Analysis of the Ohio Election. WASHINGTON, Oct. 15 .- The New York Herala contains the following analysis of the Ohio election:

At the election for Congressmen in Ohio last year, the Republicans carried sixteen out of the nineteen districts in the State. The Democrats elected their candidates in the 5th, 12th and 13th districts; the latter by a majority of 271, which Columbus Delano, the defeated candidate, is now contesting. At the election on the 8th instant, the Democrats carried twelve out of the nineteen low 45s. 3d. districts, and came within a hundred votes of carrying two or three others. In the two districts carried by them last year, and not contested, their majorities are increased from 2652 to 5264 in the 5th district, and from 3210 to 6002 in the 12th district, while in the 13th district, which is being contested, the democratic majority is increased from 271 to 1849. In every Republican district the majorities are cut down immensely. In the 7th district, which gave Hon. Samuel Shellabarger 2171 majority last year, the CARROLL, of Warrenton. Radicals e-caped with a bare 59 majority at the recent election, while in the 8th district the majority was reduced from 1852 to 62. In the 2d district the radical candidate was defeated by nearly 1,000 votes. Gen. Cary, his successful opponent, although personally in favor of negro suffrage, is opposed to forcing it upon any State, and pledged himself to the democracy to oppose any measures looking to the passage of a bill by Congress enfranchising the blacks, either in the North or South. He may therefore be regarded as an opponent of the Congressional policy of reconstruction.

The most significant feature about these Districts, is the revolution in the 10th. This District is represented by Mr. J. M. Ashley, the Member of Congress who brought in articles of impeachment against the President. As will be seen, the Republican loss is

They have had satisfactory interviews with Grant on Monday, and with Scotal Mark of the following order, which has just been issued from Department Headquarters: day, and with Scofield here to-day. It is now certain that the election for President of the Kailroad will take place at an adjourned meeting. Gen. Mahone will be chosen by acclamation; this gives him control of the line from Norfolk to Tennessee. Arrangements with the Tennessee Roads for continuation to Memphis, have been perfected.

The interference on the part of the Secretary of War with the election, was not intended as a military proceeding, but the result of the failure of the Railroad Company to comply with contract in payment for rolling stock.

The Cost of Peace-Armed and Un-

The cost of protecting the lives and liber ties of the four millions of freedmen left to our care by the late war has been comparatively trifling. The number of soldiers on duty in the South does not exceed a full corps of the late Army of the Potomac. The total expenses of our military establishment for the present year will probably not exceed. $25,000,000, and about one-half of this sum may be credited to the South. Deducting from this, say two millions for ordinary expenses, will leave about ten millions for expenditures on reconstruction. This expenditure is certainly not large, considering the magnitude of the work to be done; it is necessary, and it will be beneficial. Every dollar paid to our soldiers at the South is spent there. It is an addition to the wealth of that section. It is also a most profitable addition, for it is the price we are paying for permanent peace.

To appreciate properly the value of the services of our soldiers in the South since the war, we ought to compare them with the services of the soldiers who are now maintaining the existing "armed peace" in Europe. For instance, Prussia, with a population about equal to our own, and, like our selves, engaged in reconstruction after a great war, supports about 300,000 armed hour. Assistance was procured; the heartmen, at a cost of nearly 50,000,000. That is, Prussia employs about six men to our one, and pays two dollars to our one; for the means of preserving peace. The cases are widely different in many points, yet sufficiently alike to show that we have, comparatively speaking, no reason to consider our situation exceptionally bad. The comparison will hold equally good in regard to every other country in Europe. Even little Portugal, which is not threatened with aggression or insurrection, supports an army nearly as large as that of the United States, although its population is about equal to the population of New York State. Taking Europe as a whole, one man out of every hundred persons is a soldier, who earns nothing and who does not perform even police duties. Here only about one man out of seven hundred persons is a soldier, and he performs in many cases the same duties that night watchmen and policemen perform in our large cities. This holds good especially at the South. There our soldiers are not more numerous in proportion to the population; they are not more expensive, and they are not on the average more oppressive to the people than are the Police in any British or American city. They are, in fact, Police detailed for a time on special duty in the South, and the attempt to depreciate their services, or to cast odium upon them for carrying into effect the Reconstruction Act, must be regarded as idle babble, hardly worth

Our situation bears the same relation to the situation of Europe that the picture, "Grant in Peace," bears to the picture of Richard the First leading his mailed warri-

With the mother's consent the little fellows started off in high glee. Alas! better had they never been born. On reaching the spot where the dog was barking, they saw, a short distance from the dog, a large ob-Sales 20,000 bales. Uplands 8 5 16; Orleans ject coiled up at the toot of a stump, in a 8 11-16. Eager only to capture the supposed game, and not think ing of danger, nor knowing the nature of in study and in getting up new designs and the prey, they approached the hideous mon-ster, that in fatality of attack "out venoms all the worms of the Nile."

The oldest of the two boys approached first, with his little hands outstretched and his face aglow at the prospect of his prize; he said, "I'll get him, brother." One step more, and he rushed to a death more terri ble and speedy than were the tortures of fabled Laocoon. With one dart of his forked tongue-with one death-rattle of his tail, the huge rattlesnake -for it was pothing less-drew back his sealy fold, and with one dart forward, planted his envenomed tangs in the flesh of the boy, and left the deadly poison coursing hot through his young veins. Again and again was the boy bitten by the fatal reptile, till he fell exhausted in the coils of the monster. The other little fellow rushed forward to the relief of his little brother, and he also received the deadly fangs of the serpent in several places. The screams of the boys alarmed the mother, who was still washing at the branch, and leaving her baby girl she ran frantically to the spot. What a sight there met her gaze! Putrid with poison, swollen and black, and bitten in many places one of her boys was already dead, and the other dying from the same cause. The snake had crawled away, and the living boy lived just long enough to tell the circumstances of their death. Overwhelmed with an intensity of agony which mothers alone can feel, she remained at the fatal spot a short time, when she bethought of her little girl at the branch, and hurried back. On reaching the spot, horrible as it may be, she found that the little girl had walked to the wash-tup, into which she had fallen headforemost and was drowned, "and it too was gone!" The mother's cup of misery was full; not another drop could be added. Bereft of children, and almost of reason, she sank under the accumulated horrors of the crushed woman and the remains of her nestlings were taken charge of and cared for A short time after a large rattlesnake, with thirteen rattles, was killed near the spot where the boys were bitten.

Too Much Music.

In Philadelphia, one pleasant Sunday evening, an old lady whose failing eyes demanded an unusually large prayer-book, started for church a little early. Stopping on the way to call on a friend, she laid her prayer book on the centre-table. When the bells began to chime she snatched what she supposed to be her prayer-book and started for church. Her seat was at the chancel end of the gallery. The organ ceased playing. The minister said: "The Lord is in His holy Temple, let all the earth keep silence before Him." In the effort to open her supposed prayer-book, she started the spring of the music box which she had taken instead. It began to play—in her consternation she put it on the floor. It would not stop—she put it on the seat, it sounded louder than ever. Finally she carried it out while it played the "Washing Day," an Irish jig tune. tune

Buttons are used to some extent for fastening gloves, but the new gloves are clasped with studs mechanically fastened to one side. The varieties of gloves are the plain, with two buttons; long wrists with welt and band, fastened with three buttons, or with two studs; a wider band, with three studs; and long armed gloves with tour studs; and large. long armed gloves, with four studs; and larger ones with six. The studs take the place of three buttons. The fashionable colors in gloves are "cuir," Russian gray, a purple hue, French gray, a lavender tint, lilac, purple lavender, amber and Giraffe. Perhaps the ladies who purchase Alexandre's gloves do not know that a gentleman who serves them is the genius who devises the improvements, and designs new colors and styles for the retail trade. He goes through the forest and gathers autumn leaves of every hue, blends them, and studies the effect in light and shade, and so devises new colors. During the day he is in his place at the counter. His evenings are spent, often to a late hour, in study and in getting up new designs and colors that are forwarded to the manufacturer.

Street and Home Dresses.—Short dresses for walking are gaining in popularity; they are more worn in Europe than formerly, Eugene having appeared in one. An elegant Eugene having appeared in one. The under skirt is sometimes of a contrasting color, and when they harmonize has a pretty effect. A new style that will be worn as the pelisse, is made with two skirts, the under one quite long. The groom, admiring her spunk, made the matter up with her as soon as possible, and a third time they presented themselves before the minister, who began the ceremony by asking the usual questions, which were satisfactorily answered this time. "A rumor was current yesterday," says the Ralia of Naples of the 19th, "that St. Januarius would not this year perform his accustomed miracle, in consequence of the heretics and excommunicated persons who are at the present mo-ment forming impious plots against the Holy Father. The people of Java have rather a lively time of it. According to the latest official statistics contained in the Vijdschrift vor Nederlandsch Java, the tiger has in one single year consumed exactly 149 human beings, and in another year 131. The crocodiles cleared an average of 50 people a year, while serpents accounted for between 42 and 45. But the Dutch seem to accept their state with characteristic equanimity. THE USE OF HUMOR IN THE PULPIT.—The Advance, the new Congregationalist organ in Chicago, defends the use of humor in the pulpit. It says:

Cranberry culture is becoming so large and remunerative a business in New Jersey, that marshy lands, formerly almost worth-less, now bring as high as $1,000 an acre.

The word "tariff" comes from the old Moorish fortress of Tarifa, on a promontory at the Straits of Gibraltar. The Moors occupying this fortress exacted a duty on all merchandise coming in or going out of the Mediterranean Sea.
