Page, a young man, we suppose about twenty-one years of age, terminated his earthly existence by drinking laudanum. We understand that he had been quite intemperate in his habits of drinking for some time, and probably that had something to do with the unnatural act.

It seems that, on Sunday night, he purchased laudanum af two or three of our drug stores, and drank off probably an ounce and a half of it. He made no secret of his intention, but spoke about it to several persons; Piano Covers. they however, did not believe him-in earnest until he had swallowed the fatal potion. He was found about 10 o'clock P. M. lying upon the street insensible, was carried home and medical assistance promptly called in, but too late to save life. He expired between seven and eight o'clock Monday morning. being wholly unconscious from the time he was discovered lying on the street.

He was the son of a widow lady well known and much respected in this community, and who has the sympathy of our people in her distress.—Danville Register.

IMMIGRATION. -- Advices from Ireland announce that a heavy tide of immigration has begun from that country to the United States, and it bids fair to increase in volume as the year advances. It is reported frem Queenstown that it is impossible to give any adequate idea of the extent of this movement or the anxiety of the Irish to get to America. During the week ending the 15th of April nine steamers sailed from Queenstown for the United States, bearing nearly 5,000 emigrants. Nine steamers were also to be dispatched by the various transatlantic lines every week thereafter. From Germany the reports are that a great emigration to the United States has also begun.
