WILMINGTON, APRIL 26, 1867.

A Cowhiding Affair.

The other day in Richmond, Mr. Hovey, Northern school teacher, severely chastised a young lad in that city, whereupon the lad's brother, as will be seen by the following from the Richmond Examiner, turned the tables on Hovey, and treated him to a taste of the rawhide:

The case of boy whipping in a colored school by Mr. Hovey, has led to that individual being severely castigated with a cowhide, by the "big brother" of the lad he so gratuitously whipped. The scene of retribution was near the corner of Marshall and First streets, and it produced a terrible state of excitement in that usually quiet neighborhood. As reported to us by an eye witness. Hovey drove up to the residence of it is believed, connived at his escape, he has the mother of the boy he had whipped so been arrested at New Orleans, and will be wrongfully, got out of his buggy, entered tried by a military commission, which is the gate, walked up to the door, and hereby appointed to meet on Monday, April rung the bell. A few words passed of which none but the parties themselves know the purport, but during the conversation Mr. Hovey's proboscis came in rather close proximity to the face of the young avenger, who hauled off and struck him a telling blow on that organ, literally "smashing his snoot." Hovey reeled back against the fence, when the young man quickly whipped out a rawhide of the value of twenty-five cents, and commenced thrashing him most soundly, plying his weapon with vigor and effect. The schoolmaster wriggled considerably, and commenced a change of base. He ran out into the street, followed by the big brother, who hit him a lick at every jump, and even struck the unresistent teacher a blow or two after he had got into his buggy. He only escaped by whipping his horse into a fast trot, which placed him beyond the reach of the avenging brother's

The Proposed Purchase of British Amer-

The Washington correspondent of the Boston Post telegraphs as follows: Since my dispatch of Monday last, stating that another international land purchase was on the tapis at the State Department, I have been enabled to learn with accuracy the following in relation thereto: From the time of the advent of the Derby Administration to power in England down to the present day negotiations have been pending between the Colonial Secretary of Great Bri-OFFICE CORNER BOW & GREEN STREETS. tain and the State Department for the purchase by the United States of a large portion of British America.
