MORE THUNDER FROM THE NORTH.

WISCONSIN, MINNESOTA, NEW YORK, PENNSYLVANIA, MASSACHUSETTS.

All declared for the Republican party and liberty. The North is aroused and the conspirators against the rights of the people at the south may as well run back to their dens.

THE NOVEMBER ELECTIONS

Enough is known at the time we write to fix the political character of the great northern States, perhaps for years to come. Following quickly upon the heels of the elections in Ohio, Iowa and Nebraska, which decisively sustained the Republican party and policy, the great States of New York and Pennsylvania, together with Massachusetts, Wisconsin and Minnesota have spoken in the same direction. The result of these elections, taken in the aggregate cannot be considered in any other sense than as a broad and generous endorsement by the people of the measures and policy of the Republican party. Those who have apprehended that the people desired a change in our national policy and a reversal of the great measures during and since the war, or that they would be persuaded into a nullification of the results of the war, can now take heart and confidence.

A year ago the aspect of things was gloomy. The people of the north seemed to revolt from their allegiance. They had been made to believe that the policy of the government in regard to the reconstructed States was a mistake. Many had personal grievances, and local dissensions had sprung up in nearly all the States. Ohio, Indiana, New York, and Connecticut, and several other States had revolted, and gone over to the Democrats, and others still were wavering. It seemed as if, borne on a grand reflux wave of dissatisfaction, the great mass of the people of the north were to be swept into the arms of those who engineered the rebellion and those who countenanced it, and that the government itself was to fall into the hands of those who had attempted its destruction. But their eyes were soon opened, and they saw their mistake. The Democrats elected Cockrell Senator from Missouri instead of Schurz, Kernan in New York instead of Fenton, Eaton instead of English, all of whom were the most pronounced sympathizers of the rebellion. All their movements were to fan the embers of the rebellion into flame, and reanimate the principles upon which the rebellion was organized. And seeing the precipice which they were approaching the old republicans staggered back and have stood in the old ranks. Hence the glorious results which we chronicle to-day.

As to Mississippi, which with a Republican majority of ten or fifteen thousand has been carried by the Democrats, we must wait for the black republic which is behind the curtain of the associated press dispatches. All who understand affairs there were aware that the Democrats were to carry the State by intimidation. They have done so and any welcome to all the satisfaction they can derive from it. We must patiently wait the day of retribution for the crimes which have been committed there. That election will stand among the others, ranking in villainy, fraud and crime.

LITERARY.

To a Critic.

Hold this—she'll to your ear,
And you shall hear
Not the wind's symphony,
Not the wild wind's symphony,
But your own heart's melody.

You do poets and their song,
A grievous wrong,
If your own heart does not bring
To their deep imagining
As much beauty as they sing.

T. B. Aldrich, in November Atlantic.

The Atlantic Monthly for November makes a brilliant opening with the first two chapters of Mr. Howells' new novel, "Private Theatricals," the scenery and persons of which are distinctly American and very striking.

This is followed by Charles Dudley Warner's "At the Gates of the East," a travel sketch and full of color, in which setting and keen are charmingly blended. Useful information finds a worthy exponent in Colonel Waring's final paper on "Sanitary Drainage," and this is followed by the eleventh chapter of Mr. James' "Roderick Hudson," Charles Francis Adams, Jr., begins his long-expected series of articles on railroads, with an interesting account of some great railroad accidents.

Mr. Kemble's "Old Woman's Gossip" continues its unending supply of curious anecdotes, and George Cary Eggleston takes us into the region of historic reminiscence in his account of life in the Old Dominion. The literary essay of the number treats of Hans Christian Andersen's short stories, and is by Horace E. Scudder, the American translator of Andersen's. Besides these contributions, there are poems by T. B. Aldrich, Mrs. Thaxter, Edgar Fawcett, and G. P. Lathrop; and the departments of Music and Education are entertaining as well as instructive.

The Life and Adventures of Davy Crockett, an Autobiography, written by Himself, and Embellished with Spirited and Life-Like Illustrations, engraved from Original Designs drawn by Henry L. Stephens, is published this day by T. B. Peterson & Brothers, 306 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, in a large octavo volume, price fifty cents. This "Life of Davy Crockett" will in future times, or, as soon as it is known and read, be prized almost beyond its weight in gold. It is full of striking events and scenes of humor; and will furnish interest and amusement for all time to come, to all who can appreciate the peculiarities of a border life. The annals of the South-West are as thrilling, indeed, as the legendary lore of Scotland. It is racy and attractive, and will be found, on perusal, to contain the most extraordinary adventures and exploits of any person that ever lived. It will be read and re-read with avidity and pleasure by all, and any one that commences reading it, will not stop until the end is reached. It is for sale by all Booksellers, or copies will be sent per mail, post paid, to any one, on their remitting fifty cents to the Publishers, T. B. Peterson & Brothers, Philadelphia, in a letter. For sale at P. H. Heinsberger's Live Book and Music Store.

"The Opera Dancer, or, the Mysteries of Female Life in London," by George W. M. Reynolds, author of "The Mysteries of the Court of London," is published this day by T. B. Peterson & Brothers, Philadelphia, in one of George W. M. Reynolds' best efforts, and is full of illustrative engravings. In it he describes the Mysteries of Female Life in London, before and behind the scenes, as well as in the Parks and in the streets, with night adventures, in the vaults, and in London underground, until Revenge and Retribution comes, and the final denouement of the story takes place. The dramatic power throughout the whole volume is strong and vivid, the positions are striking, and when Reynolds relates scenes and incidents, they may be relied upon as faithful and true. "The Opera Dancer" is a book of genius and ability. It is published in a large octavo volume, price seventy-five cents, and is for sale by all Booksellers, or copies will be sent to any one, post paid, on receipt of price by the Publishers, T. B. Peterson & Brothers, Philadelphia, Pa. For sale at P. H. Heinsberger's Live Book and Music Store.

"Parkwater, or, Told in the Twilight," is an entire new work from the pen of Mrs. Henry Wood. It is printed from Advance English Proof Sheets, and is issued in America simultaneously with the publication of the work in Europe. It will command a large share of attention from the whole novel-reading community, as Mrs. Wood's fascinating manner of narration is here faithfully preserved. Since she first wrote the public by storm, with "East Lynne," Mrs. Wood has successfully maintained her position at the very head of her class. No writer imparts deeper interest to her plots. In no stories is the action more briskly kept up. "Parkwater, or, Told in the Twilight," is even more powerful, however, than Mrs. Wood's novels are in general, and it will be laid aside until the last page is reached, for the interest never flags. This is the great secret of Mrs. Wood's popularity as a novelist, as well as the cause of all her works becoming so immensely popular. We anticipate for "Parkwater, or, Told in the Twilight," as large a sale as "East Lynne" had, or any other work ever written by this popular author. It is published complete in one large octavo volume, paper cover, price seventy-five cents, and is for sale by all Booksellers, or copies will be sent per mail, post paid, to any one, on their remitting the price to the Publishers, T. B. Peterson & Brothers, Philadelphia, in a letter. For sale at P. H. Heinsberger's Live Book and Music Store.

Two ladies in Charleston, Ala., passing a fence in which a white boy and a negro were standing together, one of them remarked: "There's a fine pair of asses," whereupon the boy in the door responded: "Yes, and there goes a fine pair of asses."

There has been a sharp earthquake at Yuma.

C. B. Conant & Co., coal dealers of New York, have failed.

The steamer Faraday has grappled and buoyed the direct cable.

The Hon. Thos. A. Jackson, of Providence, R. I., is hopelessly ill.

A factory at Preston, Eng., employing 200 people, was burned Tuesday.

Three blocks of Sherman, Texas, have been destroyed by fire.

An elevator and 10,000 bushels of grain was burned on Tuesday, at Belleville, Ont.

The old Stafford mill at Stafford Hollow, Ct., was burned Monday night. Loss $24,000.

The steamer Paul Sheridan which is ashore at Grand Island, Michigan, will be a total loss.

There were two stabbing affairs in New York Tuesday, and several arrests for illegal voting.

A special from Virginia City says that the mining situation is encouraging. The water is falling and building is progressing briskly.

A dispatch from St. Familia, Isle of Orleans, says: Seventeen persons while landing from the steamer Montorency in a scow, were drowned.

The meeting at Chicago of general freight agents of Eastern lines, while considering a further advance of rates East, decided to postpone action a few weeks.

At Boston the Eastern Railroad has been notified to the tune of $74 for refusing to receive a ticket issued for passage in an opposite direction to which the passenger was traveling.

John Watkins, of Dedham, Mass., being quite ill, was taken to the polls in a carriage. On arriving home he fell dead from over excitement. His daughter was so much affected that she is not expected to recover.

At Washington at five minutes to 19 o'clock Tuesday night, there were two severe shocks of earthquake, which continued for about forty-five seconds, the second shock following almost immediately the first. There was a rumbling sound with moving motion which shook the earth and trembled the houses, causing some alarm among the people.

The Commissioners of the Freedman's Bank say they will continue to pay 20 per cent. dividend until every depositor has received a proper portion, but cannot adjust more than five hundred accounts per day, of which there are over sixty thousand. From a thousand to fifteen hundred books are received per day from different parts of the country.

The Hon. R. H. Hill, of Georgia, says the Democratic Congressmen from the South will be very conservative, and will oppose all claims against the government on account of the war.

But, that is not saying that the honorable gentleman intends to forego the desire, to deliver that remarkable speech of his, wherein he demonstrated to a society that the true rebels of this country are in the north, and not in the South. There is certainly too much brain-work about this affair, not to be remembered upon that arena where no admiring plaudits can be heard. We want some of our fledglings in the House to put themselves in training to meet this absurd exhibition. It's coming, depend upon it. Hill can't rest without letting some of it out.—Washington Chronicle.
