware! lest when you think you are crushing a worm, you are grasping a scorpion. LEATHER AND SHOE FINDINGS Oh! jackass, jackass! the lion is neither W. B. NASH. dead nor asleep.

A QUEER WILL .- The Nashville Gazette has heard of a rather queer will which was lately admitted to probate in one of the counties bordering on the upper Cumberland. A wealthy old citizen had two sons, one of whom was in the Federal army, and the other in the rebel ranks. During the early part of the war the old gentleman was taken suddenly ill, and, wishing to divide his property equally between his two sons, bequeathed to Henry (the Federal soldier) all his slave property, embracing about fifty negroes, and to Thomas (the boy in gray) his landed estate. He died, and thus the will stands. Both brothers lived to return South or New York. from the war, and the gallant soldier of the "lost cause" being perfectly satisfied that slavery was no more, generously divided the lands with his brother, and both are living happily together, and are bitterly opposed to the radical programme.

DUTCH GAP CANAL FILLED UP. This specimen of the engineering skill of Ben Butler is about to become one of the things that were. Mr. Henry Cox, who owns the lands on each side of the "ditch," on vesterday finished filling in a crossing way at its upper end and just where it receives the waters of the James. This wagon road is SPRING twelve feet wide on the top, and is about ten feet above high-water mark. Mr. Cox which is one of the most fertile fields on the full assortment of LATEST STYLES lower James, and had to fill in this embankment to enable him to get access to it.

The city authorities at one time spoke of deepening this channel so that it could be used for vessels, and there has been some talk of a joint stock company to improve it; SILKS, with the NEW YORK HOUSE, but will attend but while they have both been delaying action, Mr. Cox has become tired of waiting.

DRIVING WITHOUT TRACES. -Hiram heretofore extended to us, we hope by our Woodruff, the celebrated horse trainer, who STYLES and LOW PRICES to merit a continudied on Friday last, on Long Island, was probably the first man on record who drove a horse in a race without traces. This he did in 1857 with Boston Girl. Being a very hard puller, and the traces dangling about her legs on the first heat, Hiram ordered the "Dutch collar" and traces to be taken off. The GEORGE MYERS, order was obeyed and he won the next two heats with ease, nothing drawing the vehicle but the reins.

The National Intelligencer says: Want of nerve is the curse of the hour. Our public men of moderate views have not the pluck TEAS, COFFEES, SUGAR, WINES to stand by what they believe to be right .-They are overborne by the violence and the energy and bold threats of the ultraists, and we state but a fact when we say that half a dozen uncompromising, determined men have coerced the action of the United States Senate against the deliberate judgment of a majority of that body."

Josh Billings thinks any man who is willing to drive a mule ought to be exempt by law from running for the legislature. This philosopher has nearly the same opinion of the mule as that which a colored pillar of the church once expressed, who much to his mortification, was encountered by his pastor while cursing his long-eared team in a Mississippi prairie lane about as deep as it was wide. "I 'clar," said he, "I believe mules was made to send niggers to hell, and niggers was made to send white folks to hell.'
